A capacity crowd filled the new Municipal Court Tuesday for a public meeting concerning campers, trailers and boats.

No Budget Cuts Agreed on Yet

It could be a spirited public hearing in Council chambers Monday afternoon at 2 p.m. That's the time when the 1968-69 operating budget for Virginia Beach comes under close scrutiny by the general public and City Council members.

Two major topics are expected to arise in the hearing. One will deal with the possible suggestion of cutting the School Board budget, an item usually not tampered with by Council. The other will be the possible beefing up of the Virginia Beach Industrial Commission.

A suggestion to reduce the proposed $6,000 starting teacher salary to $5,800 (the same as Norfolk) has been rejected by School Board officials and Supt. E. E. Brickell. Brickell says a large number of teachers have already signed contracts for next year at $6,000 and that the figure is being used in recruiting. School Board Chairman J. W. Buffington said that Virginia Beach is still below average in its pay for teachers as a whole.

Now other school items are being studied for slashing, and the school budget may possibly be cut in a lump sum leaving the administration of the cut up to school officials.

Brickell said, "Obviously we couldn't cut the budget without cutting services."

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, "I think the budget is a proper one, and I have no comment on any proposed cuts in it. It's needed to do the job."

City Councilmen are not through studying the matter. They met in executive session Monday to discuss possible cutting, and they meet again informally tonight for more of the same. Giles Dodd, City Finance director, has been in on several of the discussions.

Cuts in a number of other sections of the budget are also being considered, according to a spokesman close to Council. He said that there is little agreement at present on how to make the cuts, however.

Several suggestions have been made to save money, but none has apparently gained much momentum. Suggestions have included raising the utility tax from 15 to 20 percent while cutting the budget for the Departments of Public Works Welfare and Recreation and an across-the-board slash of five per cent in all city departments.

The monetary furor began when Hatchett presented the record $35.9 million operating budget to Council two weeks ago. To finance the record expenditures, record tax hikes on real estate were included. Taxes would rise as much as 66.7 per cent in some areas of the city.

Actually no cuts have been agreed upon, according to one spokesman, but an intensive examination and evaluation is still going on. The public hearing may be the place where it all is decided. The budget is expected to be passed in some form, possibly close to its original form, on Monday on first reading. Final passage is then expected on April 22.

The Industrial Commission is now being looked to as a possible future city life-saver. L. Dean Curtis, director of the commission, operates a one-man office at present, and also is project director for the Rudee Inlet project.

Several Council members believe that Curtis should only wear one hat, that of the Industrial Commission, and that he should have a staff to help him attract industry to Virginia Beach.

Curtis is out of the city on a four-week vacation and could not be reached for comment, but a city spokesman, says the proposals are definitely being discussed and that there is a distinct possibility the commissions will be added to, with Curtis as a full-time director.

The new attention to the commission came after Hatchett's budget raised real estate taxes so much. Several city officials said then that it was apparent that the homeowner would not be able to bear the brunt of the cost of so many services in a very few years to come. Industry then appeared to be the answer, and it has been felt that the city has not done enough to attract industry in the past.

All indications are that the city will continue its rapid growth this year, and the Master Plan calls for a population of the city of about 485,000 by 1985. All city sources agree that new sources of income must be found.

On other matters, Council is expected to hear a report Monday that Rudee Inlet channel will definitely be opened for charter boat traffic this summer. The Virginia Beach Erosion Commission, operators of the dredge there, now say it definitely can be finished on time.

Zoning matters will also occupy Council Monday at what is expected to be a long meeting. Some 500 apartment units, already discussed in public hearing by the City Planning Commission will be heard. In addition, about 100 townhouses will also be up for discussion. The total units represent four separate zoning requests. There are 14 zoning matters to be discussed.

Camper Report Raises Objections

After five months in the works a proposed city ordinance to "regulate the location, parking and storage of major recreation equipment" locked horns with some 200 campers Tuesday night at a 2 1/2 hour hearing at the former Municipal Court building.

Presented by Assistant City Atty. Stanley Phillips, a member of the nine-man committee which formulated the law, the proposal would have amended sections 1 and 5 of Chapter 20 (Trailers and Trailer Campers) of the city code to include a definition of "major recreation equipment" as well as restrictions on the equipment defined.

In section 1, of the proposed ordinance, the definition included "travel trailers, pick-up campers or coaches, motorized dwellings, tent trailers, boats and boat trailers or any structure designed, constructed or maintained for use, to be placed on or attached to a motor vehicle."

This definition was one of the three sections referred back to the committee for clarification. The opponents to section 1, believed that it could be worded more clearly. There was also some dispute over section 2, of the proposed law, calling for a three-hour parking limit for recreation vehicles on city streets. Most people attending Tuesday's unofficial hearing thought that the section was too severe.

Another of Section 2.'s controversial points concerned the proposed prohibition of electrical, water and sewer connections to the recreation equipment. During the meeting, it was settled that the connections could not be made for the purpose of occupancy.

Points that did not give rise to such controversy were: Recreation equipment more than 27 feet in length and eight feet in width may not be stored in a residential area except in an enclosed garage or accessory building; there may be limited storage of smaller equipment on private property, within all set back lines, including rear and side yard set back lines; such equipment may be parked on residential streets for up to 24 hours for loading or unloading; smaller lots (zoned R-S-4 and R-1) are excluded from the set back requirements, but the equipment must be a minimum of three feet from property lines.

Liquor Petition Imminent

The combined Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce-Virginia Beach Jaycees special committee that will seek signatures on petitions calling for a liquor-by-the-drink referendum in the city held its first meeting Tuesday night.

The referendum, possibly to be called in September or November if more than about 3,500 signatures are gotten, will seek to take advantage of a new state law which allows Virginia localities to vote on local option liquor-by-the-drink. The law was passed by the 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly.

Richard D. Guy, chairman of the committee told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that several problems and questions were raised at the organizational meeting, and that at the next meeting on April 11, he hopes to hear reports on the various issues raised.

Although he could not say exactly when the circulation of petitions would begin, or the method to be employed, Guy did say that it will be "very soon."

Banner Year In Building Foreseen

For the building industry in Virginia Beach, March really came in like a lion. Some 273 building permits were issued during the month for a total value of $7,792,280 compared to 284 permits in March 1967, valued at $4,636,522.

Residential permits totaled 119, for a value of $2,525,796 and permits for 96 apartment units totaled $1,303,280.

The total for the first three months of 1968, $16,441,919, is the highest ever in the city for the first three months of any given year. In 1965, the highest year on record so far, the three-month total was $15,284,756. Prior to this March the highest March on record was March 1966, just two months before the great decline of the building industry nationwide because of "tight money."

Already included in the total are several schools voted in the January bond issue, with several more to come before the end of 1968. In addition several new apartment units and the Green Run Planned Unit Development will be reflected in the 1968 total.

"Putting all of this together I think 1968 will be a banner year," said Robert Lohér, administrative assistant to the Virginia Beach Building official.

Rotary Expects 500

Another relatively large convention will be held in Virginia Beach this weekend at the Cavalier Hotel. About 500 Rotarians and their families will attend the two-day conference Friday and Saturday of District 760 of Rotary International.

A.D.G. Stewart of Sydney, Australia, will represent the International president, Luther H. Hodges. Stewart will be guest speaker at the main event of the conference, the Saturday luncheon, where he will give the president's message.

Some 60 Rotary Clubs make up the district, including most of Virginia. T. Roy Grubbs of Virginia Beach is the district governor. L. F. Patrick, also of Virginia Beach, is general chairman of the conference.

Highlight of the program Friday night will be music presented by "Sing Out Virginia Beach. "The first business session of the conference is at 2 p.m. on Friday.

District officers for the next Rotary year, from July 1 to June 30, also will be elected. On Saturday night the program calls for a humorous address by Sam D. Bundy, who will be introduced by Al Mailhes, chairman of publicity and promotion.

A number of events have also been planned for wives of the Rotarians. (See Women's Section).

Beach Should Be Clear On Higher Court Ruling

Virginia Beach should not be affected by the U. S. Supreme Court's latest ruling, applying the principle of one-man, one-vote to all municipal governments, according to city officials.

The high court issued its unheralded opinion with three dissenting votes on Monday, and almost immediately several localities across Virginia began to make plans to meet the new requirements.

Virginia Beach, however, has already had its so-called "seven-four" Council plan fully scrutinized in the courts, including the U. S. Supreme Court. The method of electing representatives from each borough and four at large members by all voters in the city was found to meet the one-man, one-vote requirements, while at the same time meeting the needs of the rural and urban economies of the city. The plan was found to guarantee representation to all interests in the city, while not being prejudicial to anyone or any group.

City Attorney Harry Marshall says he sees no need for the Virginia Beach case to be reopened since the plan has already been found Constitutional by the high court.

"I haven't read the opinion that was issued Monday, but unless there is something in there that we don't know about I don't see how it can affect us."

Marshall added that he thought to negate the earlier opinion the new one would have to state just that specifically.

The city's present plan was approved by the Virginia General Assembly as a charter change, then tested in several courts before being found in substantial compliance with the proper apportionment principles set up by the high court.

This was necessitated when an old plan was found unconstitutional. Before a new plan could go into effect here, a new charter change would have to be accepted by the legislature, either in regular session in 1970 or in special session in 1969.

Marshall said he did not feel that even if the new ruling would be a new election before the regular Council terms run out in 1970, in view of the plan having been fully accepted earlier.

Inspectors Relocated; Others Too

Continuing improvements of facilities at Princess Anne Courthouse have resulted in a relocation of the Virginia Beach Fire Inspectors offices.

The office has been relocated in temporary quarters in the Virginia Beach Borough Fire Headquarters at 20th Street and Artic Avenue, occupying the space which formerly housed the Beach Borough Police Precinct.

Offices for the Fire Inspectors will be included in a new structure planned near the Windsor Woods fire station, for which construction is expected to begin in the near future. During the interim period those requiring services of the Fire Inspector Bureau may contact the office by telephoning 428-5860.

Oral Lambert, director of the city's Bureau of Building and Grounds, told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, "The building which formerly housed the Fire Inspectors offices is to be removed to make room for a municipal parking lot at Princess Anne Courthouse". While bids on the project have been received, according to Lambert, City Council has yet to review them before awarding a contract for the parking lot project.

Lambert also told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN the overall improvement program will result in relocation of the city's general registrar's office tomorrow from it's present location to a suite at the rear of the old Municipal Court building. Additional city offices will be relocated in the near future, however these plans are incomplete at the present time.

School Bids Bat 1.000

The apparent low bidder on an addition to Lynnhaven Elementary School was M.D. Johnson & Co. of Norfolk. The company's bid of $79,650 was opened along with several others on Tuesday.

Construction is expected to begin next week, according to Ernest Stone, construction supervisor of Virginia Beach Public Schools.

The high bid was about $83,000. In the Jan. 20 bond issue an estimate for the addition was set at $80,000, including equipment. The low bid was barely below that estimate. The School Board is still batting a perfect 1.000 in accepting bids under the original estimates.

A similar addition to Malibu School has also been bid. Those bids will be opened this afternoon. The cost of that addition is also expected to be about $80,000.

Dam Neck Command Changes

Capt. Stuart T. Sadler assumed duties as Commanding Officer of the Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center and the U.S. Fleet Computer Programming Center at Dam Neck last Friday. Sadler, the former Chief of Staff of Cruiser-Destroyer Flotilla Eight, relieved Capt. W. N. Homer who will assume command of Destroyer Squadron Three in the South Pacific.

Virginia Beach Mayor Frank Dusch was among invited guests for the change of command ceremonies which featured an address by Rear Adm. J. S. Coye, Jr., Commander Training Command U. S. Atlantic Fleet.

Signs of things to come include this one at the city-owned marina on Long Creek, recently leased for five years to Bayside Boats, Inc.

The Reaction Is Surprise, Uncertainty

Surprise was the general reaction in Virginia Beach to Pres. Johnson's unexpected announcement Sunday night that he would not seek or accept his party's nomination for re-election this year.

After the initial shock wore off the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN contacted as many elected Constitutional officers and legislative representatives as possible as well as other city officials for their comments and opinions concerning the 1968 nominee and Mr. Johnson's successor. All of the officials are Democrats.

SIDNEY S. KELLAM, Democratic National Committeeman: "I think the President is so sincere about the war effort that he wanted to remove himself from the political arena in order that he may fully pursue every angle affecting the war. It was quite a surprise to me. Now I think the way has been cleared for Vice-Pres. Humphrey to make a bid for the nomination. I don't have anything to base that on. It's just a guess."

FRANK A. DUSCH, Mayor: "I was not surprised."

EDWARD T. CATON III, State Senator: "I was very surprised and it appears that the race for the Democratic nomination is now wide open."

KENNETH WHITEHURST, member, House of Delegates: "I was surprised, to put it mildly. I thought about it several months ago, that he might not run when his chart on the public opinion polls showed him at a low ebb, but he seemed to have brought that back up in the last few months. I quite frankly don't know what it's going to do in Virginia. I imagine there'll be an awful lot of reassessing of positions."

B.R. MIDDLETON, Member, House of Delegates; "It was completely unexpected. I think it is for the good of the Democratic party. I don't see who the Democratic Party could unite behind at the present, but I feel the party could not have united behind Pres. Johnson. I also feel it will help to a certain extent to bring a conclusion in Vietnam. I think it's best for the country itself. As for the effect on state politics, I feel it will have less effect on the coming state races than if the President had stayed in the national race."

JOHN FENTRESS, Clerk of Courts: "I was just as shocked as anyone else. I just don't know what the Democratic party is going to do. I think Vice-Pres. Humphrey could very well be a candidate. If he throws his hat in the ring, then you'll have three to choose from."

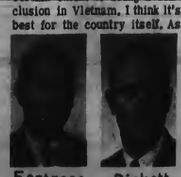

IVAN MAPP, Commissioner of Revenue: "I don't have any comment."

JOHN MARR, City Sergeant: "I don't like to think too much about that. Because of the way things are building up on him, I think he's taken the right move not to be a candidate."

ANDRE EVANS, Commonwealth's Attorney: "This is a matter of national politics, and I'm more concerned at present with doing a good job for the people of Virginia Beach than I am with national affairs."

OWEN PICKETT, Chairman of the Virginia Beach Democratic Committee: "Needless to say, it came as quite a shock and surprise. This is going to create a great deal of re-examination among the candidates in the Democratic Party. I suspect we will see some more outstanding Democratic leaders come forward prior to the convention."

Efforts to reach selected other city officials over a three-day period failed.

Census Begins Soon

A complete census will begin in Virginia Beach "in a week or so," according to J.J. Owens, administrative assistant of Virginia Beach Public Schools. The census will be a complete one, as ordered by City Council in January.

"We don't have the forms yet," said Owens, "so I'm not certain exactly what questions will be asked, but I understand it will be a complete survey."

By Virginia law school systems are required to make a school census every three years, for evaluation of sales tax funds to be returned to the localities in the next budget. No one, however, is exactly certain of the true population of Virginia Beach, so Council decided to expand the school census into a general one. The City Planning Commission is providing a list of questions. This will also mean better distribution of state funds, according to city officials.

Since the last census in 1960 and the consolidation of the old city of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County in 1963, the city has grown tremendously, but only estimates have been made of the population. The University of Virginia estimates a lower figure than that of city officials. The census should settle the matter. Private estimates place the population of the city above 160,000.

The report will not be finished until June, according to Owens, and he says no progress reports will be meaningful. The census was scheduled to begin about the first of April but has been slightly delayed. City school teachers will conduct the actual survey.

It's Ruritan Minstrel Time

Gentlemen, be seated!

That's the call that will be heard at Princess Anne High School on April 17, 18, 19 and 20, marking the opening of the 13th annual Princess Anne Ruritan Minstrel.

A new interlocuter will speak the traditional words this year, but he is by no means new to the show. Les Lam, a veteran of every minstrel so far... but as an end man...takes over the top duties this year.

Owen Pickett serves as producer of the annual event. Mrs. Pat Potter is again handling the musical chores this year and Virginia Biggs is choreographer.

Again breaking with tradition, the production will be given in four consecutive performances during one week. In the past it has been presented on two weekends.

The Wednesday and Thursday performances will begin at 7:30 p.m., with admission of $1. The Friday and Saturday performances begin at 8 p.m., with admission of $1.50.

Changes Could Affect Anglers

Several changes were proposed by the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries which, if approved, will affect anglers in coming months, reports Fish Division Chief Jack Hoffman.

A closed trout season from Nov. 15 through Jan. 31 was proposed for South Holston Reservoir as a cooperative measure between the Virginia and Tennessee Commissions to allow for trout stocking in the TVA impoundment which straddles the state line. It would be unlawful to creel a trout from the lake during this period but other fishing would be unaffected.

Upon recommendation by the U.S. Forest Service, a proposal was made that would remove the present daily creel limit of 5 trout in small impoundments making it apply only to the larger reservoirs and fee-fishing areas. Since many small impoundments in the forest are on stocked streams where the daily limit is 8 trout, the difference in creel limit has been a sticky problem for anglers and enforcement officers alike. Under the proposed regulation, the creel limit would be 8 in all designated stocked waters, including lakes except Game Commission lakes.

A proposal was made to exempt all anglers fishing in the Shenandoah River adjacent to the George Washington National Forest from the National Forest Stamp requirement, since the stream is neither stocked nor managed by the Forest Service.

A 12 inch minimun size limit on bass was proposed for the New River from Claytor Dam to the West Virginia line. The restriction is classed as experimental to determine if such a size limit might improve the quality of small mouth bass taken from this section.

Beach Student Leads Williamsburg Meet

Tom Eagar, a senior at First Colonial High School, will preside at the annual convention of the Chesapeake District of Junior Civitan this weekend at Williamsburg, at the Congress Inn. Eagar is governor of the eastern seaboard district which includes the states south of the Canadian border to Norfolk.

Maj.Gen. John H. Masters, USMC, deputy chief of staff, U. S. Atlantic Command, Norfolk, will be the featured speaker of the co-ed convention, with "Americanism" as his topic.

Junior Civitan is a service club for high school students in grades 10 through 12. According to Alvin Andrews, senior chairman of the advisory committee of Junior Civitan for Chesapeake District for the past five years, the organization's chief project is to help mentally and physically handicapped children.

George White, who assumed the presidency of the Williamsburg Chamber of Commerce Monday, will welcome the group of 200 high school students to Williamsburg. The students will have their choice of two tours one of Williamsburg and one of Yorktown.

The convention agenda calls for the election and installation of new district officers. Attending the convention will be Robert Kennedy (not the presidential candidate) senior vice president of Junior Civitan International and Harvey Mitchell, senior chairman of Junior Civitan International.

THE BEACH THIS WEEK

No Word on Cape Henry

Word is still being awaited from Rep. Thomas N. Downing, D-Va., on efforts to make a national monument of the Cape Henry Cross. Downing has introduced a bill to this effect in Congress. The cross was erected in 1935 by the Daughters of the American Revolution to mark the site of the 1607 arrival of the first Jamestown settlers in colonizing the New World. At present, doubt surrounds approval of the proposal by State Sen. Edward T. Caton III in the Virginia General Assembly to designate Cape Henry as a national park.

Wilber Heads Group

Cmdr. Walter E. Wilber has assumed duties as commanding officer of Fighter Squadron 102 based at Oceana NAS, Wilber, who served as Squadron executive officer for the past 15 months, relieved Cmdr. Forrest C. Ozburn, Jr., who has been assigned navigator of the nuclear powered flat-top USS Enterprise. The promotion of Cmdr. Wilber elevated Cmdr. Frederick G. Fellows to Squadron executive officer.

Comptroller Named

A 26-year-old Parkersburg, W. Va. native, Edwin B. Townsend III, has been named comptroller of Virginia Beach General Hospital. Townsend, who formerly served as internal auditor for Norfolk General Hospital, will supervise all fiscal affairs at Virginia Beach General Hospital.

Man, 72, Sentenced

A Circuit Court jury has found 72-year-old James H. White of Creeds guilty of simple assault of Virginia Beach police Sgt. Robert E. Sparrow. White had been charged with attempted murder of Sparrow last Oct. 14 by use of a .45 caliber pistol as Sparrow was investigating reports of White possibly having illegal whiskey in his auto. The jury's verdict resulted in White being fined $500 and receiving a six months jail sentence. Judge Paul W. Ackiss continued a motion by defense attorney H. Leslie Lam to set the verdict aside.

Buildings Can't Be Used

Several months of controversy over the use of three buildings on Independence Boulevard have ended with developer Lee A. Gifford being found guilty of violating city zoning ordinances. Members of the Lake Smith Terrace civic league contended Gifford was attempting to commercialize the residential zoned region by use of a barn for storage purposes, one building as a real estate office, with another building being used as a project development office. Members of the city's Zoning Board of Appeals, in rendering the decision, have not as yet indicated the exact date Gifford must cease making such use of the buildings.

Land Trial Set

Peter Edward Land is scheduled to enter Virginia Beach Circuit Court today on charges of murder and rape. Police have accused Land, 29, in the death of Mrs. Carol J. Dorschel last December. The body of the 25-year-old woman was found in a ditch near London Bridge, a short distance from her Byrd Lane home, one week after she was reported missing from her job at the Pine Tree Inn. Medical examiners ruled she had been sexually assaulted and died as the result of manual strangulation. Land was arrested after a grand jury indicted him following an intensive six week around the clock investigation by police.

Refreshments were served by the Lodge's Ladies Auxiliary and dancing completed the festivities.

'Show-Off' Continues

Currently playing at Wedgewood Theatre, Williamsburg, is George Kelly's comedy "The Show-Off" which became the outstanding comedy success of its time when it was first presented in New York in 1924, where it ran for two years on Broadway while half a dozen road companies toured it across the country.

The Wedgewood production of "The Show-Off" features Paul Iddings in the role of the comically intolerable boaster, and pitted against him is Walthall Hamilton as an opinionated homespun momma who talks as much as the show-off, but feels she has more to say. Also in the cast are Sherri Reid, Ty and Jeffryn Stephens, Leroy McFarland, Roby Brown, Ron Reid, and Bob Hutchinson.

"The Show-Off" will play through April 13, Wednesday through Saturday.

FIRESIDE 1550

by Al Bishop WVAB Radio

The Mamas & Papas were an era, just as much so as Benny Goodman or Glenn Miller. Only time will tell if that era will last, of course, but while it's here it's made it's impact felt on the record buyers and radio listeners.

Since 1965 - when it really happened to the foursome-The Mamas & Papas have taken us on some exciting musical trips. From "California Dreaming" to "Monday, Monday", from "Creeque Alley" to "I Saw Her Again Last Night", the group's impecable phrasing and harmony brought us some pleasing notes at time when discord seemed to be the only thing.

Michelle & John, Cass & Denny are the Mamas & Papas and what a show they give us...on stage, on TV, and in this album "Farewell To The First Golden Era" is the title because the group is now going to try other ways of reaching us. They'll try the Europe route, the travel, the going of separate ways for a while, to bring what they feel is freshness in their thinking. If they can top the excellance of the songs in this Dunhill album then, someday, we'll be writing about "The Second Golden Era" of The Mamas & Papas.

Rezoning For Rudee Heads List

The rezoning of several parcels of property on Lake Rudee in the Rudee Inlet-Harbor Point area for the construction of a 200-room motel and docking and marina facilities will highlight the regular meeting of the City Planning Commission Tuesday, April 9, at 2 p.m., in the new Municipal Court building.

The Lighthouse Corporation is seeking the zoning changes for the property off General Booth Boulevard.

In addition more than 700 apartment units and nearly 100 townhouses will be discussed on several different requests. The largest apartment complex would be 346 new apartments adjacent to the existing Regency apartments. The townhouses are in the Arrowhead section.

Changes of zoning for two churches and three gas stations will also be heard. Twenty-four items are on the published docket.

Church Plans Special Services

Evangelistic services will be held at the Good News Baptist Church April 7-17.

Pastor Waldo Grandstaff will speak at 7:30 each evening. The public is invited and a nursery will be provided.

Cindy Domme Is Tri-Hi-Y State Pres.

Last weekend, March 23-24, Cindy Domme attended the state Tri-Hi-Y convention at Lake Erie as the representative of Fidelis Tri-Hi-Y at Kempsville High, and was elected the new state Tri-Hi-Y president.

At KHS, Cindy is a homeroom representative to the S. C.A. She was a cast member in "Seven Keys to Baldpate," presented at the high school earlier this year.

Understanding Is Topic For Christian Scientist

A child's insistence on drawing what he knows is true instead of what his eyes see was used by a Christian Science lecturer here Tuesday to illustrate a basic religious point--that spiritual understanding can help men break down material limitations.

Mrs. Gertrude E. Velguth, C.S., of Flint, Michigan, speaking to an audience in Virginia Beach Civic Center, related an experience she'd had while teaching art in the Michigan school system. A small boy had drawn a train on tracks that were wide and straight all the way.

When she pointed out that this wasn't what the eye saw, the child replied that anyone knew train tracks "really couldn't come together...I'm painting them like they really are. Then the train can go all the way!"

If we want to give our talents full play, prove our capabilities, develop our full potential, we must learn not to accept the evidence of the physical senses as final, anymore than we accept optical illusions as final, Mrs. Velguth declared.

Spiritual sense shows reality to be spiritual, not physical, or material, she said, and added that we understand and see spiritual reality--God and God's creation--through spiritual sense alone.

Mrs. Velguth, a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, is on a speaking tour through the United States and Canada. Her appearance here was sponsored by First Church Of Christ, Scientist, Virginia Beach.

Tag Lines Stay Busy

"I thought Monday was the last day to buy the 1968 licenses, the way the lines looked when we came in," said Mrs. Betty Schmidt, one of the employees at Kellam-Eaton Insurance Co. on Pacific Avenue where the state tags are being sold.

She added that the sales have been steady since March 15 and that sales in all places where licenses are being sold in Virginia Beach are ahead of last year sales. Monday, however, was near to payday for many, thus the sharp increase, according to Mrs. Schmidt.

"Maybe so many of them won't wait until the last minute this year," she said.

In the past the line has been known to stretch a half block down Pacific Avenue on the last day. That last day, incidentally, is April 15, the same day the federal income tax is due.

U.S. Is Misinformed Says Ambassador

By Carolyn McAllen
Travel Editor

A preview of Austria was given the Mid-Atlantic Chapter of the Society of American Travel Writers, meeting at the Cavalier, by Dr. Ernst Lemberger, Austrian ambassador to the United States.

The Mid-Atlantic Chapter, which met here last weekend, along with about 400 other members of the National Society of American Travel Writers, will be guests of Austria for a 3-day tour of that country next October.

Dr. Lemberger, who was introduced by Robert Kane, travel editor of Cue magazine and national president of the Society, began by saying that the image of Austria in the United States is not complete. "Americans think of Austria as the Spanish Riding School, 'The Sound of Music' and good food."

"Austria is a highly industrial country," he said, adding that it has both steel mills and oil.

The Austrian impression of the United States, Dr. Lemberger commented, is one of "skyscrapers, factories, bridges, airplanes and steel mills."

He pointed out that Austria has fully recovered from World War II and is now independent of outside aid. "Without American help and the Marshall Plan we would not be where we are now," he said. "But when we had finished rebuilding, we told the U.S. we did not need any more money."

About Austrian food he said, "Austrian food is really Italian, French and German. We were just smart enough to pick the best of it."

Music, Dr. Lemberger said, made Austria famous. He said Austria is concentrating on cultural aims rather than military or political.

Kermit Holt, travel editor of the "Chicago Tribune" and outgoing Society president, was presented with the Sir George Percy Travel Award by U.S. District Judge Richard B. Kellam on behalf of the city.

According to history, Sir George Percy was the first travel writer in America. He recorded his explorations of this area when he came ashore at Cape Henry in 1607 as well as his landing at "Cape Comfort," in his journal he wrote, "The nine and twentieth day we set up a crosse at Chesopeoc Bay and named the place Cape Henry."

The current symbol of office of the Society of American Travel Writers, as suggested by Judge Kellam some years ago, is a shallop, or longboat, such as the one Percy came ashore in.

The Mid-Atlantic chapter extends from Pennsylvania through Virginia. President of the chapter is Mrs. Carolyn Bennett Patterson, travel editor of "National Geographic Magazine." About 55 travel writers attended the two-day meeting. The dinner Saturday night was hosted by the Ocean Hiway Association.

Local persons at the dinner included Judge and Mrs. Kellam, Chuck Oliver, Russell Stanger, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Musick, Mr. and Mrs. William Kellam, John Griffin, Curtis Brooks of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce and R.K.T. Larson, retired managing editor of "The Virginian-Pilot" and only honorary member of the Society.

Ambassador Ernst Lemberger addresses the conference at the Cavalier Hotel.

Conference Will Plan Promotion

A more effective program to advertise and promote travel to the coastal area served by the 995-mile, North-South Ocean Hiway will be the objective of the 34th Annual Ocean Hiway Association Conference at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel at Norfolk, April 21-23.

The three day Conference will focus attention on how to successfully promote travel by the state, the community and the individual attraction. Members of the Ocean Hiway Association will determine the Association's travel promotion program for the coming year.

More than 200 members representing seven states are expected to attend the meeting.

Founded in 1935, the Ocean Hiway Association is the oldest organization of its type in the United States.

Warren Hull Joins Welk In Cancer Fight

Warren Hull, radio and television personality of "Strike It Rich" fame, and Lawrence Welk, popular bandleader and television entertainer, have more in common than show business. Both are volunteers for the American Cancer Society.

Hull, who resides at Virginia Beach, is the Society's 1968 Cancer Crusade Chairman in Virginia and Welk is the National Chairman of the Society's educational and fund-raising Crusade this April.

Hull recently recorded an engaging and informal 15-minute interview with Welk which has been distributed to radio stations throughout the country. The record also features a 15-minute musical program starring Welk and his Champagne Music Makers.

Virginia radio stations will receive a special record, "Warren Hull and His ACS Friends," which includes brief interviews with Welk, William Gargan, well-known actor who lost his voice to cancer and learned to speak again; Dr. Susan J. Mellette, a research scientist at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond; and two Virginia housewives who have had personal experience with cancer, Mrs. O.B. Able of Richmond and Mrs. Thomas Ellis of Virginia Beach.

Hull has filmed two messages about the Cancer Crusade which will be carried by ten Virginia television stations during the month of April. The color television spots were produced through the cooperation of WTAR-TV and WVEC-TV in Norfolk.

On Saturday, March 30, over ABC-TV, Welk will "kick-off" the 1968 Cancer Crusade with a special show. At that time a number of entertainers and actors will join him in appealing to the public to support the American Cancer Society by knowing cancer's warning signals and by making a generous contribution.

Final Plans Authorized For Center

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of Virginia Wesleyan College has authorized architects to proceed with final plans and specifications for a new science center at the college.

College officials previously announced plans to begin construction on the science center prior to Jan. 1, 1969. The construction schedule calls for completion of the $1,000,000 facility in the summer of 1970.

The science center is one project in Phase II of Virginia Wesleyan's long-range development program. The priority project, a $1,700,000 library, is now under construction. Other projects in the $3,000,000 Second Phase are a service building to house the college's central kitchen and other support facilities and the completion of payment on the 300 acres of land.

The Decision—4 Days Later

In the past four days since President Johnson's announcement that he will not run again, words like "shocked," "surprised," "stunned" and similiar synonyms have become commonplace. We were all shaken from out of lethargy by the announcement.

Obviously reassessment of the nominees-to-be of both parties is important. Those already in the field in either party are not necessarily the nominees. It's still a long way to convention time. And it is a long campaign trail ahead before election day.

The path to be taken in political circles is not clear at present. Surely it will be soon, and uiltimately the people will nominate and elect their choice.

Mr. Johnson's decision should not be regarded lightly, and it should be accepted at face value. Regardless of the disparaging remarks that have been or will be made about his withdrawal, we must consider this as a sincere move of a dedicated man who believes deeply in his convictions and his country. His complete reasons for withdrawing may never be known, but the fact remains that he has.

Now we hope that everyone will rally behind the president to bring about an honorable end to the horrible war in Vietnam. Our country has not been united in its efforts of late. Perhaps Mr. Johnson's "shock treatment" will serve to unify us again.

For five years the President has done his duty as he has seen it. Now he has added another duty, and we hope and pray that it will help bring about an end to the war. Regardless, however, we commend Mr. Johnson on his decision, and praise him for his continued efforts in our behalf.

One-Man, One-Vote

The one-man, one-vote rule has now filtered into all local governments by ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court. This less than momentous decision should not affect Virginia Beach, whose apportionment has been examined from every aspect in every court.

The so-called "seven-four" plan of our city government, with borough and at-large representation, has been officially recognized as effective and legal, at least until the next Council election, to meet the needs of the combined city and its many geographic and economic problems. We only hope that other cities and counties will be fortunate enough to prove their special problems under the new ruling.

The upheaval the ruling could cause in some areas is unbelievable and uncalled for, but it is the law of the land. Let us hope that some leniency and some human feeling is part of the cold hard ruling.

The Cancer Crusade

Sometime during this month, there will be another knock on your door or another ring of your doorbell. The caller may be a stranger or a neighbor, but in either case he or she will be a volunteer of the American Cancer Society, prepared to give you life-saving information as well as to seek your support.

The volunteer will be one of two million who each year in April goes out on the "Cancer Crusade," and who in a very real way is a symbol of America's miracle.

The name of the miracle is "voluntarism," which has been a part of our nation and its heritage since its earliest days. Fortunately, when the chips were down, man has always been quick to help his fellow man.

Most of the old-fashioned diseases of yesteryear have been conquered by vaccines or treatment of one kind or another. This is not so with the so-called "degenerative" diseases, many of which still puzzle medical science. Perhaps the most mysterious and tragic of them all is cancer and the many forms it takes. Research has come a long way on the road to treatment of cancer but its fundamental cause still remains to be unraveled. And that cause may be just around the next medical corner.

Even so, much has been done to save lives. There are some 200,000 Americans who will be saved this year alone from cancer, as thousands have been in the past. Another 100,000 will not be saved. Diagnosis and treatment will come too late for the known methods.

So read the life-saving information the volunteer brings...then give to the worthy cause so that someday cancer will be conquered.

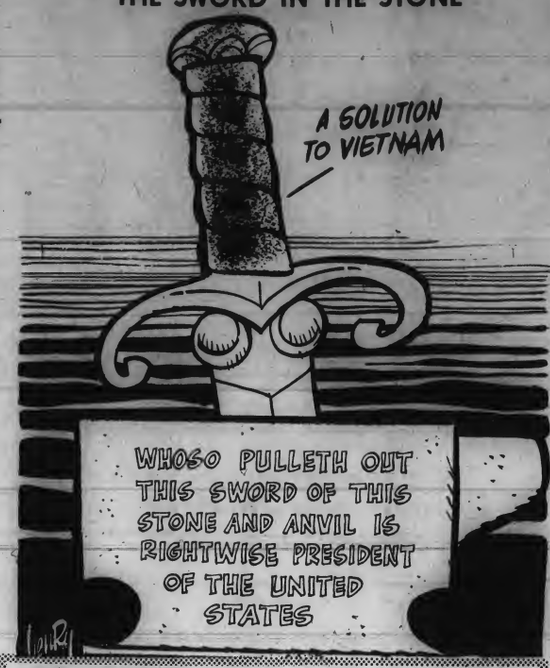

No School Cuts

There is some talk about cutting the school budget for next year as a means of reducing the expenditures of the city and possibly reducing the size of the tax hike. We certainly hope this does not happen.

Virginia Beach has an excellent school system, marked by its progressiveness. And progress costs money. The citizens of our city realize this. They recently voted a $14.5 school bond issue. We must not allow this progress to slip backward.

The only way to handle the situation is to cut salaries. And that is a mistake. These professional educators have never received what they deserve because of other municipal needs. Now is not the time to begin, as Virginia Beach attempts to grow up and mature. If cuts need to be made, education is not the place.

THE SWORD IN THE STONE

Guest Editorial

Two Political Maestros

The following editorial appeared in the RICHMOND TIMES-DISPATCH recently, and is a critical analysis of the 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly just ended.

A comparison of the truly impressive example of leadership with the General Assembly just given by Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr., and the similar example given four decades ago by Gov. Harry F. Byrd, is illuminating. These two Governors have provided us with the greatest examples of such leadership and influence in the modern history of Virginia.

It may not be fully realized just how successful Governor Godwin has been with the legislative sessions of 1966 and 1968. Exactly one relatively minor recommendation of his two years ago was not fully put into effect. This was his suggestion that an alcoholic percentage of .10 in the blood be considered evidence of drunk driving. The lawmakers were unwilling to go that far, and they made any percentage between .10 and .15 evidence of "impaired" driving. The Governor got everything else he asked for in 1966, including the all-important sales tax, as well as everything he asked for in 1968.

Three Tax Increases

At the recent session, three relatively minor taxes were imposed, contrary to the Governor's general statement in opposition to any tax increases. These were the $1 emplaning tax at airports, the 50-cents-a-quart tax on liquor destined for resale in mixed drinks, and the 10 cents per $100 recordation tax on deeds. These levies went counter to the Governor's no-tax doctrine, but he made no effort to defeat them.

This record is truly remarkable when it is realized that Governor Godwin broke new ground in several respects. For example, he departed from the "organization's" long-cherished allegiance to so-called "pay-as-you-go" by supporting an $81 million bond issue, subject to approval by the people.

He also set the stage for a sweeping rewriting of the Virginia Constitution. A special session will meet next February to deal with proposals for revision to be presented by the 11-man commission named by Mr. Godwin for the purpose. The commission is ably headed by former Gov. Albertis Harrison.

These two far-reaching measures, combined with the sales tax passed two years previously, have taken Virginia into a new era. The old Commonwealth, which had been laggard for far too long in such fields as education, health, highways and so on, is getting into a position to realize its true potential.

Godwin's Leadership

For much of this we can thank Mills Godwin. He is the man who gave the leadership in this crucial period, just as Gov. Lindsay Almond gave the leadership needed at the critical moment to get the Commonwealth out of the bog of "massive resistance." But for these two men, Virginia would be in a sad state today.

Gov. Harry Byrd took office in 1926, at age 38, when Virginia was likewise in the doldrums. The ultra-conservative Thomas S. Martin machine had been dominant for a generation, prior to Senator Martin's death in 1919. In the years since 1919 there had been Governors Westmoreland Davis and E. Lee Trinkle--the former anti-machine, and hence faced with a hostile General Assembly, and the latter carrying on, more or less, in the Martin tradition.

Young Harry Byrd had run for Governor in 1925 against the more progressive G. Walter Mapp, on a platform that said little. Hardly anybody was aware that Mr. Byrd intended to upset the apple cart in so many ways, once he got into office. In fact, his campaign declarations were so platitudinous that the late Robert B. Tunstall, a prominent lawyer, asked derisively why Byrd didn't include the Lord's Prayer and the Ten Commandments in his platform.

But once the Winchester apple grower was inaugurated, things began to happen. He realized that the "organization" was in danger of losing control, unless it demonstrated a receptivity to new ideas, and an ability to put them into effect. So Harry Byrd took the lead in modernizing the state government.

Incredibly, he abolished 99 surplus commissioners of the revenue at a single stroke by getting a bill through the General Assembly liquidating these powerful politicians. A similar bill had been introduced two years before, and had been defeated. But when the Byrd bill came up in 1926, it passed the Senate unanimously, and there were only eight votes against it in the House!

Governor Byrd proposed a survey by outside experts of the state government, with its nearly 100 bureaus, boards and departments, many of them independent of each other and of the Governor. He overhauled the tax system, abolished a number of useless offices, bureaus and commissions, and shook up things generally.

Among the officeholders to get the ax was the State Dairy and Food Commissioner. He had been appointed by Governor Trinkle on the recommendation of U.S. Sen. Claude A. Swanson and former Gov. Henry Carter Stuart. But instead of waiting for the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, which was making the survey of the state government, to declare the office superfluous, Harry Byrd recommended that it be abolished at once. The General Assembly complied.

The 'Short Ballot'

Both branches of the legislature approved by tremendous majorities the Governor's proposal that the "short ballot" be introduced, and that the number of elective holders of state-wide office be reduced from seven to three. This required a constitutional amendment. The necessary subsequent steps were taken under Byrd's leadership at the session of 1928, and then in the referendum in June of that year.

Governor Byrd also requested in 1926 that he be authorized by the lawmakers to appoint a commission to propose further revision of the Constitution. He got the authorization, and appointed Chief Justice Robert R. Prentis of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals as commission chairman. This body was similar to the one recently named by Governor Godwin to propose constitutional changes.

The Prentis commission reported to the session of 1927. So did the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, on its survey of the state government. The bureau's proposals were screened by a Virginia commission, headed by William T. Reed, prominent tobacco manufacturer.

The result of all this was that the multitudinous agencies at the seat of government were regrouped into 12 departments. Several useless offices were abolished. Of special importance was the revision of the state's antique financial system, which the New York bureau said was the result of "years of patchwork and political maneuvering." Establishment of an up-to-date Department of Taxation was another far-reaching step. It was estimated that $300,000 could be saved annually in the state's operating costs--a quite substantial sum in those days.

Byrd and the Little Man

In addition to making a national reputation as a promoter of simplification and economy in government, Virginia's youthful executive also was regarded at that time as a courageous friend of the "little man." In addition, he got through the first strong anti-lynching bill adopted in any state.

His reputation as a defender of the average citizen was the result of encounters he had with telephone and oil companies over telephone rates and gasoline prices. He won both fights.

The success with which Governor Byrd handled so many difficult and controversial matters before the General Assembly was in many ways similar to the remarkable record made by Governor Godwin at the sessions of 1966 and 1968.

Governor Godwin appears to be the foremost political maestro to sit in the Governor's office since Governor Byrd's time. The great question is what he will do when his term expires less than two years hence. He will be only 55 years old. Virginia cannot afford to lose the public services of so able and effective a leader.

SUN SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Sure it's pretty," he said impatiently, "but I'd rather take off my shoes and walk through the money it cost me. The feel of hundred dollar bills between my toes would feel better than this lousy nylon. Besides that, it's full of static electricity."

"You don't have one bit of romance in your soul," she said. "I've wanted this carpet for a long time."

"The only romance that concerns me right now is the one I have going with that guy at the bank that I had to sweet talk to get enough money to buy it," he muttered.

"Where do you think you are going?" she screamed as he headed for an easy chair in the living room.

"To sit in that chair over there and contemplate my wallet."

"Well, for crying out loud," she said, "take off your shoes before you walk in there on that new carpet."

"You've got to be kidding," he said. "For two years you've been bugging me once a day and twice on Sunday to buy carpet. Now we get it, and I can't walk on it with my shoes on."

"It's a light color, and I'm trying to keep it clean."

"Yes, I know it's a light color and it's going to be hard to keep clean. I remember telling you that in the store," he said. "But you said that didn't make any difference."

Luxury By The Yard

"I just try to do my best to make a nice home for you," she sniffed.

"Sure, so nice a home that I can't walk into my own living room with my shoes on," he yelled. "For two solid years you didn't like to go in the living room and dining room because you didn't have carpet on the beautiful parquet floors that cost a fortune. Now those rooms are going to be shrines. Do I have to talk softly in there?"

"Of course not," she said sweetly. "But I am keeping everybody out of there, including the kids, except when company comes."

"We did have carpet installed in the hall and up the steps, didn't we?" he asked.

"You know we did," she said.

"Oh, yes, there it is under all the plastic, paper and cloth. Don't tell me. That's to keep it clean."

"Right," she answered. "And remember to wipe your feet carefully when you come in. I'm making a list of rules for all of us to follow. Read them carefully."

"Fine," he said, "but the kids can't read yet."

"They'll get the message one way or another," she said.

He sat down in the cluttered family room and jumped up quickly. He had sat on a non-flexible doll. "Is it all right if I sit in here on this broken down old sofa-bed with the many stains and the upholstery that's seen better days?"

"Of course," she said. "But not after tonight. The upholsterer is coming tomorrow to get it to recover it. And then I've ordered a slipcover for it when it gets back."

"What?" he screamed. "New upholstery and a slipcover too?"

"Certainly," she said indignantly. "I'd be very upset if anything gets on the new upholstery."

"Then I suppose you'll put an old sheet on top of the new slipcover to keep it from getting dirty."

"Of course," she said. "Incidentally one of the kitchen chairs is torn and one of the legs is coming off the table. I think we need a new set. I saw one advertised today."

He took his shoes off and ran up the carpeted stairs very carefully and locked himself in the bedroom for awhile. He was last heard muttering, "Let's see now, if I don't eat lunch for three years, five months and six days, maybe I can pay for it all....But then again....."

USS Hope Spreads Goodwill

"Working with those people made me really feel I had found my purpose in life," Dr. Richard Greene, a Richmond oral surgeon who spent two months aboard the USS Hope, told members of the Princess Anne-Virginia Beach Junior Woman's Club Tuesday night.

The USS Hope, a reconditioned Navy hospital ship, is a project of junior clubs of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs. Dr. Greene was introduced by Dr. John Bowman.

The USS Hope, Dr. Greene said, has three major purposes: to create goodwill for the United States, to teach modern medical and dental techniques to host medical personnel and to help feed the undernourished in countries visited. Hope stands for "Health Opportunities for People Everywhere."

He pointed out that people are treated for teaching purposes only, that the ship's goal is to train the medical people of the native country to treat their own patients with modern methods.

"They are not stupid, but they have not been exposed to modern technology."

The USS Hope, which receives no help from the federal government, was anchored at Nicaragua during the time (May to July 1966) Dr. Greene was aboard.

He said that the average yearly income in Nicaragua is $235 and that the life expectancy is 35 years. Medical staff from the USS Hope also taught three days a week at the University of Nicaragua.

"One hospital we visited could only perform three operations a day because of a shortage of linens and instruments," Dr. Greene said. "There were no washing machines or sterilizers. Linens and instruments had to be boiled in pots, then they were put outside to dry." After the medical team thoroughly scrubbed the hospital, the post-operative infection rate dropped from 75 to 10% and has remained down since.

The USS Hope now has requests from 50 countries for visits. "I truly believe that there is no better goodwill ambassador than Project Hope," Dr. Greene said. "People in Nicaragua told us that we were the first North Americans that had come to the country to give rather than take."

"You really feel you're serving mankind, and that's why I'm planning to return."

Designer Hat Fashions to Be Seen at Capes Tommorow

McConnell

Internationally-known hat designer Jack McConnell, who has shown his work in Europe, New York and the West Coast, will hold the last showing of his spring line at the Capes Beach and Cabana Club tomorrow night; to auction off his latest and newest spring designs.

Following cocktails and a buffet dinner, scheduled for 6 p.m. through 9 p.m., McConnell, who arrives here from San Francisco today, will commentate on his designs as they are paraded by models in black leotards--the better to entertain the gentlemen diners and the less to detract from McConnell's hats.

McConnell will start the bidding on his hats at cost, and the auction price above cost will go to the Capes Swim Team. The hat fashions can be bought directly off the ramp, with no ordering involved for the purchaser.

For more information, contact the Capes Beach and Cabana Club, Atlantic Avenue.

Designer Cooks Too...

Aside from designing fashionable millinary for the distaff side, Jack McConnell is also a chef of rare talent. One of his specialties, Braised Celery Hearts Roquefort, is on the menu for the buffet dinner preceding the showing of his hat fashions tomorrow night at the Capes Beach and Cabana Club.

Here are a couple of his favorite recipes, available even to the ladies who can't afford McConnell's head gear.

BRAISED CELERY HEARTS ROQUEFORT

If no "celery hearts" are available at your market, remove the celery tops from the fork up, reserving the tops for soups, stews, etc.

Halve the celery, and wash thoroughly under running water. Braise the stalks in chicken broth or bouilloin, until tender and slightly transparent. Remove to a shallow baking dish.

Brush with melted butter and crumble Roquefort cheese over the clery. Place under the broiler until slightly toasted.

Do not use salt!

EASY GAZPACHO

6 medium ripe tomatoes
6 medium onions
1 green bell pepper, seeds removed
2 medium cucumbers
2 stalks celery
1 carrot
Freshly ground black pepper and salt to taste

Finely chop the vegetables and cook, with 1 cup water, slowly for about an hour. Press the cooked vegetables through a sieve and season with salt and pepper. Add three tablespoons lemon juice and chill in the refrigerator.

Combine five tablespoons mayonnaise and one clove garlic that has been pressed through a sieve. Beat the mixture slowly into the chilled vegetables to make a thin cream soup.

Serve topped with finely minced pimento, unpeeled cucumber circles, tomato, green pepper and small fried croutons.

Status

the employed in Virginia are women....more qualified women are encouraged to be placed in jobs previously held by men. The decision concerning the future and direction of the committee was that there must be a lot of public relations work done to sell the idea of furthering the education of women. It was thought that women become typists, clerks, etc., because they still have the old-fashioned idea that these jobs are the only suitable for them. Women should be encouraged to go into other fields if they have the desire, aptitude and training. The committee must try to change the attitudes of women now working over a period of long-term indoctrination.

The luncheon speaker was Miss Guin Hall, deputy commissioner, New York State Department of Commerce. She is also chairman of the New York State Women's Council comprised of 60 women eminent in business, civic, educational and professional fields, appointed by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. She mentioned at the beginning that Gov. Rockefeller appointed the first commission on the Status of Women in the United States.

Even though New York has had an "equal pay for equal work" law since 1945, Miss Hall noted that "we must have the attitudes to go with the laws enacted." With equal rights, equal pay, women must accept equal responsibilities. Women who voted in the last national election of those registered numbered only 58.9%.

Miss Hall said that fewer women graduate from college... of those that do, only 1% are in engineering and 3% are physicians.

Women must understand why they want a job. If it is not necessary financially for a wife to work, she may be simply tired of listening to babytalk or she may be lonely at home by herself. These women may be looking for "something to fill a few empty hours." Still they must be realistic and know that an employer usually needs a more active, hard-working employee than someone who wants an easy, not very demanding job that will allow her to get home the same time her children arrive from school. In this case, some volunteer work might be the perfect solution to her situation and desires.

What will be the next steps for the Citizens' Committee? Miss Louise Bernard, chairman, predicted that this program could someday become the most powerful action committee for both women and men. Yes, there even might be a Citizens' Committee of the Status of Men in Virginia in the near future!

To enjoy garden work, put on a wide hat and gloves-hold a little trowel in one hand-and tell the man where to dig.

A mother-daughter pattern was one of the highlights at the Tidewater Council's "Cotton Kaleidoscope of Fashion" show, Tuesday morning at Pembroke Mall.

Festival Chairmen Announced

The Cape Henry Women's Club has turned its thoughts to their upcoming Lotus Festival, scheduled for July 17-24. The Festival will open with a ball at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club, at which time the 1968 Lotus Queen will be crowned.

Mrs. Russell H. Cole, Lotus Festival chairman, was luncheon hostess recently for her committee when they met at her home to formulate plans for the Festival.

Mrs. Clarence Groceman is committee co-chairman and secretary, and Mrs. Arthur B. James is treasurer.

Committee sub-chairmen are: Mrs. George Webber, tickets; Mrs. D. E. Holland, Mrs. C. Earl Evans, and Mrs. H. E. Hoskins, Queen contest; Mrs. B. Nall Fallwell and Mrs. James L. Craig, Jr., program book; Mrs. V. Alfred Etheridge, brochures; Mrs. E. Grant Keene, band concerts; Mrs. C. E. Upton, Jr., ball decoration; Mrs. E. E. Cox, lotus garden hostesses; Mrs. M. Clyde Whitehead, telephone; and Mrs. Richard L. Counselman, publicity.

Climbers

Pole beans grow on vines which must be trained to climb poles set for them. Sometimes they need "a leg up" their poles. Then they must always be wrapped clockwise; wound counterclockwise they just slide down and lie there.

Schedule

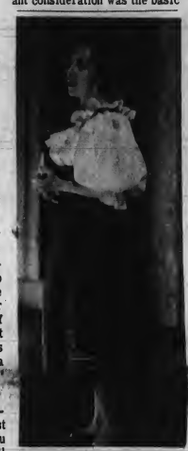

(Contin. from p. 6)

"It was like going home," she commented with a smile. "I was vice president of the P.T.A. and my children went there."

Teamwork seems to be the keynote to the smooth running of the Smith household. Everyone pitches in to help. Other members of the family are Randy, 19, Ricky, 15, and Debby, 13.

As for her husband, Smith's answer is, "Dorothy is teaching and singing and seems to thrive on it. She wanted to see what she could do with her talents and attain a sense of self-fulfillment. She likes what she's doing so I'm for it, as long as she doesn't go at a pace that will harm her health."

One other answer to her success is that Dorothy Smith just does not "lose her cool." "You can't sing if you don't feel well and if you have too many pressing problems."

Military Wives' Club Notes

By Mary Wright

Spring fashions were the news Tuesday morning when Navy enlisted wives from all over the Tidewater area attended a special showing of "sun" clothes at Pembroke Mall's Sears and Roebuck.

The "Cotton Kaleidoscope of Fashion" show, jointly sponsored by McCalls Patterns and the National Cotton Council at Memphis, featured--appropriately enough--dresses and sports clothes for warm temperatures made from McCalls patterns in a variety of cotton fabrics: pique, denim, hopsacking, to name a few.

Commentating on the show was Miss Barbara Lieuwen, a representative from McCalls New York office. She pointed out that most of the hats complementing the costumes were also made by McCalls patterns--following a large, floppy style borrowed directly from the teen-age world of fashion.

Miss Lieuwen explained that even though many of the patterns were cut shorter than a woman with a fuller figure would wear her skirts, the important consideration was the basic silhouette of the pattern, not the hemline.

Most of the designs were conservative, in spite of the hemline, and completely adaptable to a mature woman's wardrobe. There were several examples of good British tailoring, as far removed from Carnaby Street as Haight-Ashbury from the Empress of China. In one particularly flattering skirt-and-jacket combination, with the jacket cut well below the hip bone, a small tattersall check was used: complimentary even to a figure gone over the hill--which is to say, past 15.

At the conclusion of the show, Mrs. James Latham, NWCA area council president, announced that a third of the profits from the annual spring tour (scheduled this year for April 24) of the historic officers quarters at the Norfolk Naval Station will be donated to the Council, to be used for military dependents.

The tour will be conducted between the hours of 9 and 2:30 p.m., and again between 6:30 and 9:30 p.m. The proceeds will be divided between the Norfolk Museum, a Navy-Marine and Coast Guard organization and NWCA.

At Little Creek

Wednesday, the Amphibious Force Officers' Wives Club will meet at the base Officers' Club for their monthly luncheon. Mrs. Jackson Shelly of the Virginia Beach Association for Research and Enlightenment will speak to the wives on "The Physic Nature of Man."

The social hour begins at 11 a.m., with the luncheon following at noon.

CPO Wives

Little Creek Chief Petty Officers' Wives will get together for a social meeting and a white elephant sale Monday, [illegible] at the Little Creek CPO Club, beginning at 8 p.m.

The refreshments committee includes: Margo Palmer, Marge Price, Kay Nelson and Frances Neeson.

Bonnie and Clyde Hit the Beach

The winning Bonnie and Clyde couple were Bonnie Stringfellow and Bobbi Kinsey.

The Bonnie and Clyde Craze hit Virginia Beach in full force last Saturday when both the Princess Anne Country Club and Bow Creek Country Club scheduled Bonnie and Clyde parties.

The Princess Anne party featured "bath tub gin" complete with bath tub and a vintage 1935 getaway car. Guests were "robbed" by the Taylor Johnsons who collected their "loot" in a table cloth.

From the attire of the men at the party, it looked like they had been saving double-breasted suits for years, along with extra-wide necktles.

Incidentally, it looks like a Bonnie and Clyde night at Monday's Academy Award presentations, too. Women at the event have been warned not to wear mini skirts this year.

Bonnie and Clyde (the Taylor Johnsons) held up members at the Princess Anne Country Club.

Rotary Wives Will Have Busy Visit

The Rotarians' wives will not suffer from neglect when the Rotary District 760 conference is held at The Cavalier this weekend.

Mrs. Robert D. Wilson and Mrs. L. Saturday morning transportation will be arranged to Pembroke Mall, the Adam Thoroughgood house, Seashore State Park and Norfolk Azalea Gardens. At 3 p.m. there will be a fashion show featuring styles from the Florence Wilson Shop. That night there will be a banquet, followed by dancing.

According to Mrs. Wilson, the ladies will play bridge on the south porch of The Cavalier during registration on Friday morning. In the afternoon there will be a coffee with Mr. Zodiac, an astrologist. They will join their husbands for a buffet dinner.

Other members of the hostess committee are Mrs. T. Roy Grubbs, wife of the district governor; Mrs. George H. Burton, Mrs. Joseph B. Wood, Mrs. Andre Evans, Mrs. P.E. Berry, Mrs. John A. Women Need New Outlook

By Carolyn Owens

What are the most urgent needs of women in Virginia... and what should be done about them?

The First Statewide Conference of the Citizens' Committee on the Status of Women in Virginia met in Richmond at the Jefferson last Saturday, March 30 to find some answers to that very important question.

The 200 members-at-large in attendance represented 31 organizations....a total of 60,000 women throughout the state. The keynote address by Mrs. A. Paul Hartz of Waverly carried a thought-provoking message since she was a member of the original Governor's Commission in 1965 on the Legal Status Committee. Mrs. Hartz noted that the Governor's Commission was not re-appointed after it completed its report a year later.

Since Virginia is one of only four states which has no commission sanctioned by the government, it is urgent that we continue as a citizens' committee, she said. Mrs. Hartz added, "Women are victims of lower salaries and often prejudice. Salaries are most important to those women who must support their families as the head of the household. The recent Civil Rights Act will soon, we hope, correct this, as not only race must be considered now....but also sex."

Even though women as a minority group must have an "enforced excellence," we are now regarded as the tougher sex due to our prolonged years. The average woman returns to work in her early 30's after her last child is born, and faces at least 30 years in a salaried position. "There are no absolutes; the working mother may have either the most resourceful or the most delinquent children on the block. But the same may be said about the mothers who remain at home," Mrs. Hartz continued.

Who are the volunteers? Where are they? Dr. Laura Harper, Dean of Home Economics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, spoke about volunteerism...the basis of progress. "Volunteer organizations are particularly American," Dr. Harper said, adding that "if you want to study voluntary effort, look at the rural environment....this is where it originated." The first step in solving the above questions will be to devise a questionnaire from which the committee can develop a census of volunteers directory. Women must be convinced that through volunteer services they can definitely contribute a great deal of influence in any and all fields.

Dr. Harper mentioned that "one of the most deterring attitudes among the young women with whom she works directly is that they have preconceived ideas about which areas they should not study... mathematics, chemistry, physics, engineering to mention a few. This is a limiting and harmful attitude."

There was a choice of six workshops to attend: education, employment, health, home and community, legal status, and minority groups. Our choice was the employment workshop lead by Randy Bruce, chairman of the sub-committee on employment, and four consultants....Miss Jeanne Allen, personnel officer, Henrico County; George Sandvige, director, Division of Vocational Education, State Department of Education; Miss Sarah Lawrence, Placement Supervisor, Virginia Employment Commission; and Miss Carolyn Marsh, personnel manager, Miller and Rhoads, Richmond.

The question to be considered for the session was what is the future and direction of the employment committee? Some of the points made for its continuation were that women returning to work after many years as homemakers must be retrained either institutionally or on-the-job...almost 40% of

McAllen's ALLEY

By Carolyn McAllen

How About Desertion?

Last week in "Sun Spots" Editor Joe Lowenthal related the happenings of a weekend along with his two kids. I can outdo that--how about a week with three brats and no husband?

Saturday we celebrated with a picnic--after seeing Daddy off at 5:30 a.m. The day started out warm--started I say because the temperature dropped 15 degrees by noon. The girls at least had slacks on with sweaters. My son and I had on shorts and short sleeves. And we shivered.

First the five-year-old--the accident-prone one--fell off the monkey bars at Redwing Park on her head. Then, not getting the proper sympathy, she managed to scrape an old scab off her arm. It was a relief to pack up and go home to my warm house.

Not having learned my lesson, we decided to go to the Norfolk zoo on Sunday. Everything was great until the four-year-old followed one path while his six-year-old sister took off in the opposite direction. The younger one was found petting a llama through the fence. The older one, after some extensive searching, was discovered happily gazing at a boa constrictor.

Using my best psychology teachings, I bribed them into going home with the promise of Slurpees for all. It got them to the car, but then they screamed every time we passed a 7-11 store. And there are a lot of them between Layfayette Park and Kings Grant.

I stopped at the store only two blocks from home in hopes of avoiding spills. No such luck. The four-year-old dumped his on his two sisters. Don't ask me how he managed to get it on both, but he did.

Peace was re-established and everything was fine until Monday afternoon when we discovered that the five-year-old had told her kindergarten teacher that her father had left home and she didn't know where he had gone or when he would be back. There's no telling what kind of questions I'll have to answer before Daddy returns.

Her Schedule Planned a Year in Advance

By Carolyn McAllen

Although she has her calendar marked through next December, Dorothy (Mrs. Rhody) Smith can't see anything unusual about her busy schedule.

Among other things, she is a fourth grade teacher at Kempsville Meadows School, is soloist for the choir at Royster Memorial Presbyterian Church in Norfolk, performs regularly in Norfolk Savoyards Ltd. productions and is raising a family of five. Her husband is sales supervisor for Kraft Foods Co.

She walks to school each day "if the weather is good, it's a half mile each way." She also is taking yoga lessons. "There's more to it than just exercise," she says. "I started taking lessons in October. I can stand on my shoulders about five minutes now, but not on my head yet. It makes you feel good."

Right now she is involved with the presentation of "St. Matthew's Passion" which Royster Memorial and First Lutheran are performing together. It has already been done at First Lutheran and is now scheduled for Royster Memorial.

In April she will sing at the coronation of the Azalea Queen during the Azalea Festival in Norfolk. Then she will perform in "Trial by Jury" before the Virginia Bar Association meeting in Norfolk in May.

Plans for June include a trip to Hawaii with her husband where they hope to be joined by their oldest son, Sgt. Rhody Smith Jr., who is now stationed in Vietnam.

July and August will be devoted to house cleaning said Mrs. Smith. "We usually spend the whole summer cleaning house before school reopens."

"The Pirates of Penzance" by Gilbert and Sullivan is on the agenda for November as the Savoyards celebrates their fourth anniversary. By the time that is finished, Mrs. Smith will be right in the middle of rehearsing for special Christmas music.

She said that although the children have developed an appreciation for good music, only one has any musical talent. That is Sherryl, 18, who taught herself to play the piano after she took a dislike to the regular instruction book.

Mrs. Smith attended Virginia Intermont Junior College for two years before her marriage. It wasn't until 1961, however, with her children nearly grown that she decided to return to college for her degree.

Her decision to teach fourth grade rather than music was her own choice. "I had taught music for a year on an emergency certificate in Norfolk County. I enjoyed substituting in the classrooms so much more than music."

Because she had already substituted in first and third grades, "I knew I didn't want to teach second grade. The next offer was the fourth."

(See 'Schedule' p. 7)

Rose Hall Dates To Pre-Revolution

Rose Hall on Virginia Beach Boulevard is more than just a specialty shop "for the ladies and their daughters." It is also a historical site that's been on the Tidewater landscape since long before the Revolutionary War.

Mr. and Mrs. Collin Studds bought the house in 1954 and opened their dress shop in April, 1955. The Studds managed Rose Hall until the first of this year, when their daughter, Mrs. Mary Komoroski, and her husband, Ronald Komoroski, both in their early twenties, took over the management of the shop.

"We have reason to believe," said Mrs. Komoroski, "that the house was begun as early as 1693. And we have specific records showing that it was in existence, completed, in 1720."

According to Mrs. Komoroski, the original owner of the land on which Rose Hall was built had two daughters. The original Rose Hall, built for one daughter, no longer stands. The house built for the second daughter is the Virginia Beach Boulevard shop. When the Studds bought the house and restored it in 1954, they gave it the name of its sister house--Rose Hall.

The Studds family moved to Virginia Beach from Wisconsin in 1950, on Studds' retirement. The family began breeding dogs at their Birdneck Point home, and soon, "with between 30 and 40 dogs, the neighbors began to complain," explained Mrs. Komoroski. Her parents bought what is now Rose Hall strictly to house their animals.

"But Mother, like most women, had always wanted her own dress shop," said Mrs. Komoroski. "And it seemed a shame to have the old house and not really use it for something."

So in April, 1955, the Rose Hall Shop opened. Now, 13 years lated, the shop has extended to several new wings, and a branch store is planned.

"In that time, we've not really changed, just improved," said Mrs. Komoroski, "Most people seem to think that we are a terribly exclusive shop. But we're not. We have a tremendously wide range of prices."

About 60 per cent of all preschool age children suffer from malnutrition. UNICEF assists nutrition programs in Asia, Africa, Latin American, the Middle East.

Big Top Coming

Circuses may be on the wane, but they most assuredly are not dead. And that fact will be brought home to Virginia Beachers on Saturday, April 13, when The Famous Bartok Circus arrives at the Fairgrounds on First Colonial Road, at Hilltop, to put up their big top for two performances.

In "the show must go on" tradition, The Famous Bartok will exhibit as advertised--rain or shine--at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Tickets will be available at the circus box office on the circus grounds before each performance.

CYO Performs Lenten Drama

The Catholic Youth Organization of Star of the Sea Church will present two more performances of "The Crucifixion," a choral drama for Lent.

It will be performed at 8p.m. Sunday, April 7 at First Presbyterian Church and at 8 p.m. Good Friday, April 12 at Star of the Sea.

The play, directed by Mrs. Leslie Hartley, has already been presented at Eastern Shore Chapel. The public is invited.

An Urgent Message To Every HOME And PROPERTY OWNER
In The United States

A BILL will be voted upon soon by the House of Representatives that will grudgingly permit you, as a property owner, to sell your home to the person of your choice provided you do not employ a broker or agent to assist you and to act on your behalf..

YOU CAN BE SURE that even this limited concession to freedom of contract if you act on your own will be stripped away from you in the next so-called civil rights bill. This has been the usual "foot-in-the-door" process by which home owners have been deprived of their rights in a number of states.

WE BELIEVE this is a forced, not fair, housing bill that deprives you of a basic individual freedom—the right to dispose of your private property as you choose with all the professional help you need from a broker to get the best possible price in the quickest possible time.

WE URGE YOU, as a property owner, to defend your freedom of choice and your right to expert aid in probably the largest transaction of your life by writing a letter of protest to your Representative in the House.

NOW, READ the details of this legislation.

TITLE VIII of H.R. 2516, the forced housing bill recently passed by the Senate.

1. After Dec. 31, 1969, your freedom of choice in contracting for the sale or rental of your property to whomever you desire for whatever reason is drastically curtailed, and the federal government may force you to sell or rent to someone not of your choice if you use the facilities of any real estate broker, agent, or salesmen or if you, on your own, indicate in an advertisement a preference on the basis of race, religion, color, or national origin. In fact, you won't be permitted to use a real estate manager to find a summer tenant for your own home if you insist on your traditional freedom of choice.

2. If you persist in your freedom of choice in the face of alleged discrimination, the complainant may appeal for pressure by the Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development or institute a federal court suit against you which may award punitive damages up to $1,000 and court costs.

HERE IS WHAT OTHERS prominent in national life say about this oppressive bill:

Sen. Frank J. Lausche (D-Ohio): "Much has been said about the right of the buyer. What about the seller, who has thriftily accumulated enough money to buy a home? He has labored for it. It is his home. And the government tells him, 'We are going to direct and control you in how you may dispose of what you have earned through thrift and labor.'"

Columnist David Lawrence: "It effects directly more voters than many other questions which will be debated, and could cause the defeat of some Republicans and Democrats who will have voted in favor of the measure."

Columnist James J. Kilpatrick (on the original Senate version): "How in the name of a free country could any such federal act as this be seriously considered? The answer lies in the hysteria that has been fomented by the hair-trigger cause of 'civil rights' . . . We are getting closer and closer to a centralized police state which will regulate and supervise every detail of daily life."

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REAL ESTATE BOARDS IS NOT AGAINST EQUAL OPPORTUNITY IN HOUSING; many of its members are assisting families of minority groups to find suitable housing wherever they desire in cases where the owners also exercise their traditional freedom of choice in accepting such buyers or renters. But the National Association of Real Estate Boards protests vigorously any bill which would deny any property owner that freedom of choice in contracting as he sees fit.

WHAT CAN YOU DO ABOUT IT?

WRITE, WIRE, OR CALL your Congressman. Tell him what you think. Tell him that you don't want to be stripped of professional aid in the largest and most complicated transaction of your life. Caution him that race relations will be set back, not helped, by this flagrant forced housing bill. Urge him to reject Title VIII of H.R. 2516.

VIRGINIA BEACH LAWNS & GARDENS

Exclusive in the Sun — Edited by four turf and garden authorities living in Virginia Beach.

Formulas May Be Confusing

The use of three numbers on the label of a bag of fertilizer has caused many homeowners to believe that it consists of only three plant foods: Nitrogen, Phosphorus and Potassium (N-P-K).

This is true in the inexpensive fertilizers. However, the fact is other nutrients and elements are included in the lightweight modern plant foods. These other nutrients and elements are necessary for good growth and well being of grass as well as flowers and shrubs.

Just as one cannot build a stone wall without a variety of stones of various sizes, building high-quality turf requires the presence of certain nutrient elements. Thirty-six elements have been found in plant tissue. Fifteen elements are known to be required at all times (some in very small amounts!) They are listed below.

Major Elements: Carbon, Oxygen, Hydrogen, Nitrogen, Potassium and Phosphorus.

Secondary Elements: Sulfur, Calcium, Magnesium and Iron.

Minor Elements: Manganese, Copper, Zinc, Boron and Molybdenum.

Carbon, oxygen and hydrogen are supplied by air and water, present in both the atmosphere and the soil. For all practical purposes, the supply of these elements is inexhaustible. Carbon and oxygen are absorbed by the plant foliage as carbon dioxide through stomata (small openings) in the leaves. In the plant, cargon dioxide combines with water (by photosynthesis) to make simple carbohydrates. These carbohydrates combine with elements obtained from the soil to form chlorophyll (green color), oils, waxes and proteins.

The other three major nutrient elements--nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium (potash) are usually present in soils in amounts considerably below those required to support sustained plant growth. Indeed, all except for carbon, oxygen, and hydrogen, all nutrient elements must be supplied by natural soil minerals and organic matter or be added to the soil in the form of fertilizers, such as a 24-6-6 or 20-5-5 analysis.

Soils vary considerably from region to region in the amount and availability of nutrient elements present. Some soils contain enough of the various nutrients to support some plant growth; however, they rarely contain adequate amounts to meet the needs of improved ur. ass. Therefore, each homeowner should build up and constantly maintain adequate levels of available nutrients through timely applications of fertilizer, containing secondary and minor elements, such as sulphur and iron.

One measure of a soil is its base exchange capacity. This is the ability of its organic matter, clays and silt to absorb (hold) nutrient ions in the root zone until they can be utilized by plants. For this reason, sandy soils can store less of a nutrient reserve, while well granulated clay soils retain adequate supplies of minor elements and larger reserves of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium (N-P-K).

The end result of a nutrient deficiency, whatever the cause, is unsatisfactory turf. Such deficiencies include both real and apparent shortages of nutrient elements, which may be caused by:

1. Insufficient nutrient reserve present. This is most common on very sandy soils, under heavy rainfall.

2. Unavailable nutrients present. The nutrient element, although present in large quantities, is in an unavailable form for plant root uptake. This lack of availability may be caused by the element being tied up in undecomposed organic matter. Minor-element deficiencies are usually traceable to this (for example, iron chlorosis). Iron contained in fertilizer helps in correcting chlorosis.

3. Improper soil aeration. The nutrient element, although present in adequate and available form, cannot be absorbed by the root in the absence of an adequate oxygen supply in the root zone. This situation is often encountered under conditions of soil compaction or poor drainage.

4. Improper soil reaction. The degree of acidity of the soil, called "soil reaction", is expressed in terms of ph.

For turf, the preferred range of soil ph is between 5.5 and 7.5. This is the acidity range in which the various nutrient elements present in the soil are available to plants in the greatest quantity. The optimum ph would be 6.5 for turf.

Soil ph is ordinarily controlled by liming, preferably by using dolomitic limestone which contains both calcium and magnesium carbonates. The amount of limestone required to raise the soil one ph unit will vary with the type of soil. As a rule of thumb, it may be considered that 100 lbs. of limestone per 1,000 square feet will raise the ph of a sandy loam soil one unit.

Nutrients are important. The difference between a poor and a good lawn can be secondary and minor plant foods.

QUESTION BOX

Q. Our soil is sandy. How can we grow good roses? Mrs. K. Jones, Shell Road

A. Add manure or peatmoss. Keep soil fertilized and water when necessary. Try one of the new systemic plant foods and do two jobs at one time. Control insects while feeding your roses.

Q. What is the cause of moss on a lawn? S. Ludlow, Lynnhaven.

A. Moss is caused by poor drainage that keeps the areas damp; by poor aeration due to a hard compact soil; and by a lack of fertility. It doesn't always indicate an acid soil.

Q. What is the best formula for fertilizers for rhododendrons and azaleas to help their color but not too much of a growth stimulant? D.M., Va. Beach.

A. A plant food analysis of 5-8-7 (N-P-K) with trace elements have been found to be excellent in this area. You don't need a great deal of Nitrogen, and the Phosphorus and Potash aid in flower production.

Q. When and how should forsythia be pruned? E. Marquette, Little Neck.

A. Cut out some of the oldest branches annually, making the cut not far from the base of the bush. This can be done in February and the cut branches brought indoors and placed in water to force them into bloom; or wait until the bush has flowered, and prune it immediately the flowers have faded.

Legislators Will Speak At Meeting

The Princess Anne Woman's Club of Virginia Beach will meet on Tuesday, April 9 at the Pine Tree Inn.

Sen. Edward T. Caton, III and Del's. Kenneth N. Whitehurst, Jr. and B.R. Middleton will be guest speakers.

Kenneth Bell, instructor for the School of Music at Little Creek and choir director for Ferebee-Halstead Memorial Methodist Church, will furnish music for the program.

Mrs. D.L. Van de Wiele, legislation chairman, is program chairman for the April meeting. Mrs. George Aldridge is music chairman.

Mrs. Chisholm Attends Meet

Mrs. Frances B. Chisholm, vice president of the Insurance Women of Virginia Beach, attended the 22nd annual Regional Two Conference of the National Association of Insurance Women at Oglebay Park, Wheeling, W. Va.

More than 200 women in the insurance profession attended the conference whose theme was "Fellowship Plus Action Equals Progress." The conference was held March 15-17. Mrs. Chisholm is secretary and general agent for Dale Fairless Insurance Corporation at Virginia Beach.

NOW IS THE TIME TO...

Repair Lawns: Lime and fertilize. A heavy rain a few weeks ago, plus many warm days have greened up lawns. But don't be fooled. The green won't last unless you fertilize. Be sure to do it now at the right time.

Mark clumps of daffodils so crowded they have ceased to bloom freely. Dig them during July.

Watch for ground insects. Some have appeared during these last few warm days. Treat with a turf food containing an insect control, and do two jobs in one.

Spray now, if you're troubled with the Asian beetle eating your azaleas and camellias. This pest has recently invaded Tidewater. It eats the leaves from azaleas and camellias at night and can completely strip and kill an azalea plant in short time. Spray your beds with a chlordane spray. Spray each plant and the entire ground area of the bed now and again in May. This kills the dormant beetle in the ground before he is re-born for spring.

Apply Crabgrass Control to your yard. This should be done before forsythia blooms fall - and that could be any day now. Buy a product that contains DuPont's Tupersan or Dacthal. They're the two best pre-emergent crabgrass controls. They are on the market, combined with turf food so you can feed your lawn at the same time.

April, in case you didn't already know it, is the time for the 35th Annual Historic Garden Week in Virginia--this year to be April 20-27.

Virginia Beach has two tours. One is the Virginia Beach Tour which will be held from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 23, and the second is the Princess Anne Area Tour, the same hours on Saturday, April 27. In between will be the Spring Suburban Walking Tour of the Garden Club of Norfolk which will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursday, April 25. All will be held rain or shine.

Proceeds from the tours will go to the Garden Club of Virginia for use in its restoration and beautification projects. The garden of the Adam Thoroughgood house in Virginia Beach is one example.

Green arrows will mark the routes of all tours. Women are asked not to wear spike heels (this not only saves floors and gardens, but feet too). Rules also require no smoking in homes.

The recommended routing for the Virginia Beach Tour begins at the bachelor home of Jack B. Prince at 1816 Holly Road. Next is the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd D. Gottwald at 4906 Ocean Front, then the apartment of Mrs. Lewis Griffith Kaye at 1106 Virginia House, 39th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

Camellia Group Meets Tuesday

The next meeting of the Virginia Camellia Society will be held Tuesday, April 9, at the Norfolk Botanical Garden. Guests are welcome. The society meets monthly on the second Tuesday of each month. The April program will be announced in this column.

Garden Week Celebrates 35 Years

The garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Wall is on the Princess Anne Area Tour.

From there go to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Vaughan at 106 Ridge Rd., the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Patrick Kavanaugh at 102 Holladay Point, the garden of Dr. and Mrs. H. Floyd Dormire at 103 S. Dogwood Dr., and the home of Mr. and Mrs. David S. Loeb at 1029 Bobolink Dr.

The Ocean Front home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd D. Gottwald is included in the Virginia Beach Tour.

Refreshments will be served from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Dormire garden by members of The Virginia Beach Garden Club.

The Princess Anne Area Tour starts at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lance Underwood at 1208 Gloucester Lane. Travel from there to Laurel Cliff, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Van H. Cunningham at 1304 Taylor's Point Rd. Next is Ehringhaus, home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles P. Fletcher at 1200 Kent La.

The garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Wall at 1424 Woodhouse Rd. is next on the agenda. From there go to the Hermitage, occupied by Adm. and Mrs. W.W. McCrory at 4200 Hermitage Rd. Budget Passes in Spite of Some Protests

After a somewhat stormy [illegible]-half public hearing [illegible], City Council passed on [illegible] reading the record [illegible] operating budget for the [illegible]cal year. The vote was not unanimous.

Councilmen Whitehurst representing Pungo Borough, and Earl Tebault, representing Blackwater Borough, both voted against the budget because of the heavy increase of real estate taxes in those two primarily rural areas.

Recognizing that there would certainly be sharp criticism from those areas, City Manager W. Russell Hatchett had his assistant, Roger Scott, read statistics showing that a great deal more tax money had been spent in the rural areas in the last year than had been collected there.

During the hearing suggestions were made for a school tax, a high sales tax and a lower real estate tax, but none were really concrete proposals offering solutions to city needs. Except for heated words by State Sen. Edward T. Caton III and City Treas. V.A. Etheridge, most of the remainder of the hearing was taken up with clarifying questions asked by representatives of civic groups throughout the city.

Etheridge picked out a number of points in the new budget to criticize. He noted that Hatchett listed only the revenue from real estate taxes, failing to include auto licenses, personal property taxes and utility taxes.

He went on to charge that the inequity of taxation between the rural areas and the populous areas would not have occurred if the city tax assessor had been doing his job.

In addition Etheridge picked out the Erosion Commission budget, which he said did not present a true picture since it did not reflect a $50,000 return from the federal government.

"I would like to know where that money has gone and how it was spent," said Etheridge.

Etheridge also charged that a merger agreement is being violated by appropriating money from the general fund for payment on water and sewer bonds in the Beach Borough, and that Pungo and Blackwater would have water and sewer facilities if a line were not being run to Sandbridge for "a big developer," whom he did not name.

Hatchett, in answering Etheridge, reminded the Treasurer that state and federal funds are allocated directly to the strictly-audited Erosion Commission and do not go through the budget entirely.

"Mr. Etheridge hasn't raised this question before," said Hatchett, "although I didn't follow him around last year when he was running for office."

Hatchett also denied that general fund money is being used to pay off water and sewer bonds in the Beach Borough.

Another Etheridge charge that the city did not own the water lines under its streets was also countered by Hatchett. He said that mistake and others had been made when the lines were put in and that those mistakes are among the great problems facing the city today. He added that when the water agreements were made that Etheridge had been secretary to the old board of Supervisors of Princess Anne County and could have voiced his opinion then.

Hatchett also said that Etheridge used to meet with Council informally but never raised any of the objections at that time.

Next Caton, who along with Etheridge was elected on an anti-organization ticket last summer in a hotly-contested Democratic primary, took the floor and said that Council was "blatently manipulated."

He noted that "it must ring in the ears of the Administration ticket" that the tax increases were made since that group campaigned on the low tax rate in Virginia Beach. He asked Hatchett to explain this to the taxpayers.

Hatchett, obviously irritated, answered Caton by saying no one could have foreseen the tremendous tax hike a year ago and that he couldn't say anything about next year either.

"I believe we have been honest and fair," said Hatchett. "We are getting dollar value."

Another sharp exchange came later in the meeting when a moratorium on the sale and zoning of property at the Courthouse area was being discussed. Caton again accused Councilmen of being "manipulated." (See related story)

At that time, Vice-Mayor Robert Cromwell noted his objections to Caton's remarks. He said, "Senator Caton, twice today you have questioned this Council's ability to speak for itself, and I, for one, resent it." Cromwell's open remarks sparked similar sentiments from City Planning Director [illegible]unding, and Councilmen Curtis Payne, Dewey Simmons and Tebault.

Delegate B.R. Middleton also appeared at the public hearing to defend the $18.2 school budget and to urge no cuts in it. Middleton, who was also elected on the anti-organization ticket last year, added that he could not totally approve of a new tax hike but added that he could see no alternative.

The school budget came under additional scrutiny by C. [illegible] Rawls, a Virginia Beach teacher who had worked on the new salary scale for the coming year. Rawls pointed out that the city ranked 124th of 140 school districts in the state in the local money-per-pupil invested. He quoted statistics from a Virginia Education [illegible] publication entitled "Virginia's Educational Disparities." Rawls also defended the school budget, but urged more money to be spent on each pupil.

Again Hatchett took the floor to remind Rawls of the new schools and facilities in the city. Councilman George Ferrell, former chairman of the city school board, also took issue with Rawls and noted that the money spent per pupil did insure quality education, which he said Virginia Beach has. Councilman Lawrence Marshall agreed and argued with Rawls' contention. He asked if Rawls would like to see a high tax base like that of Fairfax, which has a high ratio of money spent on each student. Rawls said he did not.

After all were heard, City Councilmen noted that they had met privately on numerous occasions in attempts to pare the huge budget, but were unsuccessful while still providing services. Then the vote was taken.

This was Hatchett's last budget before his retirement. In his remarks he said he could have retired gracefully and taken the easy way out by providing an unrealistic budget, but that in good faith he could not do so. Throughout the hearing Hatchett forcefully defended the budget and also chided Council a bit for not passing a five or ten-year capital improvement proposal he had made several years ago.

Angry words and political barbs not withstanding, the budget hearing moved smoothly and swiftly. Now the final action on the budget will be taken at Council's next regular meeting on April 22. It goes into effect on July 1.

The empty chair in the foreground belonged to the photographer who got up only long enough to take the picture. Otherwise it was "standing room only" in Council Chambers and on the steps leading up to the room.

Zoning Slows Council Session

Following passage of the budget, City Council took a deep breath Monday afternoon and plunged headlong into numerous other matters which eventually made up one of the longest sessions in the memory of anyone present. Council adjourned at 6:07 p.m. after beginning a few minutes before 2 p.m.

Council seemed determined to move quickly through the City Planning Commission zoning portion of the docket. The first three applications were quickly passed, giving Lee A. Gifford a use permit to construct 230 luxury apartments at Ferry Plantation Road and Haygood Road, giving Chris G. Christopoulos a change of zoning and use permit to build another 153 apartments at Diamond Springs and Ferry Roads and giving John E. Marr a change of zoning to commercial use a piece of property at 35th Street and Pacific Avenue.

But there the accord stopped and it took nearly an hour to settle the next application. A number of residents of the Lakeview Park Area and their attorney appeared to oppose an application of M. Bagley Walker to change zoning on Shell Road to construct 80 townhouses. Opposition came mostly to the increase of traffic and population, especially children in the area, now zoned for one-acre homesites.

Dr. Walker's attorney pointed out that the townhouses would be luxury two-bedroom facilities, not conducive to large families. The zoning change was eventually denied at the request of Councilman Lawrence Marshall, who noted that the applicant knew of the sentiments of his neighbors and had attended meetings on the subject in the past.

An application for a use permit to operate a used car lot was denied. Another change of zoning in the Lakeview Park area for a gas station was allowed to be withdrawn and a use permit to operate a fairgrounds on the old Pungo airfield was approved before Council again got bogged down in another controversial matter.

An application by Lucille Potter for zoning change on property adjoining other property already zoned commercial at Laskin and First Colonial Roads was eventually approved over the objections of a number of Laurel Manor residents.

The land will be used for a 40-store mall-type shopping center to be built at an estimated cost of about $2,500,000. About half of the acreage is being held back for expansion.

The additional zoning was needed for a parking area to build the mall-type center. Construction is expected to begin late this year with opening in late 1969.

Robert Stanton, agent for Goodman-Segar-Hogan, is handling leasing for the shopping center. He announced that Food Fair and Peoples Drug Store have already signed leases, and that negotiations are underway with three department stores and three variety stores. One of each will eventually go into the center.

In addition Stanton said there will be the noraml complement of service stores and clothing stores for the family.

"We feel this center is in a strong position," said Stanton, "to become a center of retail activity for eastern Virginia Beach."

An application to construct a pumping station in the Princess Anne Plaza area was deferred for two weeks and another for a zoning change and use permit to build 91 apartments in north Virginia Beach was withdrawn.

One gas station was approved in the Birdneck Village area, and another was sent back to the Planning Commission for further study. That one would be on Independence Boulevard, near the ramps of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

Another 120 apartment development was approved at Little Neck Road and Edinburgh Drive extended in the Groveland Park-King's Grant area.

Also a use permit was granted to Providence Friends Church to construct a new church on Providence Road near Kempsville Road.

Then at the request of the State Highway Department Council agreed to reopen two borrow pits for the next sections of Interstate 64. They were previously used for the expressway and Interstate 264.

Next Council again became bogged down in political controversy when it attempted to impose a 90-day moratorium on zoning changes and development of property near the municipal center complex to study the city's future needs in that area.

It was then that State Sen. Edward T. Caton III, representing Virginia National Bank, accused City Council for the second time of the day of being "manipulated" by outside interests. This caused a sharp flurry between Councilmen [illegible] and Caton, with Vice-Mayor Robert Cromwell and others saying that they resented the implications.

Virginia National Bank has an option on land in the disputed area to build a new bank there.

Target Date Is May 31

"There will still be construction going on, but by comparison with last year, things will be much better."

Those were the words of Reeves Johnson, Virginia Beach Safety department superintendent, concerning Virginia Beach Boulevard this summer. With the completion of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway and all associated roads and ramps the road conditions will be greatly improved, according to Johnson, but there will still be some utility construction work done on Virginia Beach Boulevard during the tourist season.

The main roads, however will be reasonably free of construction this summer, in direct comparison to the past two summers, Road work on South Lynnhaven Road on a new bridge by the Moose Lodge and on the roadway itself will cause some delays, as will construction improvements scheduled to begin on Holland Road as soon as the school buses are parked for the summer, says Johnson.

Johnson said he had been in close contact with state officials still concerned with finishing all work associated with the expressway. He said they have assured the city all work will be finished by May 31, including all road work near the giant interchange at London Bridge.

E.H. Orange, toll facilities director for the state of Virginia, confirmed this date for completion of all work. He said that all landscaping and seeding operations were impossible during the winter months and that they are now underway.

"Of course, we wouldn't have touched the grading and paving during the winter anyway," he said. "You just can't do that kind of work in the winter."

Orange noted that erosion on many of the man-made hills for the expressway was a big problem due to bad weather during the winter. He said his department met with the contractors Tuesday and that the hills would be entirely restored shortly.

Some signs that are on order may not arrive in time for the May 31 completion target date, said Orange, but they will only be late a short while, if at all.

When the new roads are finished at London Bridge both Johnson and Orange concede traffic could be heavy there heading west via Laskin Road and Virginia Beach Boulevard. There are no plans to add

Committee Is Working

Richard Guy, chairman of the special committee working on petitions for local option liquor-by-the-drink in Virginia Beach, says his group is "about ready to move."

The special committee is made up of representatives of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce and the Virginia Beach Jaycees. The committee has already had one organizational meeting last week. They meet again this afternoon at 4 to discuss any further action or problems that may be encountered.

Guy added, however, that the circulation of the actual petitions is not far away. He said they could be expected within a short time.

Signatures are needed of about 3,500 Virginia Beach qualified voters

City Manager Is Next Task

Now that the new operating budget is out of the way, the city fathers will begin serious work on another complex problem, that of replacing retiring City Manager W. Russell Hatchett.

John McCombs, City Councilman from Virginia Beach Borough, said he will call a meeting of his special Council committee within the next few days to discuss times when committee members and the full Council can screen applicants.

"With the budget out of the way, we'll be moving ahead on the matter now," said McCombs. "The big problem is determining how and when we can interview all the applicants."

McCombs added that there are about 35 applicants for the job at present with more still expected.

Hatchett made his retirement effective in July, but has said he will continue until September if a suitable successor is not found in time.

The matter of salary for a City Manager came up Monday in the budget public hearing. Advertisements for a manager in magazines call for a salary between $18,000 and $23,000. One critic said the lid should be taken off that salary in order to get the best man available. Hatchett said he did not feel the limit should be removed. Council agreed.

Downing to Visit New Office

First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing of Newport News will get a chance this weekend to use his Virginia Beach office at Princess Anne Courthouse for the first time.

His aide in Virginia Beach, Mrs. Barbara Simiele, said that Downing will be in the office Saturday morning to talk with a number of people who have made appointments for one reason or another.

She added, however, that there are still a few appointment times open, and that anyone who wishes to talk with his Congressman may make an appointment by calling her at the Virginia Beach office at 427-5050.

The two-suite office is in the old Municipal Court building and occupies space once used by the City Planning Commission. The office was given by the city as a place for its residents to talk with their Congressman. The office opened shortly after the courts were moved into new quarters late in February.

Downing and his staff were forced to abandon their Washington office last Friday when police ordered them out of the House of Representatives office building because of outbreaks of violence in that area of Washington.

Downing said at the time that the outbreaks were terrible and made no sense. He said he deplored the riotous actions. The building was not attacked in any way, but police were taking no chances on the safety of Congressmen.

Mrs. Barbara Simiele, Virginia Beach aide to Congressman Thomas N. Downing, looks over her appointment book for Saturday when Downing visits.

Mystery Is Enjoyable Although NoMystery

The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach continues its run of "Grand National Night" this weekend, and since it's a good "whodunit" well-done, it is certainly worth seeing and enjoying.

It's really a sort of different type of mystery, since everyone in the audience knows who committed the supposed murder. They saw the dastardly act committed. But how will the culprit does in his questioning by police and how well he gets away with his crime keeps up the usual suspense of a murder mystery. To the very end and the twist that just had to come, no one is really certain exactly what will happen.

Bill Britton, in his direction, has capitalized nicely on the built-in suspense, and has kept his cast moving quickly through the action for some very fine pacing.

Foy Shaw, as the wealthy Englishman, portrays the calm murderer with real finesse. Although he seems somewhat miscast in the dashing role, he carries it off well and with great believability.

In her brief appearance as his wife, Jane Fleming does a good job with the role of the petulant, alcoholic, cheating wife, before being murdered. Her facial expressions appear haunted, just as the role calls for.

As the Englishman's "lady love," Judy Dressler portrays the always proper young girl nicely. Her compassion and love are readily apparent.

Peggie MacArthur does an excellent job as the above-it-all sister of the deceased. Her somewhat flighty characterization of the high-class British woman is fun to watch. She provides nice humorous moments.

But it is the relatively minor roles which really make this play a success. John MacArthur, as the butler, cold and extremely loyal, is a pleasure to watch. His every movement, mannerism and word is perfectly calculated.

Norrie Martin makes a minor role into a real cameo with his characterization of the murderer's lawyer. He is really an irascible and testy man as played by Martin, and he provides most of the real comedy relief. His bit of puffing on a pipe until a virtual smokescreen appears is hilarious.

Pete Scoppa, as the "butt-in" and professional guest is also pleasing in his comedy performance. James English and Ian Goodwin are perfectly cast as the policemen, one jolly and one calculating.

Bob Henry's set is also extremely pleasing and workable.

This play is not really a spine-tingler or one that will leave any lasting impressions, but it is a good procustion. HJL

Safety Meet Is in April

Groundwork has just been completed for a regional safety conference in Portsmouth, April 24, by the Governor's Highway Safety Committee and the Virginia Safety Association.

Col. H.W. Burgess, chairman of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee and Superintendent of State Police stated that this is in furtherance of an established program of the two organizations, which have been holding four such conferences annually in various parts of the state.

The Conference, to be held in the Monumental Methodist Church, will be co-sponsored by the Portsmouth Safety Council. It will consist of a group meeting, with a noted speaker, and four separate sessions covering School and College Driver Education, and Industrial, Traffic and Water Safety. Group participation in the session discussions will be urged.

Col. Burgess said that it is hoped that attendance will be drawn from the cities of Chesapeake, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach.

There will be no registration fee. Both the public and safety officials will be welcome.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Last week's mention of Lt. E.L. Knowles of the Bayside Police Precinct taking a sudden interest in the game of Golf has become a prime topic of conversation around the Precinct. A certain sergeant in the Precinct tells us Lt. Knowles has become so keenly interested in "chasing that little white ball" he has already acquired a gold bag, a #1 wood (driver) and an iron, and that while Knowles previously had a high regard for boating and fishing, he may soon forsake the "waterways" entirely for the "fairways."

Two men who just recently joined the Virginia Beach Police Division are attending classes in the recently organized Tidewater Police Academy at Old Dominion College. They are Officer J.C. Burton of the Bayside Precinct and Officer R.L. Allen of the Beach Borough Precinct.

Ellis Mills, chief of the Oceana Volunteer Fire Department says the unit is making efforts to acquire land adjacent to the department's "station house" on First Colonial Road. Mills indicates the land is needed for parking facilities and possible future expansion of the headquarters building.

Indications are the "shaping up" trend has invaded the Beach Borough Police Precinct. Sgt. Norman C. Morse says he and Officers Lester A. Silva, Joseph P. Vitale, Jr., M.E. Beane, and Curtis W. Forbes are attending weekly "conditioning" courses.

Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire Dept. Chief Fred Quist tells us the men of the unit are putting the finishing touches on "and old time fire truck" for competition in the May 2, "Firemen's Parade" during the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester, Va. Quist says he is just a little concerned, however, as to what will happen when the unit arrives in Winchester without a formal invitation. Quist said he had expected to receive an invitation, along with other fire departments of the state, but thus far the invitation has not arrived.

Annual promotion examinations are scheduled for men of the Virginia Beach Police Division next Tuesday and Wednesday. Capt. G.C. Riley, division executive officer says notification has been made through each of the Police Precincts that the exam is open to anyone eligible for the ranks of sergeant and/or lieutenant, and that men who pass the exam will be placed on an eligibility list for consideration when vacancies arise within the division.

An "air of mystery" is prevalent in the Beach Borough Police Precinct over the sudden interest being shown in the sport of fishing by Senior CPO George C. Queen, officer in charge of the "Beach Shore Patrol Detachment." While indications are Queen is landing quite a few "big ones," secrecy surrounds Queen's "favorite fishing hole" location and what his favorite "catch" (if any) consists of.

Minister To Speak At Cross

Rev. Dr. A. Ray Appelquist of Fairfax, Va., executive secretary of the General Commission on Chaplains and Armed Forces Personnel, will be the speaker at the 41st Annual Easter Sunrise Service to be held April 14, at the Cape Henry Memorial Cross at Ft. Story.

Rev. Applequist

This historic service is held at Ft. Story each Easter at the site of the Jamestown settlers' first landing in America on April 26, 1607. They erected a cross and held a worship service. Today, a handsome marble cross commemorates the area and is the focal point of the service. The cross was erected in 1936 by the National Society of the Daughters of American Colonists. Local clergymen, chaplains, church and chapel choirs, bands, color guards, social and civic organizations participate. The area is visited by hundreds of tourists throughout the year. The Easter attendance usually approaches 4,000.

The Easter dawn illuminates another Cape Henry landmark, the Old Lighthouse, erected in 1791--the first lighthouse in America to be built with federal funds.

The Rev. Dr. Appelquist was elected to his present position in July 1962. The General Commission is a permanent conference of chaplaincy representatives for 38 constituent denominations, comprising 40 million members. Other Protestant bodies are related through accredited consultants.

Fences serve an important function in our home landscapes. They divide our property from our neighbors, provide enclosure for private areas, and provide a screen for unsightly areas.

Fences should be made to look as attractive as possible, for they can make the landscape very attractive while serving a useful purpose, or they can make it very unattractive, depending upon your treatment of the structure.

Nothing is more bleak than to have a long stretch of fence with no planting to reduce the monotony. Often shrubbery can be used very effectively. In some situations, a vine will look very attractive on a fence.

If the fence is one that should be painted, be sure that it is kept painted. This will preserve the wood in addition to keeping it attractive.

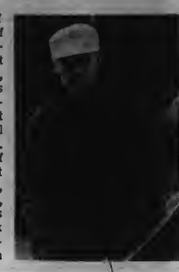

Christ-Janer Speaks To Beach Art Assn.

Albert Christ-Janer, one of the most outstanding artists of our time, will speak to the Virginia Beach Art Association at the Studio Gallery Wednesday, April 10, at 8:30 p.m. This will also be the formal opening of a show of his recent work at the Gallery which will run through the month of April.

Christ-Janer is the dean of the top-notch Pratt Institute Art School, a world wide lecturer, has written four books on art, and in the past two years has had ten exhibitions of his work around the United States, including Yale University, Lehigh and Swathmore.

Recent awards include the M. W. Zimmerman Memorial Prize, the Mary S. Collins Prize and the Addie and Herbert Segerman Purchase Award. Primarily a water-colorist, his work is Oriental in feeling, cool and dreamlike. He says, "The earth, the sky and the sea are my sources of information."

After an extensive background of study, Christ-Janer has taught in seven colleges since receiving his M.A. from Yale, as professor and director of art schools. Oceana Awards Ceremony Recalls Forrestal Fire

Attack Squadron Sixty-Five (VA-65) conducted an Awards Ceremony Friday, April 5, at 1:30 p.m. in Hangar 122.

During the ceremoney Vice Admiral C.T. Booth II, COMNAVAIRLANT, presented awards to members of Attack Squadron SIXTY-FIVE for their heroic actions aboard USS FORRESTAL (CVA-59) during the fire on July 29, 1967 while engaged in combat operations off the coast of North Vietnam.

Navy and Marine Corps Medal was posthumously awarded to Lt. Robert E. Geller, United States Navy, for heroism on July 29, 1967 while serving as weapons officer in VA-65, embarked in USS Forrestal (CVA-59), in the Gulf of Tonkin. The lieutenant's wife, Mrs. Martha Geller, accepted the medal. Upon observing a fire which was engulfing bomb-laden aircraft on the flight deck of the Forrestal, Lt. Geller unhesitatingly ran from his relative safe position to the scene of the fire to initiate fire fighting and rescue of trapped pilots. Although he sacrified his own life in an ensuing bomb explosion, his heroic actions in attempting to save the lives of his shipmates were an inspiration to all who observed him.

Aviation Ordnanceman I.C. Maximillion Richard Snock received the Navy and Marine Corps Medal for heroic action during the conflagration that engulfed the USS Forrestal on July 29, 1967.

The Navy Achievement Medal was awarded to Aviation Electrician's Mate 2.C. Jerry Keith Jones.

The Navy Achievement Medal was awarded to Aviation Ordnanceman 2.C. Dennis Harold Smith, "For heroic achievement aboard USS Forrestal on July 29, 1967."

The Navy Achievement Medal was presented to Aviation Structual Mechanic 2.C. Stephen Anthony Murrav.

The Commander Seventh Fleet Letter of Commendation went to Chief Aviation Ordnanceman Glenn Burdette Hart

The Commander Seventh Fleet Letter of Commendation went to Aviation Machinist's Mate 2.C. Billie Don Melton who distinguished himself during the Forrestal Fire by securing aircraft with chocks and tie-downs on the forward flight deck. In spite of an injury, he continued throughout the afternoon dearming aircraft, manning fire hoses, and loading and unloading hellcopters from other ships.

Mrs. Robert E. Geller accepts the Navy and Marine Corps Medal from Vice Adm. Booth which was awarded posthumously to her husband Lt. Robert E. Geller.

Marrow to Lead Sunrise Service

Easter Sunrise services will be held at the Virginia Beach Drive-In Theatre, Laskin Road at Hilltop, April 14th at 6 a.m.

The service will be under the leadership of Evangelist Danny Marrow and is being sponsored by First Colonial Baptist Church. Rev. Marrow will be assisted by laymen from the church. The Youth Touring Choir of First Colonial Baptist Church will present the music under the direction of E. Ray Morrison.

Worshippers will be afforded the opportunity of ample parking and will be able to remain in their automobiles in case of inclement weather. The speaker system of the theatre will bring the music and message directly to each auto.

The Rev. Mr. Marrow is well known in Virginia Beach and is the former Pastor of Knotts Island Baptist Church. He is now completing plans to enter full time evangelistic work in Virginia Beach during the summer and the opportunity to hear him speak will be welcomed by his many friends. The public is cordially invited to attend the services.

Dr. May Was Panel Member

Dr. Madge May, director of the Virginia Beach Health Department, was one of three panelists discussing more effective operation of a health department at yesterday's opening session of a two and one-half day training course for clerks of local health departments.

The course will continue through Sunday, at the Admiralty Motor Hotel at Norfolk. It is being presented by the State Department of Health's Bureau of Staff Development.

Convention To Include 12 States

About 2,000 persons from 12 southern states are expected to attend the 20th Annual Southern Christian Convention at the Virginia Beach Civic Center April 16-18.

The convention will be for preaching and fellowship, according to the Rev. J. Spencer Arnold, pastor of Kempsville Christian Church, who is president of the group. The 26 Churches of Christ and Christian churches in the Tidewater area will be hosts.

Both morning and evening sessions are scheduled and the public is invited.

Week Passes Without Bids

For the first time in recent memory, the Virginia Beach School Board will not open any bids this week for a new school or an addition to an old one.

Bids were to have been opened today for the as yet unnamed elemantary school in the Windsor Woods area, but were postponed for another week, according to Ernest Stone, construction supervisor.

Stone added that he may also finish with bids for at least one more school this month and another in April, but that all approved in the January bond issue will be contacted by July.

Passover, Easter Coincide

The Jewish holiday of Passover this year falls at the same time as Easter, beginning Friday evening at sundown. Although the holiday commemorates the Hebrew liberation from Egypt, originally the Passover was the exemption of the Israelites from the slaughter of the firstborn in Egypt, as told in the book of Exodus.

As celebrated today the first evening a feast or seder is held at the Temple for the congregation or in a public place for a large group. Each member of the group takes a part in the traditional celebration. On the second evening another seder is usually held in the home for the family unit.

Rabbi Phillip Pincus, of Temple Immanuel in Virginia Beach, said that about 70 persons are expected at the Temple seder Friday night. Services will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. and Sunday at 10 a.m. The seast continues through the week with Jewish families following traditional celebrations including eating special foods similar to those taken into the desert by Moses and his followers.

At the end of the celebration services will be held at the Virginia Beach Temple on Thursday evening at 8:15, on Friday at 10 a.m. and 8:15 p.m. and on Saturday, the concluding memorial service will be held at 9 a.m.

Chandler Ends Kellam High Coaching Job

Kellam High School wrestling coach Buddy Chandler ended a long coaching career last week when it was announced Sunday that he will give up his coaching position at Kellam to work towards an advanced degree at Old Dominion College, Norfolk.

Chandler, who has been defensive line coach for the Norfolk Neptunes the past three years, was a star lineman himself at Granby High School in the early forties.

This year Chandler has led the Kellam Knights to their best season's record to date: an 8-3 dual meet record, a fifth place in the regional competition and a ninth in the state championships.

In 1959, he was assistant football coach at William and Mary; in 1960 at Appalachian State. In 1961, Chandler came to Tidewater, as head football coach for Granby, and four years later took the coaching position at Kellam.

Kellam athletics director Charlie Caldwell has also announced a change for gymnastics coach Ken Stallings, who has left the gymnastics team to become junior varsity basketball coach for the school.

Young Kent Boyd of Bow Creek Boulevard, is ready and eager to attend the German Shepherd Dog Club of Eastern Virginia's Specialty Show Saturday, April 13 at the Admiralty Motel as a spectator. The show will begin promptly at 9:30 a.m. but Kent's doggy friend, "Adella von Richlynn" will be conspicuous by her absence as she will be home attending to her new family of 11. Miss Kathleen Olbis from New Jersey will be judging the show, which is open to the public.

ABC Coverage Sought for Beach Surfing

Sponsors of the East Coast Surfing Championship, held annually each summer at Virginia Beach, have corresponded with Roone Arledge, president of ABC Sports, requesting that network to cover the event.

From a small, local surfing contest in 1963, the competition has grown to world-wide prominence. Some 20,000 spectators flocked to the Beach for the 1967 contest. Surfers from the East Coast Championship were chosen to compete in the World Competition.

Local spokesmen said that A.B.C. probably will not be able to fit the Championship into their already-full schedule this year. But they were optimistic for a time slot in the 1969 sports schedule.

Skating Party To Be Monday

Tidewater Youth for Christ will hold its monthly skating party at Plaza Roller Rink, 444 S. Lynnhaven Rd., Monday evening, April 15, from 7 to 10 p.m.

Members of all denominations are invited to attend. For additional information contact Plaza Roller Rink at 340-7190.

Requirements Set for Examiners

Virginia has become the eighth state of the nation to pass legislation establishing minimum requirements for the licensing of polygraph examiners.

The legislation, passed during the last Virginia General Assembly session, was due primarily to the efforts of Virginia Beach Del. Kenneth Whitehurst Jr. who, with support of a small group of interested residents of Virginia Beach, placed the legislation on the floor of the House of Delegates and mustered enough support of other legislators to win approval of the bill. A similar attempt at such legislation in 1964 failed when the bill "died" in the State Senate.

Billy A. Franklin, president of the Virginia State Polygraph Association and a member of the American Polygraph Association, told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, potential polygraph examiners will now be required to complete a minimum of eight weeks of schooling, then undergo a year of field training under supervision of a qualified examiner before they will be considered for licensing themselves.

Training in this field is presently offered at four schools in various sections of the United States. Two of these schools already require applicants to be college graduates, with emphasis on psychology and legal training, while a minimum of two years of college is required in the remaining schools. Franklin also said the trend towards licensing of polygraph examiners is toward college graduation as a minimum educational requirement.

At the present time the Tidewater region has the services of four private polygraph examiners, with six examiners available in the regional police departments. Three of these are within the Virginia Beach police division, Capt. Richard C. Davis, Lt. Elwood L. Knowles, and detective Donald W. Pope.

The general public has the impression polygraph examinations, or "lie detector tests" as they are more commonly referred to, are used primarily in criminal investigations. While many polygraph tests are administered by local, state or federal law enforcement agencies, a larger number of examinations are used in private industry for screening of applicants and as a means of controlling internal pilferage. The Virginia Beach police division is the only such organization in the Tidewater region who makes use of such examinations in the screening of police applicants.

Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr., signs into law minimum requirements for licensing of polygraph examiners in Virginia as "Bill" Franklin (left) and Virginia Beach detective Donald Pope (right) look on.

The importance of establishing minimum requirements for licensing of polygraph examiners can perhaps best be illustrated by citing examples of the importance of such tests. Franklin told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN the information obtained through these tests has been used in the past to clear persons who left an employer under "a cloud of suspicion," or who, during an investigation, faced strong circumstantial evidence against them and were able to establish their innocence.

Franklin also pointed out he feels the use of such tests should never be in any hazard pattern, or should anyone ever be forced to take such a test. This opinion, Franklin added, is shared by all of the qualified polygraph examiners whom he knows, as well as members of various police departments.

Planning Commission Hears Application

At a three and a half hour City Planning Commission meeting Tuesday at Princess Anne several objections were raised by residents and civic leagues to applications for rezoning.

Herbert L. Kramer's application for a zoning change from Rural Residences 1 to Rural Residence District 3B, Rural Suburban Districts 1 and 2 for certain property located on the east side of Ewell Road met with heavy opposition from Thoroughgood residents.

Other objections were raised to applications by John G. Halages for rezoning the Bradford Terrace Area; E.C. Barber for zoning change involving Lakewood; Bentley B. Hinman's application to re-zone the Lotus Gardens area from Agricultural Unrestricted to General Commercial; an application by Texaco, Inc., to re-zone property at the southwest corner of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Thalia Road to permit the construction of a gasoline station.

BOU Enterprises, Inc., application to re-zone property north of old Great Neck Road and north of Reagan Drive from Residence Suburban to Multiple Family Residence; an application by G.C.S. Company to re-zone the Birdneck Village area from residence Suburban to Multiple Family; William Chironna's application for a use permit to construct 106 apartment units west of First Colonial Road, north of Will-O-Wisp Drive; Lynnhaven Building Supply Corp.'s application to change the zoning Hilltop are property from Residence Suburban to Multiple Family.

These applications, along with the applications causing no objections, will be sent to the City Council accompanied by a recommendation from the Commission. The applications will be considered at the Council's first meeting in May.

Two other applications, presented by Virginia National Bank and Nusbaum Real Estate Trust, met with opposition and will be referred to the City Council.

Tax Discussed by Real Estate Board

The Virginia Beach Real Estate Board met Monday to discuss the enforcement of a sales tax on rentals to transients, following notification that the law would be enforced this year.

The controversial law actually has been on the books since Sept. 1, 1966, when the statewide sales tax law went into effect, but has never been enforced until this time. The statute provides that a 3 per cent sales tax must be paid on rentals ro transients if the period of rental is 89 days or less.

Satte tax enforcement officials say they have not had the manpower or facilities to carry out the full provisions of the law until this time, but that the Norfolk regional office, with its 11 investigators, has now started to notify those to be affected. Plans now call for checking on compliance during the summer.

The president of the Virginia Beach realtors, Bailey Parker says there is some question in the mind of realtors whether rentals of resort property accommodations is covered in the statute.

"I don't think it reads as if we are covered in this matter," said Parker, "but it is a legal matter and we're seeking a legal opinion."

Parker noted that state officials had been asked to clarify the Virginia Beach position. He added that he expects a ruling from Richmond by the end of this week or the beginning of next week.

State officials have indicated that even if leases are already signed for this summer season, the collection of the tax will be mandatory. The rate of the tax, incidentally, jumps to 4 per cent on July 1, as the increased state sales tax takes effect. In addition the city of Virginia Beach already imposes a special 1 per cent tax on hotel and motel accomodations.

Judge Takes Motion Under Advisement

Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab has taken under advisement a defense motion to set aside, as being contrary to law and evidence, the conviction of Peter Edward Land on murder and criminal assault charges.

A 12-man jury convicted Land, 29, of charges in the death last December of Mrs. Carol J. Dorschel, 25, and fixed his punishment at life in prison on each of the convictions.

Land was arrested by police several weeks after the body of the woman was discovered in a ditch near London Bridge near her Byrd Lane home. Medical examiners indicated her death was due to manual strangulation and that she had been sexually assaulted.

During the four day trial Land's defense attorney's Winston Snider and Lowell Clarke made repeated motions for a mistrial which would have resulted in a new trial for Land. Judge Wahab overruled each of the motions. However a new trial is still a possibility should defense motions to set aside the verdict be upheld.

Land, who steadfastly maintained his innocence during the trial, showed no emotion when the jury returned with guilty verdicts after deliberations of over an hour and a half.

Judge Wahab has delayed sentencing of Land until completion of his study of defense briefs on the motion to set the verdict aside.

Minstrel Tickets Are on Sale

Tickets are now on sale for the annual Princess Anne Ruritan Club Minstrel to be presented at Princess Anne High School on April 17-20.

Tickets for this 13th annual production may be purchased at Carney's Inn, Beach Taxi, Hogge Motor Co., W.W. Johnson, Inc. and Princess Anne Fuel Oil. In addition tickets will be on sale at the door for each performance.

Besides the usual end men and this year's new interlocutor, Les Lam, two groups that were so highly accepted last year will return. The Commodore Chorus and the Dixieland Bearcats both play a return engagement.

The minstrel will also again sport its own dancers, under the direction of Virginia Biggs.

another traffic light where the two roads will come together, according to Orange, but he said his office is working closely with Johnson's office on such matters.

"We are hoping the big increase in traffic will be on the expressway for tourists and through traffic," said Orange. "I think Virginia Beach Boulevard will be more a city street."

Johnson said there are no plans to add any more traffic lights to the Boulevard at present except one at Lynn Shores Drive, where poles are already erected.

"That ought to take care of us for a little while," said Johnson.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Tomorrow will mark the last official day of duty for Officer Mondozo Holloway with the Virginia Beach police division. Holloway will be on leave until May 5 at which time he will retire following 16 years of service with the division.

Members of the various volunteer departments of the city, during Monday night's regular Fire Council meeting, discussed plans for the forthcoming "fund raising drive". Details of this annual event, the primary means by which money is raised to operate the departments, will be discussed in detail in future issues of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN.

An evening of musical entertainment featuring the "Harmonizing Four" quartet from Richmond, Va., has been scheduled for April 30 at the Seatack Elementary School. The program is being sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Seatack Volunteer Fire Dept., with proceeds going to the improvement of the department. Tickets may be obtained from various business firms of the region, or from Auxiliary Pres. Mary Parsons and/or program chairman Inez Hyman.

Examinations were held this week for possible promotions within the Virginia Beach police division. Examinations for sergeant were taken by 27 men, with 24 men taking the examination for lieutenant, and 10 applicants for the rank of captain. Those successfully completing the exams will be placed on an eligibility list for consideration as vacancies arise.

City fathers have approved an ordinance which establishes minimum specifications for future "pumper" trucks which might be purchased by fire departments of the city of Virginia Beach.

A local citizen charged with a violation of the law one evening this past week at the Bayside Police Precinct enlisted the aid of friends to bring money to the precinct in posting his bond of $152. The lateness of the hour kept Justice of the Peace James Loftin, Jr. from depositing the money in the bank. Arriving for duty in the morning J.P. H. Bates Reese, deciding to take care of the depository, was very surprised to find $94 of the bond money was in pennies, nickels, and dimes neatly tucked away in a cardboard box. We are wondering about the reaction of the bank teller when J. P. Reese casually strolled into the bank "laboring" under the weight of a box containing $94 in coins, and when the teller was faced with the time consuming count of the coins to verify the deposit.

Easter Service Slated At Cape Henry Cross

The approximate site of the Jamestown settlers' first landing in the New World will be the stage for Ft. Story's 41st annual Easter Sunrise Service, April 14, 6 a.m. at the Cape Henry Memorial Cross.

A marble cross now marks the place where the Jamestown settlers first came ashore at Cape Henry, April 26,1607, and worshipped, thankful for having survived their Atlantic voyage.

The service will include local clergymen, chaplains, church and chapel choirs, bands, color guards, and the participation of civic and social organizations. The Easter attendance is expected to approach 4,000.

The Rev. Dr. A. Ray Appelquist, Executive Secretary of the General Commission on Chaplains and Armed Forces Personnel, will offer the chief message of the service.

Zoning

The application came before the Planning Commission on Tuesday.

First & Merchants operates the only bank in the area at present and Caton obviously was referring to operators of that bank in charging "manipulation."

Council agreed to lower the moratorium to 45 days and told the bank officials to go ahead with the application saying they did not wish to stifle competition in any way.

Meanwhile future city needs will be studied with the possibility that the land in question may yet be found necessary to the city.

This was the last major stumbling block for Council, which next quickly approved a use tax on goods bought out of the city, approved small appropriations, approved a contract for installation of utility lines and brick and concrete walks in the new municipal center, approved acquisition of four lots near the Courthouse and approved the moving of three houses.

The exhausted Council members and spectators adjourned shortly after 6 p.m.

Jaycees Get Two Awards

Two members of the Virginia Beach chapter of the Jaycees received high honors at a Regional convention held last weekend at the Admiralty Motel in Norfolk.

Herman McLeod received the Region's SPOKE award for his outstanding contributions during the past year and William Shepeard Jr. received the Region I State Director's Award.

The Jaycees Region takes in much of Tidewater. Portsmouth Jaycees took three awards of the six given, in addition to the two won by Virginia Beach men.

Judo Classes Given By Recreation Dept.

A registration and orientation meeting for judo classes will be held Monday, April 15 at 7:30 p.m. Sponsored by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, separate classes for men and women will be held on Monday evenings at Princess Anne High School.

The ladies class will be held from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. and will be instructed by Mrs. Lisa Beardslee who holds the second class brown belt. Following from 8:30 p.m. to 10 p.m., Ralph Beardslee will instruct the mens' class. Beardslee holds the black belt in judo.

A relatively small building at the public landing on the western end of Mills Landing Road, in the southern tip of Virginia Beach, serves as the headquarters for game wardens of the Hampton Roads district. Encompassing 13 counties, as far north as the Eastern Shore, westward to Surry and Sussex counties, and south to the Virginia Beach-North Carolina border line, the district is covered by 18 game wardens directed by Supt. Shelton Roundtree, with an office in Suffolk.

Each of the game wardens maintains his own boat ranging in size from 12 to 30 feet, and are employees of the state directly responsible to the Game and Inland Fisheries Commission of the State of Virginia. Interest in the work has moved to an all time high in recent years, with an increasing number of applicants for jobs as they become available.

The Back Bay "station", located at the eastern end of Mills Landing Road between Horse Point and Drum Point, has served as District headquarters since 1934. The headquarters building, constructed in 1951, in addition to housing radio equipment for contact with the Eastern Shore and various boats and a plane used in patrolling the vast Back Bay region, is complete with a "dry dock" for repair of patrol boats, and living quarters for sheltering sportsmen who may become lost or stranded in stormy weather.

Three game wardens, operating out of the Back Bay "station", have the basic responsibility of enforcing state laws covering hunting, fishing and boating in the city of Virginia Beach. J. A. Saunders, in charge of the "station", has been a game warden for 34 years, Jack Fentress, who has been with the "station" for eight years, also serves as pilot of the "Station" sea-plane which was obtained in 1951, while Jim Ogden is the newest member of the group with three years service.

Saunders told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that in addition to law enforcement the men spend a great deal of time in public appearances in school and civic gatherings promoting water safety and the safe handling of guns; assisting farmers with crop damage which may have been caused by wild life; and working closely with federal game preserve authorities, as well as the Coast Guard and police in search and rescue missions in the Back Bay region.

Literally hundreds of sportsmen flock to the region annually in quest of a large variety of game which abound in the area. Various species of ducks, hunted from blinds which dot the marshes and banks of waterways, are the prime targets of hunters. However the large number of Redhead and Canvas-Back ducks which used to prevail in the region, are slowly vanishing. This is attributed to a decrease in the salinity of the regions waters resulting in a scarcity of food for them.

This same problem exists with types of fish which used to be prevalent. It is hoped this situation will be corrected through use of the Sandbridge pumping station which pumps water into Back Bay from the Atlantic Ocean, thus raising the waters salinity content from the present 8%. In addition to various geese which are native to this region, hunters are also attracted by Canadian and Snow Geese, muskrat and even deer which are rapidly moving into the section.

The crisscrossing of the Back Bay region by the boundaries of Virginia and North Carolina causes a small problem to sportsmen, because of the differences in hunting and fishing laws. Attempts to assist sportsmen in this have been made in placing signs on roadways, as well in waterways, to indicate location of the boundary lines. According to Game Warden Saunders the largest violations of the law are attributed to persons hunting or fishing without a license, or the accidental killing of ducks out of season. Another infraction of the law is the use of "duck traps" which are illegal, and result in unnecessary deaths of waterfowl which perish due to the lack of food or drowning when they are unable to free themselves.

Saunders told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN continual steps are being taken to increase the abundance of game and waterfowl in the region to assure future sportsmen of having their favorite "spot" to obtain that trophy they're seeking, or to enjoy that hunting or fishing trip on weekends or vacations.

Future issues of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN will be devoted to a series of feature articles highlighting unusual facts of the Back Bay region which have gone unnoticed, or perhaps taken for granted, in the past.

Delegates Are Agenda

The Virginia Beach Democratic Committee met last night at Princess Anne Courthouse in regular session and set up the machinery for designating delegates to the State Democratic convention this summer.

This was the only business set to be on the agenda, according to the chairman of the committee, Owen Pickett.

The state convention will be in Roanoke on July 27 prior to the August national convention in Chicago.

Pilots Set Jet Record

Two members of NAS Oceana's Attack Squadron Sixty-Five (VA-65) achieved a first in A-6A Intruder history, when they completed 1000 hours of flight time simultaneously in the all-weather attack jet recently.

The record setting crew consisted of Lt. Roland J. Zlatoper, the pilot, and Lt. Cecil C. Anderson, the bombardier/navigator.

In addition to this impressive mark, Lieutenants Zlatoper and Anderson have compiled an outstanding combat record while engaged in operations over Vietnam. Between them they have been decorated with two Distinguished Flying Crosses, 20 Air Medals, and six Navy Commendation Medals. The medals were awarded as a result of more than 200 combat missions which comprised approximately 400 hours of hazardous combat flying.

Harmony Planned

Tidewater barbershoppers will join some 30,000 other harmonizers throughout the United States and Canada next week to celebrate "National Harmony Week."

Mayor Frank A. Dusch recently signed the proclamation designating April 14-20 as Harmony Week for Virginia Beach. Mayor Dusch, himself a registered bass singer of barbershop harmony, presented the proclamation to Jesse Reed, representing the Commodore Chorus.

The Commodore Chorus was organized ten years ago and now numbers 52 members. The group meets every Monday night, 8 p.m., at the Y.W.C.A., Freemason Street, at Norfolk.

Circus to Perform

Marvelous balancing practices to perfection is accomplished by the Great Macias, the man who stands on his forefinger atop a glittering glass globe. His one-finger stand is the most seemingly impossible feat ever accomplished by a circus star. The act is ingenius, sensational, even incredible.

The Great Macias and his awe-inspiring presentation will appear at each performance of America's largest circus-in-the-round, the Famous Bartok Circus, featured on the ABC-TV spectacular, "One Night Stands." The fast moving performance is set to the circus music of Prof. Charlie Moyer and his concert band.

The Famous Bartok Circus will exhibit in Virginia Beach one day only on Saturday, April 13 with performances at 2 and 8 p.m. under the big top at First Colonial Road (Hilltop). Doors will open one hour earlier to give patrons time to visit the annex and inspect the animals in the menagerie.

Special reduced-rate advance tickets are now available from any member of Virginia Beach Civitan Club, sponsors of the big circus.

For the Sake of Division

The new record budget for Virginia Beach is passed and real estate taxes will go up sharply. Those are the sad facts, and the reasons leading up to those decisions are painfully obvious. The money is needed to continue and extend the excellent services in this rapidly growing and rapidly-maturing city. And taxes are still lower than surrounding areas.

The budget hearing was marked by the questions of a number of responsible citizens who wanted clarification. Some good suggestions came from the hearing, but unfortunately most had been discussed and discarded earlier as unworkable.

But two gentlemen allowed politics to get into the discussion of the budget. This was indeed unfortunate since these two gentlemen threw out remarks and unjust insinuations apparently just for the purpose of division. And division is something that the city does not need now at a crucial point in its history.

Constructive criticism is always a good thing, but when City Treas. V. A. Etheridge and Stat Sen. Edward T. Caton III, both elected last year on an "anti" platform, seemingly attempt to divide by planting an unfounded seed of doubt in the minds of spectators and the general public through apparent histrionics for the press, this leaves the bounds of constructive criticism and becomes division for the sake of division and politics.

The charges made by Etheridge were apparently attempts to confuse and condemn, although on each matter he has had a chance to speak up many times before. He has not. On other matters where he charged illegal procedures, (See front page story) if he has any concrete evidence or any real contribution to make it is his duty as a citizen and elected official to come forward with it and let it be known publicly. Charge by insinuation is bad for the public and for the city Mr. Etheridge serves.

As far as Senator Caton's repeated allegations that City Council is "manipulated"...he mentioned this twice Monday... again no specific charges were made. No names were named. And no evidence was produced. If Senator Caton has something to say, we suggest he say it now and stop trying to perpetuate a political divison on which he was elected last year.

It should also be noted that B. R. Middleton, also elected with Etheridge and Caton on the same ticket spoke at the budget hearing, urging passage of the school portion of the budget without cuts and saying that he saw no alternative to the tax increase. These responsible words from a member of the House of Delegates went beyond politics and for this we thank him.

We are tired of division and political overtones to everything. Both can only serve to cause unjust doubt in the minds of the citizens, no matter from what ticket the officials were elected.

In this time of stress for the mushrooming city, we suggest that such division is petty, uncalled for and damaging both inside and outside the city. Let us hope this is the last instance of this for the good of everyone.

Our City Symbol-a Disgrace

The city symbol, the old lighthouse at Cape Henry is a disgrace. The condition of the outside, the inside and the grounds around it are unspeakable. And it need not be so.

What needs to be done is a joining of forces of all interested parties for the sole purpose of upgrading the historic old monument to its proper place as a tourist attraction and landmark.

The problem seems to be that no one is doing enough. It is owned by the federal government. It is the symbol of the city of Virginia Beach. It lies physically within Fort Story which has nothing whatsoever to do with it. But fortunately officials there at least took the initiative recently by getting a little paint over the dirty words written on the inside.

Maybe someone can now add a little disinfectant to cover the horrible odors there or maybe provide some restrooms nearby.

We do not condemn any group or suggest that any one group take up the banner, but this is ridiculous. It will be on the newly-created Virginia Beach Tour this summer. Pity the tourist who visits it. And what will he think of Virginia Beach?

It should be cleaned up. A museum should be set up. It should be manned. And the grounds around it should be beautified.

If it takes a coalition of the federal, state and city government, historical and antiquitys societies, beautification commissions, interested civic groups, chambers of commerce and anyone else, then they should all finally join together and do something about the disgrace of our city symbol and a magnificent landmark on the site of the landing of the first permanent settlers in America. And it should be done without any more delay by too many people.

STILL THE HOPE OF THE WORLD

Happy Holiday

This weekend marks the commemoration of two of the most important events in Christianity. . . .The Crucifixion and the Resurrection. The sadness and ultimate joy are both remembered. Christians everywhere will spend time reflecting upon the religious aspects, then break out the Easter finery for the joyous aspects.

This weekend too marks the beginning of the Jewish Passover, marking also joy and sadness. The holiday celebrates freedom of the Hebrews from the land of Egypt and commemorates the beginning of their long journey to the Promised Land.

Both holidays contain sadness and joy. Both religions will mark the events with prayer and feasting. Can brotherhood of man really be so far away?

Happy Easter and Happy Passover.

SUN SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

In The Easter Parade

"Would you please fix my supper. I'm starving," he said.

"In a minute," she answered. "I want to get this seam in. I have to have the dresses and coats finished by Easter, you know."

"Sure, I understand, but if I don't eat when we walk on the boardwalk in the Easter Parade, a slight gust of wind will come along and blow me away," he said angrily.

"It'll take a lot more than a gust," she said, ignoring his stomach loudly growling. "I've been meaning to talk to you about your waistline."

"Very funny," he said, "But it's 8:30. Can't we eat now?"

"All right, but I may not finish the dresses and coats for the girls in time."

"You've been working on them daily for three months," he yelled. "Maybe you should have started on New Year's Day."

"I haven't been working that long, but come to think of it, it does seem like it."

"Will your making the entire outfits honestly save me any money?"

"Well," she said. "It depends on how you look at it."

"I look at it through the checkbook."

"Then...so...But it won't cost too much more than if I had bought them at a store," she said, hedging a little. "But you want them to look nice, don't you?"

"Sure..." he said. "But with the shoes, hats and little pocketbooks you bought, they'll be the most expensively dressed kids in town. Think there'll be enough left for me to buy a new tie?"

"Maybe the Easter Bunny will bring you one," she said, chucking him under the chin with the pair of scissors she was holding.

"If the Easter Bunny came in here right now, I'd fix him for dinner."

"It could be worse, you know, Remember there'll be another child next year."

"Maybe I can get a loan from the anti-poverty funds," he said to no one in particular.

"Besides I don't tell the kids about an Easter Bunny anyway. I told them that the funny-looking animal in the shopping center was really a man dressed up like a bunny."

"Shame on you, destroying all those little childhood dreams."

"Are you kidding?" she asked. "Your older daughter even doubts Santa Claus, and she has since she was two. Times have changed since we were growing up. Incidentally, after she finished talking to the Easter Bunny and putting him on about all the things she wants for Easter she came back and informed me loudly it wasn't a man dressed up in a bunny suit....that it was a woman. That upset some little kid standing next to her terribly."

"To say nothing of the Easter Bunny," he said, "What's she going to be like by the time she's five?"

"Let's just not think about that," she shuddered. "That's two months away."

"Please, can we eat now. All this talk about the Easter Bunny has made me even hungrier."

"If I stop now, I'll never finish in time," she said.

"Maybe the Easter Bunny will help you," he said.

"Oh Daddy," came the voice of the four-year old who walked in, "there's no such thing as an Easter Bunny. And I want Mother to finish my coat. Can I fix you a TV dinner?"

"Oh, good grief," he muttered.

"That's what Charlie Brown says, not the Easter Bunny."

Guest Editorial

Do Americans Really Want New Gun Laws?

One week ago the following editorial was received by the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN. On that same day the Senate Judiciary Committee voted 9 to 4 to reject a gun-control bill backed strongly by President Johnson as part of his anti-crime program.

The bill would have controlled the interstate sale of firearms and over the counter sales to non-residents of a state. Even a lesser modification of the same bill was also defeated, as was a watered down amendment that would have applied the measure only to hand guns. The bill was introduced and backed by a long time advocate of strong gun-control laws, Senator Thomas Dodd of Connecticut.

That same night Dr. Martin Luther King was shot and killed in Memphis by a man who had recently purchased the automatic rifle with telescopic lenses.

The editorial which appeared in the AMERICAN RIFLEMAN is reprinted with permission.

For years, the campaign to clamp rigid firearms controls on the American public has been buoyed by polls indicating that much of the public wants stronger gun laws. Now there is growing reason to wonder how real this "demand" actually is.

Musing aloud on a Washington, D.C., television station, the Rev. J. Elliott Corbett, secretary of an incorporated crusade that supports the Administration-Kennedy concept of firearms restrictions, asked rather disconsolately why so few of the polled multitudes who presumably favor gun laws take the trouble to write to their Congressmen. One possible answer: People realize increasingly that passing a gun law won't do much to solve the crime problem.

As the Rev. Corbett pointed out, 73% of those questioned in the latest Gallup Poll on whether gun buyers should be required to get police permits were reported as replying "Yes." That survey was taken last Aug. 20. What went unmentioned was that it showed a distinct decrease in public sentiment for gun permits. The first Gallup Poll on the question, July 12, 1964, registered 78% "Yes."

Not only has support as recorded by Gallup gone down, but opposition to a gun permit system has increased from 17% to 23%. Some of the earlier "no opinion" element has formed an opinion--and they're against police permits.

While the Gallup trend seems to show clearly that more and more Americans don't care to submit their Constitutional right to possess arms to the decision of some police officer, the statistical theory that the public yearns for tough gun laws has taken an even worse beating elsewhere.

In recent months, television stations in Washington, D.C., Syracuse, N.Y., Dayton, Ohio, St. Paul, Minn., Albuquerque, N. Mex., and Memphis, Tenn., have given audiences a chance to express themselves by "hot line" telephone on how they feel on various proposals to regulate guns.

The total of persons heard from in the 6 stations' telephone polls came to well above 25,000 in 5 fairly scattered States and the District of Columbia. At least 19,000 of these opposed new gun laws. That figures out at 76% AGAINST where the Gallup Poll reported almost exactly the opposite sentiment, 73% FOR.

While the television sampling did not cover all parts of the country, it did include several large Eastern cities as well as other areas. Perhaps, also, it attracted more response from citizens who believe in the right to bear arms--but, if so, why did the rest remain silent if they really want new gun laws?

The answer may well be that routine opinion surveys sometimes fail to reflect the real public feeling. After all, several predicted Presidential victories for Alf Landon in 1936 and Thomas Dewey in 1948.

Certain polls adverse to firearms ownership, we gather, have relied on questioning fewer than 2,000 carefully selected persons in the entire nation. That's less than one in 100,000. Obviously, the sampling included few if any of the 19,000 who responded "No" to gun laws on television.

The direct conflict in findings between national surveys of "public opinion" and the spontaneous telephone responses of the TV stations is mystifying, to say the least. Perhaps some fact-finding agency ought to look into it.

Meanwhile those who trumpet about the "public demand" for severe gun controls might hit a softer note and recognize that the demand, if there is one, has decreased as fast as people realize that the harassment of law-abiding gun owners will not reduce crime.

Keep Flowers Fresh

Beautiful Spring flowers in an arrangement will last longer by following a few simple rules:

1. Select flowers — tulips, daffodils or iris — that are still tightly in bud. Allow them to open in your arrangement.

2. Assemble the materials you'll need: vase or bowl, sharp knife, pin holder or block of floral foam, floral clay or cellophane tape.

3. Cut each flower stem on a slant with sharp knife. This makes it easier for flowers to absorb water. If flowers are not to be arranged immediately, place them in a pail of water wrapped in florist or wax paper.

4. Anchor pin holder in dry container with floral clay. If floral foam is used, keep it in place by taping with cellophane tape to the side of the container.

5. When arranging, keep taller flowers in the rear; in centerpieces they should be in the middle of the arrangement. Use sprays of heather, forsythia or pussywillow to complement the bulb flowers.

6. Keep tulips, daffodils and iris in at least 3 inches of water.

Legislators Report to Women

The members of the Princess Anne Woman's Club of Virginia Beach at its recent meeting at the Pine Tree Inn heard State Sen. Edward T. Caton III and Delegates B.R. Middleton and Kenneth N. Whitehurst, Jr. praise the women's clubs for their efforts on behalf of legislation needed for mental health and education.

It was a "busy and progressive" session according to the delegation, and they expressed the honor in representing the people of Virginia Beach. Sen. Caton commented favorably on the legislature that departed from tradition to be recognized by having a more modern constitution. Del. Middleton was impressed by the legislature that was passed, but was disappointed that bills to kill tuition grants in Virginia failed. Delegate Whitehurst said he felt that more was done in 60 days than had been done in 60 years.

"I accept this check with great humility and gratitude," said George P. Leigh, Jr., president of the Tidewater Heart Association, when Mrs. M.B. Zoll presented him a check for $587.00 (proceeds realized from the Heart Fund Fashion Show sponsored by the club). Mrs. Zoll also presented Leigh a check for $50 as a donation from the club. The club voted to sponsor the Heart Show in 1969.

Mrs. R.H. Owner and Mrs. Lacey Robeson reported on the Tidewater District Spring Meeting. Mrs. Zoll congratulated club members who were winners in arts, crafts and literature in district competition and whose work will be entered in state competition in Roanoke on April 30-May 2. Winners were Mrs. P.E. Woolard (professional watercolor); Mrs. H.W. Graham (knitting); Mrs. Earl Du Val (light verse) and Mrs. R.H. Owen (serious verse).

Mrs. Earl Du Val and Mrs. H.W. Graham were elected to serve as delegates to the V.F.W.C. Convention in Roanoke. Mrs. J.D. Wilson and Mrs. T.E. Leesnitzer were elected as alternates.

Mrs. A.V. Kuun, Mrs. R.M. Faust and Mrs. R.S. Marshall were welcomed as new members.

Kenneth Bell, choir director for Forebee-Halstead Methodist Church furnished music for the program.

Mrs. D.L. Van de Wiele was program chairman for the April meeting. Mrs. George Aldridge was music chairman.

Beat Faster

Egg whites beat up faster and to larger volume if removed from the refrigerator about a half-hour before use. They should be at room temperature before beating.

Vicky Lynn Umphlett was the object of all these smiles, as members of the Little Creek CPO Wives' Club presented her with a check toward the cost of her medical expenses, including the lifesaving kidney dialysis machine in the foreground. Left to right are Mrs. Keith Murphy, Mrs. S.H. McCarroll, Vicky Lynn, Mrs. Walter Sult and Mrs. Henry C. Umphlett.

Military Wives' Club Notes

By Mary Wright

Little Creek Chief Petty Officers' Wives had the opportunity recently to see just what the long hours they had put in at Christmas at the Little Creek Country Store really added up to.

the CPO Wives Club was one of innumerable Tidewater organizations which came to the aid of Vicky Lynn Umphlett earlier this year, when it was learned that her life could be saved if she had a kidney dialysis machine at her disposal--to take over the job of cleansing her bloodstream that her own kidneys could not perform.

Little Creek wives raised their initial contributions to the Vicky Lynn Assistance Fund by wrapping gifts at the base during the Christmas season. They added to that amount through a fund drive early this spring, and rounded the figure to a total from their treasury.

When Vicky Lynn and her mother returned to Tidewater from San Francisco--where she had spent several weeks being prepared to operate the machine--several of the wives club members visited retired Chief and Mrs. Umphlett at home.

"It was the kind of day that made us all happy. Just seeing the family together," said Mrs. Samuel McCarroll, club president. "Vicky Lynn looks like a different person."

Little Creek Officers' Wives

Russell Stanger, conductor of the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra will be the guest lecturer for the Amphibious Force Officers' Wives Lecture Series, Wednesday, April 24.

Coffee will be served at 10 a.m. in the Lynnhaven Room of the Officers' Club. The Lecture is scheduled to begin at 10:30.

At Ft. Story

The Ft. Story Officers' Wives will hostess their monthly coffee Wednesday, April 17, at the post Officers' Club. But most wives are already looking past April to next month, with several activities scheduled.

May 2 is the date for the next social meeting, a salad fete, with each wife bringing her salad specialty and its recipe to share with the other wives. There will be prizes awarded for the best salads.

Red Cross Orientation Day, to help prepare the wives as bloodmobile assistants and volunteer workers at the dispensary.

At the end of the month, comes the spring luau, for the ladies and their husbands.

And Norfolk

At the Fifth Naval District Officers' Wives luncheon, April 16, at the base Officers' Club, new officers for the coming year will be elected.

Supply wives will host the curry luncheon, which begins with cocktails at noon. The luncheon will be served at 12:45. The price is $2 and reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Robert Holt at 340-1830, or Mrs. Winston Adair at 423-7661.

Cook Early for Easter

Careful planning and "do ahead" dishes eliminate the last-minute rush of getting Easter dinner on the table after church services. How convenient it is, to have part of the meal prepared in advance! One such item which can be made days ahead is dessert. A fancy dessert which requires no worrying about at the last minute is a boon to every busy homemaker. English Toffee Refrigerator Dessert is just that type of fancy delectability. Sunshine-golden Kellogg's Corn Flake Crumbs mixed with nutmeats form the base and topping for the creamy, chocolate filling. Either make this dessert the day before and chill it overnight, or make it several days before and freeze it. English Toffee Refrigerator Dessert thaws in only 15 minutes.

ENGLISH TOFFEE REFRIGERATOR DESSERT

4 cups Kellogg's Corn Flakes or 1½ cup Kellogg's Corn Flake Crumbs
1/3 cup soft butter or margarine
2 T. sugar
1 cup finely chopped nutmeats
1/2 cup soft butter or margarine
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
2 squares (2oz.) unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 teas. vanilla flavoring
3 eggs

If using Corn Flakes, crush into fine crumbs. Comine Corn Flake Crumbs, butter, sugar and nutmeats; mix well. Press half the Crums mixture into bottom of buttered 8 x 8-inch pan. Reserve remaining Crumbs mixture for topping.

Measure butter and confectioners' sugar into mixing bowl; stir in chocolate and vanilla. Add eggs one at a time, beating about 5 minutes after each addition. Chill several hours or wrap and freeze. Thaw fifteen minutes before cutting into serving pieces. Serve topped with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream. Yield: 6 servings, 4 x 2 1/2-inches.

Sewing Sets Record

Not long ago a school teacher, on a visit to New York, went to see a Broadway show. Between the acts she found herself in a genteel staring match with a woman acknowledged as one of the best dressed in the world.

"Why's that woman giving you the eye?" the school teacher was asked by her husband.

"Oh, she's probably trying to figure out who I am," the school teacher muttered.

"How come?" the husband asked.

"Because our dresses are made of the same material," the school teacher replied, adding a bit proudly, "But, of course, I made mine myself."

The Institute of Life Insurance, which reports on matters of family money management, estimates that women who sew at home are spending more than $1.5 billion a year on supplies.

The statistics on home-sewing are awesome. It's estimated that 41 million American women have electric sewing machines. Last year was a record setter for the sewing machine industry. One company alone sold over a million machines for home use.

But sewing machines are only a small part of the home sewing picture. In 1967, the women of America bought 120 million patterns, more than $800 million worth of fabric and $350 million worth of buttons, threads, zippers, trimmings and accessories.

There are, of course, many reasons why home sewing is growing increasingly popular. Some women consider making clothes a wonderful way to display their originality. Others say it's the only way they can get exactly what they want to fit them. Sewing gives them a great range of style, fabric and color choices.

Yet, the same economy formula can be applied to less expensive patterns and fabrics. In all price ranges, the savings can be proportionately sizable.

The people who cater to the home sewing trade have in recent years made it easier and easier for women. Sewing machines have been improved. Patterns have been kept easy yet stylish. In addition, the fashionable "loose" look has made things easier for the home dressmaker.

Of course it takes time and energy, but apparently being nimble with a thimble is more popular now than it was in the days of the ladies sewing circle.

Then, there's that once a month when a girl could use a good old-fashioned medicine.

Maybe you feel just plain bad then. Or maybe a little lonely and sad; like you could use a pair of arms around you.

Well, we have just the thing for this once a month time. Lydia E. Pinkham Tablets. They're made with gentle, natural ingredients, including one that works to help relax tightened muscles that give you cramps. Plus a little iron that a girl could use at a time like this. And, you don't run any chance of the kind of unpleasant side effects you could get from some of the newer drugs.

With an old-fashioned problem like this, couldn't you take an old-fashioned medicine.

Is there a meat-and-potatoes man in your life? His taste in food can be a blessing to the budget. The savory stews, meat pies and pot roasts, robust fare that earlier generations of Americans enjoyed, still make old-fashioned good eating. And you save money when you do the slow cooking with electricity. Like this SWEET SOUR POT ROAST.

4 lbs. beef pot roast
2 tbls. fat
¼ cup prepared mustard
3 tbls. Worcestershire sauce
2 tbls. vinegar
¾ cup water
10 gingersnaps, crushed

Brown meat on all sides in hot fat in a Dutch-oven type pan. Combine all other ingredients except gingersnaps and pour over meat. Simmer, covered, about three hours or until tender. Remove meat from pan; keep hot. Add gingersnap crumbs to gravy; bring to a boil, stirring smooth. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

The electricity to cook this dish will cost less than 2c. A real friend to the budget, electricity!

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Thursday, April 11, 1968

These perky flower boxes at Bayside Post Office are just part of Thoroughgood Garden Club's prize winning project. The club also improved and beautified the picnic area by Hermitage School. Other flowers will be planted in the boxes for year-round color.

HANDS Winners Announced at Meeting

Thoroughgood Garden Club and Thalia Garden Club took first prizes in their divisions of the annual Home and Neighborhood Development (HANDS) contest.

Winners were announced at the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs meeting Wednesday by Mrs. Arthur Gallagher, HANDS chairman for the Council. Cash prizes will be presented by Sears, the local sponsor, the annual luncheon of the Council on May 29. Prize money must be used for new or continuing projects.

Thoroughgood Garden Club will receive $100 in the Public Buildings Division for their clean-up and landscaping of the picnic area at Hermitage School. They also planted flower boxes in front of Bayside Post Office.

Second prize in the division went to Bay Shore Garden Club ($65) for redoing the landscaping of the 22nd Street Library. Chesopeian Colony Garden Club took the $50 third prize for the landscaping of a large sign at Foundry Methodist Church and pruning and mulching existing shrubs around the church.

In the Neighborhood Areas, Business Areas Division, Thalia Garden Club won $100 for the installation and landscaping of two brick columns and wrought iron gates at the entrance.

Second prize of $65 went to Kings Grant Garden Club for redoing the landscaping at the entrance, planting along fences, and in front of a store and repainting of the sign and gas lights along entrance wall.

Chesopeian Colony Garden Club and Broad Bay Garden Club tied for third and will receive $25 each. Chesopeian Colony re-planted and 'rejuevenated' landscaping at the entrance and installed a sign designating it as a HANDS project. Broad Bay redid the entrance to Bay Island, including pruning and removing shrubs, painting brick columns and fence and installing wrought iron letters and planting new plants.

This gate is just one of a pair, along with landscaping, which won first prize for Thalia Garden Club.

Bay Colony Garden Club won honorable mention ($10) for trees planted, adding to a continuing project at the entrance and also planting new shrubs. Point O'Woods also won $10 honorable mention for general clean up of the entrance and planting of pyracantha bushes along the fence of the main street at the entrance.

Mrs. Gallagher reported that there were 16 entries, but there were 23 projects since several clubs submitted more than one.

Mrs. C. L. Hershberger, president of the Council, urged all clubs to enter the contest this year.

Mrs. Hershberger appointed a committee to check with the City of Virginia Beach on planting along public streets. The Council members agreed that although the City is doing an "excellent job", some of the trees and shrubs are too close together. Mrs. Gilmore Tillbrook, Mrs. Gallagher and Mrs. E. A. Hoffmeister were appointed to the committee.

Mrs. M. J. Schwartz, flower show chairman, reported that $643.62 was realized from the spring flower show after bills were paid.

The Council's annual luncheon meeting will be at the Ocean Hearth Restaurant on May 2 with the business meeting beginning at 10:30 a.m. Reservations must be made in advance to Mrs. Richard C. Dunaja

'In Your Easter Bonnet...'

It's almost time for the Boardwalk Easter Parade, a springtime tradition in Virginia Beach.

The judging of paraders will take place between 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. There will be prizes in ten categories ranging from toddlers to the best dressed family.

Judges this year will include nine men and one woman. Officers from the standing NATO Force Atlantic have been invited along with Al Bishop, general manager of radio station WVAB, and Carolyn McAllen, woman's editor of THE VIRGINIA BEACH SUN. Special seats will be available for the other 60-75 officers aboard the five NATO ships.

The 30 piece concert band from the Navy School of Music at Little Creek will play during the parade which will begin at 24th Street and Oceanfront. John Griffin of the Ocean Hiway Association will be master of ceremonies. Barbara Leitman of Pembroke Mall is chairman of the festivities.

The annual Easter Parade has evolved from the custom of the "old timers" to stroll down the Boardwalk in their finery after church services and compare outfits with their neighbors.

See you all on the Boardwalk Sunday afternoon.

P.S. In case of rain, the parade will be held inside at the Pembroke Mall.

This isn't the way Boardwalk Easter paraders will be dressed this Sunday at the 1:30 p.m. festivities. But it was the way Nick Nelms, left, and Amber Rau dressed for the 1956 Golden Jubilee Parade.

Twenty-three of the incoming and outgoing officers of the Virginia Beach Elks and their wives were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Simiele following the installation ceremonies. Serving themselves are Mrs. William Carnes, Mrs. Guy G. Narter, Carnes and Narter, new Exalted Ruler.

McAllen's ALLEY

By Carolyn McAllen

Guess What, Daddy?

"Daddy, Daddy, guess what? Mommy wrecked the car."

"Hey, Daddy, Mommy wrecked the car all gone."

Thus the three monsters wrecked Mommy's hopes of postponing the news at least until Daddy got inside the house after returning from a week's trip to Indiana.

What they failed to mention was that they were the culprits who wrecked the tape player. Anyhow, my husband's comment, after regaining some measure of calm, was that it was too bad I didn't wreck the old car instead of the good one.

And to add to everything else, the oldest daughter had her seventh birthday Sunday--with party. She woke everybody up at 6 a.m. to remind them too--members of the family that is.

I baked a chocolate cake to her orders. Then, after I was halfway through icing it, she told me she wanted white frosting instead of peppermint because one of her friends didn't like peppermint. I told her that was just too bad. Want to guess which little girl did not even show up for the party?

Sealtest rescued me at just the right moment too. I had forgotten to get ice cream Friday, and when I got home (after the wreck) Friday night, I found two half gallons of their newest flavor all neatly packed in a box with dry ice.

It's a wild flavor--chocolate-marshmellow-cherry. It's sort of like a sundae that has melted down and refrozen. The kids loved it--all except the five-year-old and she doesn't like her ice cream any way except heated. And I refused to warm it for her.

Soroptimists To Convene

About 1780 women from 62 clubs are expected at the South Atlantic Region, Soroptimist Federation of the Americas, Inc., when they convene at the Hotel Chamberlin in Hampton on April 19-21.

The theme of the conference is "Can Soroptimism Meet the Challenge of the '70s?" Saturday sessions will be devoted to committee reports, educational workshops and electing officers. One of the highlights of the luncheon on Saturday will be the presentation of an award to the winner in the Soroptimist Youth Citizenship Contest.

Installation Is Tuesday

The Saint Nicholas Women's Club will hold the third annual installation dinner at Bow Creek Country Club Tuesday, April 16. The evening will begin with a sherry hour at 6:30, followed by dinner at 7:30.

The new officers to be installed are President, Mrs. Charles Traub; Vice Pres., Mrs. John Stanley; Recording Sec., Mrs. Donald Meyer; Treas., Mrs. Robert Reckling; and Corresponding Sec., Mrs. Frank Castellucci.

Anyone desiring tickets for the dinner can contact Mrs. John Stanley or Mrs. Ramon Morano.

Author, Arranger to Speak

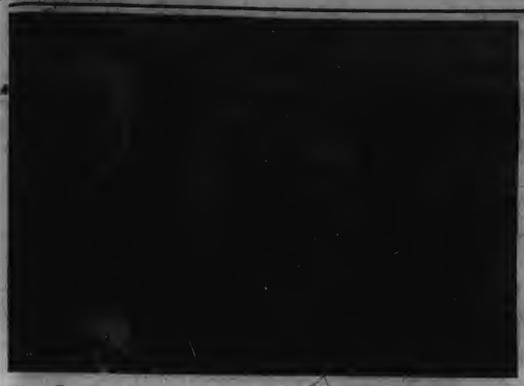

Mrs. Rae L. Goldson, author of "Contemporary Flower Arrangement" and "The Workbook of Containers, Stands and Mechanics," will speak on "Modern Trends-The New Look" at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, April 18, for a program sponsored by the Tidewater Council of Accredited Flower Show Judges.

The program will be given at the Garden Center Educational Building at 745 E. 29th St. in Norfolk. Admission is $2.

Noted for her contemporary compositions and her work with dried materials, Mrs. Goldson is a nationally accredited life flower show judge and a prize-winning flower-show exhibitor.

Beauty Offered Beach Ladies

A new office for Virginia Beach beautification officially opened this week--one that has nothing to do with garden clubs or city planning.

The Fashion Two Twenty offices of Laskin Road, directed by Miss Frankie Shue, had its official ribbon-cutting Tuesday morning. Mayor Frank A. Dusch and Al Mailhes, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce participated in the ceremonies.

Fashion Two Twenty, a cosmetics studio for Virginia Beach distaffers, sponsored a one-day workshop Monday which was attended by over 250 directors and associate directors of the Fashion Two Twenty line.

The ribbon-cutting was followed by a luncheon at the Cavalier Cape and Cabana Club. At the luncheon were Alice B. White, of WVAB Radio; Mayor Dusch; Ed Kilner, Terry Grandee and Larry Edmunds, field representatives from the Two Twenty home office at Aurora, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Lou Shue; Georgia Johnson; Bea Caltzer; Dick Ruttenberg; Jim and Helen Jones, Director of the Tidewater area; and Miss Shue, Associate Director of Virginia Beach.

The studio will offer cosmetic consultations free of charge.

Randi Bryant Elected SGA Pres. at UNC-G

Randi Bryant

Miranda Catherine Bryant of Virginia Beach has been elected president of the Student Government Association at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro in a recent student election.

"Randi" is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bryant, Allerson Lane.

She has been active in a number of organizations at UNC-G, including the Student Development Council, Honor Court, and the student legislature. She is a member of the Golden Chain honor society and has been a columnist for the student newspaper, "Carolinian," for two years.

In 1966-67, she was the state chairman for the Collegiate Council for the United Nations and represented the University at conferences on international affairs at Harvard University, Sarah Lawrence College, Duke University and East Carolina University. She served as chairman of student orientation in 1967.

She is an English major at UNC-G and a graduate of Cradock high school.

She will assume the duties of president of the SGA in the 1968-69 academic year.

Virginia Wesleyan president Lambuth Clark lunched with high school students visiting the college last weekend for the second annual College Orientation Day.

SPCA Plans Move Ahead

"We're quite encouraged," commented Mrs. J.W. Sills about plans to begin work on the Virginia Beach S.P.C.A. building.

Authorization has been given by the S.P.C.A. board of directors for the clearing of the site to begin. However, actual construction will not begin until final plans are approved, Mrs. Sills, president of the group, said. The site at the intersection of General Booth Boulevard and Oceana Boulevard was donated by the City.

New plans for the building were recently donated by John Waller, architect, following consultation with Mrs. Mary Frances Morrisette, head of the Norfolk S.P.C.A.

Mrs. Sills said that $6,000 has been donated towards the building so far. She said that anyone who has materials or labor to donate should contact Reid Irvin, chairman of the building committee.

"These are far, far better plans than we had before--very workable." Included in the building will be a reception room, office, treatment and operating room plus cages for both small and large animals. "We'll have convertible cages so the number and size can be changed," Mrs. Sills explained.

Other officers are Mrs. Charles M. Lovitt, secretary; Joseph Lovering, treasurer; M. Frank Abel, Mrs. James A. Beasley, Jr., Charles Grandy, David Pender III, Sidney S. Kellam, Robert Cromwell Jr., M.I. Birchstein and Mrs. Mary Thompson, board of directors.

Birchstein is chairman of fund raising, and Abel and Lovering make up the shelter committee.

Wesleyan Greets Students At College Orientation Day

About 75 Tidewater and Peninsula high school sophomores and juniors participated in College Orientation Day Saturday, April 5, at Virginia Wesleyan College.

According to Donald E. Davis, director of admissions and financial aid at the college, the orientation Day "was sponsored as a service to the community...to acquaint the students and their parents with a general idea of what college life is like."

The day is an annual affair, including luncheon, a tour of the college campus, and several discussions of problems and suggestions to the college-bound student. "We aren't doing this only with the idea of attracting students to Virginia Wesleyan," said Davis, "We have designed the program to get the high school students thinking about college early. By the time they're seniors, it's too late."

At Saturday's session, Lambuth M. Clark, president of Virginia Wesleyan, welcomed the students to the campus. Clark was followed by J. B. Massey, chairman of the Commission on Secondary Schools for the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary School and Headmaster at Norfolk Academy, who spoke on "Suggestions for College Bound Students." Davis discussed "Financial Aid and College" with the students.

The day's program ended with a panel of Virginia Wesleyan students discussing "Adjusting to College Life." The panel presentation was followed by a question and answer period.

Students Participate In Model UN

Eight Virginia Wesleyan College students, including three from Virginia Beach, will be participating in a Model United Nations Assembly at Virginia Polytechnic Institute this month.

This is an annual program sponsored by the Virginia Methodist Student Movement (MSM). The three-day conference will be held April 19-21.

Virginia Wesleyan's students, freshmen and sophomores, will represent Poland and Yugoslavia. Their faculty advisor will be Col. Robert E. Tucker, USA, Ret., who served for a period during his military career as a faculty member and secretary of the U.S. Armed Forces Staff College here. Col. Tucker is now an instructor in history at Virginia Wesleyan.

The three students representing Yugoslavia at the Model U.N. will be Dyanne Strohkorb from Virginia Beach, Cathee Sawyer from Norfolk, and Robert Gustafson from Chesapeake.

The three Virginia Wesleyan students who will represent Poland are Louis L. Eisenberg from Norfolk, Mark Rosenthal from Virginia Beach, and Ernest Duncan from Woodbury, New Jersey. Alternates are Larry Kurtz from Norfolk and Tim Early from Virginia Beach.

The Model United Nations program includes committee sessions and general assembly sessions. Each country (college delegation) is encouraged to submit resolutions in line with policies of that particular country.

The Virginia Wesleyan students have been planning for their participation in this program since January.

Future Engineers To Have Conference

BLACKSBURG -- University and college professors from across the country will gather at Virginia Tech this summer to attend a "Summer Institute of Mathematical Applications in Political Science for College Teachers."

The program, supported by a grant of $51,620 from the National Science Foundation, will be held on the university campus June 16 through July 31. It will be the second such summer institute held at Tech.

Dr. Joseph L. Bernd, head of the department of political science of Va. Tech will serve as director of the institute. Dr. Bernd directed the previous Tech conference as well as two others prior to coming to the university from Southern Methodist University three years ago.

The institute will provide the 35 attending professors an opportunity to do a full quarter's non-credit course work in mathematics, statistics and the political application of mathematics to specific problems.

The summer institute, Bernd said, is designed to "refurbish the ideas of political scientists" and to bring them abreast of changes which have come about since they received their degrees.

Information concerning the institute will be distributed to colleges and universities in Virginia and other states at an early date.

Additional information can be obtained by writing Dr. Joseph L. Bernd, Director of the Summer Institute of Mathematical Application in Political Science, Lane Hall, Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, Va. 24061.

Scouters Hold Outdoor Meet

On Saturday and Sunday, March 30 and 31, leaders from Boy Scout troops in the PAVAB District, which is Virginia Beach, participated in the outdoors part of the Boy Scout Training session.

The men spent the weekend living out of doors, learning the outdoor skills they will be responsible for teaching their troop members.

Bill Koski, District Scout Training Coordinator, planned the weekend. Training Scoutmaster for the program was Dick Younkeman, committee chairman for Troop 430, sponsored by the Suburban Christian Church. Jack Speidel, Scoutmaster of Troop 363 sponsored by Haygood Methodist Church, was Training Senior Patrol Leader.

New officers and Hatchett before the luncheon. Officers are, left to right, Mrs. Hartmen, Mrs. Pardue, Mrs. St. Germain, Mrs. Hawthorne and Mrs. Harvey. Absent from the picture is Mrs. Parramore.

Hatchett Speaks to Garden Club

"If we develop it, there's no stopping this city," City Manager W. Russell Hatchett told members of the Linkhorn Park Garden Club Friday at the Capes at their installation luncheon.

"I think we're perking up a little bit downtown now and on our highways and byways. I give you ladies and your counterparts in other clubs the credit for it."

Although he said he had not planned to mention the new City budget, he did point out that $54,000 has been allocated for special projects for beautification.

"I think our city has a wonderful, wonderful future," said Hatchett. "It's a changing world, and it's costly. You don't find many good substitutes for money."

On raising property taxes locally, Hatchett commented that he had not seen or heard any objections to the proposed 10% federal income surtax proposed by the president. "And that's a tax on a tax."

For the future, Hatchett said he hopes the Daniel Boone trail will be developed, and that a small portable amphitheatre can be constructed at the Norwegian Lady.

"One thing I regret before leaving office is that the City has not purchased eight or ten thousand acres in Blackwater for recreation."

New officers of the club are Mrs. P.C. Hartman, president; Mrs. Major Pardue, first vice president; Mrs. Donald St. Germain, second vice president; Mrs. H.A. Hawthorne, recording secretary; Mrs. Jack Harvey, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. William Parramore, treasurer.

NOW IS THE TIME TO...

Plan for the earliest sweet corn in your neighborhood. Start indoors (2 or 3 seeds in 4-inch pots) and transplant into garden rows in late May.

Add some new variety in your rose garden by planting some of the new roses.

Sow carrot and beet seed in your garden.

Get rid of tent caterpillars by spraying malathion into their webbed nests.

Kill crabgrass seeds before they sprout with pre-emergent chemicals. If you plan to reseed, use a turf food and Tupersan combination... if no reseeding is necessary, use a turf food that contains Dacthal.

Prune climbing vines, and re-train and add support if needed.

Spray for wild onions in your lawn. Many Tidewater lawns are filled with these disgraceful pests. Use a turf weed killer - or dig out the bulb by hand. You will probably have to spray 2-3 times, for the bulb must be killed - and it sets 2-3 inches below the soil surface.

Over-grown evergreens like the juniper, arborvitae, or chamaecyparis may now be cut back several feet because new growth will soon cover upsome of the scars of drastic pruning. Evergreens such as the spruce or cedrus and most pines do not look well if they are topped. These plants are best located where there is sufficient space for them to grow into specimen plants with no pruning necessary.

Light pruning of needled evergreens and broadleaf evergreens may be done now to keep the plant from getting any larger.

Boxwoods often need to be thinned. This thinning may be done at this season or any other. Pruning boxwood is important in order to: (1) keep the plant at the desired size; (2) improve the appearance and condition of a plant which is thin at the top; (3) develop strong framework against damage from snow and wind.

QUESTION BOX

Q. We have several old, very large camellia plants that are beginning to crowd the yard. It seems risky to try to move them. Can they be pruned? D.S.I., Princess Anne

A. Camellias can be pruned lightly at any time. Heavy pruning should be done immediately after plants complete flowering. In many old gardens where camellias have grown to tree size, they are pruned each season by cutting long sprays of blooms.

Q. I have American hollies in my yard. When they were planted the foliage was a rich green. After a year or two the leaves became infested with some form of insect that bores holes in the leaves and apparently lays eggs inside the leaves. The leaves become discolored, streaked as if etched with dull yellow and dark brown paths of something that must have hatched out inside the leaves. Can you tell me how to control these insects? H.I.S., Bayside

A. Your hollies are infested with the holly leaf-miner. A satisfactory control is to spray with Malathion three times at ten-day intervals, beginning when the mature insects start to fly. That is about the first of April. The newer systemics that are taken up into the plant through the soil or leaves are also an effective means of control.

Q. Are vegetables grown on soils deficient in minerals that the body requires as healthful as those grown on soils well supplied with these minerals?

A. When soils are so deficient in certain elements that they would not supply these to the body in sufficient quantities, the plants would not develop properly. Such vegetables would be very weak or might even die before maturity. Vegetables and fruits found in local markets are well supplied with the elements required in the average daily diet. Of course, additional protein and fats are generally needed in addition. Plants require the same mineral elements as do animals.

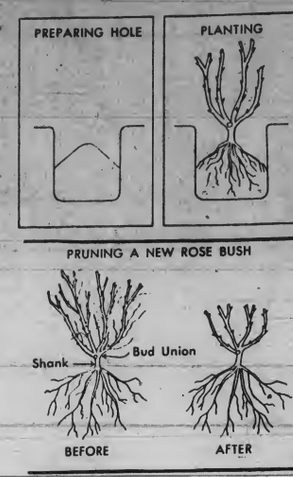

Q. Is it possible to grow and ripen tomatoes properly under lights in a basement where heat would not be a problem? What kind of lights would be best? E.W.W., Virginia Beach

A. The amount of light needed to grow tomatoes under artificial conditions makes it impractical and extremely costly. The basic problem is to remove the heat created by the lights and this means refrigeration, fans, etc. which are costly. Tomatoes are grown under artificial light under research conditions in special rooms called "growth chambers." Ninety per cent incandescent, with intensities ranging from 1,500 to 4,000 ft. candles. Cost of such special chambers is around $100 per square foot and up.

Roses Add 'Something Extra'

Roses are the flowers with the "something extra" that puts the finishing touch to any home. If you have no roses, your home is sadly lacking. Get busy right now and plant some. If you already have a few, or many of these beauties, there is always room for more - especially some of the new varieties, such as the 1968 All-American Rose Selections.

A rose garden does not cost as much as you might think. There are many wonderful varieties that cost little more than a dollar, such as Charlotte Armstrong, Peace and The Doctor. These were expensive roses not too many years ago, and their blooms are just as beautiful today as they were then. If your budget is a little pinched, plant a few roses in your annual flower border with an eye toward future expansion into a small rose garden. You will be surprised how quickly your rose bed will enlarge, if two or three new plants are added each year.

If there is a gap in your front foundation planting, fill it with three or four bright floribunda roses (all the same variety for best show of color). If your garage looks a little barny, plant a climbing rose against it to soften the squareness. If you suffer from lack of privacy in your outdoor living area, plant a privacy border of big shrub roses or tea roses. Any garden center in Virginia Beach can help you choose the roses you need. They each have a fine selection with a full range of prices.

Plant your rose garden in the sunniest part of your property, where the soil drains well. Prepare the planting area before you bring the roses home, otherwise you might do an inadequate, rush-job. Roses like to sink their roots deep, so dig the bed area as deeply as possible and mix peatmoss or other decomposed organic matter into the turned soil. Be especially generous with it down deep in the bed because you won't have another chance to enrich it once the roses are planted. Space hybrid tea, floribunda, and grandiflora roses 20 to 24 inches apart in all directions. This gives the branches room to spread out into the sunlight and allows air to circulate freely, promoting better growth and less trouble with disease. Stagger the rows so plants don't line up like soldiers. Keep plants covered and moist in their pots or soak bare roots roses in a waterfilled tub or garden cart until planting.

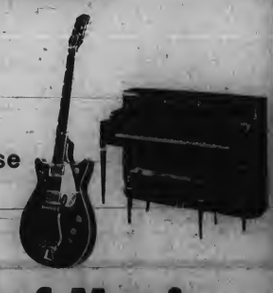

Cut tops back to 10 to 12 inches and remove weak or broken canes. You can trim back excessively long roots 5 to 6 inches with no harm to plants. Dig planting hole wide enough to spread roots out laterally, without winding them around the edge of the hole, and deep enough so the graft union is in proper relation to soil surface or about at ground level. Firm a mound of soil over the roots until the hole is about three-quarters filled. Fill hole with water and allow to soak in, then fill again. When this has soaked in, fill hole completely and mound soil as high up on canes as possible--this keeps canes moist and protects buds from the drying sun and wind. Gradually remove this dirt as new shoots reach an inch or two in length.

Roses are big feeders, so give them monthly portions of a 7-9-5 rose food. There is a new 7-9-5 rose food plus systemic insect control that works through the root system to protect and feed the plant, including new tender growth. A systemic insect control rose food does not blow or wash away and it feeds roses and controls sucking insects for four to six weeks. Mulch the bed with a 2 or 3 inch layer of good mulch--pine needles, bark or peanut hulls--so soil moisture stays put, cool temperature stays low, and weeds do not have a place to grow.

Before you know it, you will be picking a rose!

Honor Students Propose Examination Exemptions

By Kacey Chuilli

A proposal to exempt outstanding Virginia Beach High School seniors from semester examinations has been presented to the Virginia Beach Secondary School Principals by the chapters of the National Honor Societies of Virginia Beach.

The system would allow any student who maintains an overall A average for the entire semester in a course to be exempt from the semester examinations.

Reasons given for instituting this system were:

The examination presents an extensive test which reflects only the student's retention of information which he has previously mastered.

The examination requires the student to devote extensive time to the memorization of details irrelevant to the general understanding of the subject.

The exam is time-consuming for outstanding seniors who are also engaged in co-curricular activities, as well as end of the year graduation and baccalaurate practice.

The student could apply the time that he would have devoted for the exempted exam to those subjects in which he is weaker.

The incentive would be given to other students to strive to attain the necessary average for exemption and encourage those already at that level to maintain their work.

This system would provide a reward to those students who endeavor to do outstanding work.

'Prayer vs. Meditation', the second program in a public service series sponsored by the Positive Youth Movement, will be presented April 21 from 7 to 9 p.m. at First Colonial High School.

Speakers at the meeting will be Henry Jordan of the Galilee Episcopal Church and Hugh Lynn Cayce, son of the late Edgar Cayce, of the Edgar Cayce Foundation.

The series is being promoted by area Student Cooperative Associations, to acquaint the public with problems and activities concerning the young people of today.

Three Princess Anne High School students attended the annual state Student Cooperative Association convention at Jev Stuart High School, Fairfax, Va., April 6-7.

The three were: Junior Class President Linda Wilkins, Inter-Club Council Secretary Susan Marshall and foreign exchange student Charles Wulzer.

Virginia Beach city public schools will be closed Friday, April 12, and Monday, April 15 for the Easter holidays.

Easter Cards More to Mail

Postage for all Easter Greeting Cards one ounce or lighter is 6¢, Virginia Beach Postmaster Joseph T. Crosswhite, Jr. has reminded mailers.

The first-class postage rate will provide jet flight service for Easter Greeting Cards destined to servicemen in Vietnam and other overseas locations as well as airlift treatment for most domestic addresses more than 250 miles from the mailing point.

Legislation which went into effect Jan. 7, 1968, eliminated the 4¢ rate for greeting cards.

Census To Check Migration

Information to help determine national migration patterns will be sought from local households by the Bureau of the Census in its monthly Current Population Survey the week of April 15, Director Joseph R. Norwood of the Bureau's regional office in Charlotte, announced today.

Questions on household movements during the past five years will provide an insight into amounts and directions of population migration within the country and will be instrumental in forecasting future migration trends.

Other highlights of the April survey include special inquiries on types of work during the previous year, and questions on family size and place of birth of household heads.

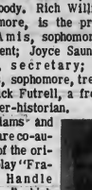

The monthly surveys are taken in a scientifically selected cross-section of several hundred areas throughout the United States, according to Director Norwood. Survey questions are asked of more than 50,000 households in these area. The identity of those questioned is kept completely confidential and the facts collected are used only for statistical purposes.

Mrs. Audrey L. Hayden of Windy Ridge Point will conduct the Census Bureau interviews in Virginia Beach.

Co-authors Named To Top Kellam SCA Positions

By Ronnie Keel

Officers of the 1968-69 Student Cooperative Association have been elected by the student body. Rich Williams, a sophomore, is the president; Rod Amis, sophomore, vice president; Joyce Saunders, a junior, secretary; Larry Phelps, sophomore, treasurer, and Rick Futrell, a freshman, reporter-historian.

Williams and Amis are co-authors of the original play "Fragile: Handle With..." which received a superior rating at the district one-act play competition and was later presented to a Charlottesville audience. The play will be presented in the Kellam auditorium soon.

April 5 was the date for the annual Junior Ring Dance, held for the class of '69 at the Commodore Club.

Seniors got into the spirit of graduation with the arrival of their engraved graduation announcements last week. They immediately began exchanging calling cards.

Kellam Sophomore Dennis Gomez was elected president of the Southern Interscholastic Press Association at the Association's 39th convention last weekend. Kellam's annual, "The Challenger," received a first place award for its 1967 edition, of which Gomez was the copy editor.

The school newspaper, "The Roundtable," brought back an achievement award. Ten southern states are represented through SIPA, and 1,200 delegates from 163 high schools attended this year's convention, with 390 entries in the yearbook and newspaper competition.

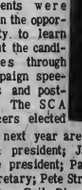

Kellam's second annual Miss Kellam Pageant will be held April 19. Several juniors are competing for the title. Cherie Miller, Miss Kellam '67, will crown the new winner.

Sales for the 1968 annual will end Friday, April 12. Beverly Flor, editor of "The Challenger," indicated that the annual will again be a full-coverage yearbook.

Downing Tells of Riots, Comments on Re-Election And New Beach Office

First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing visited his new Virginia Beach office at Princess Anne Saturday and spent the morning talking with constituents before moving on to his office in Hampton for the same purpose.

This was the first time Downing has visited the Virginia Beach office since it was opened a little more than a month ago. The office is manned by Mrs. Barbara Simiele daily. She refers matters to the Congressman and makes appointments for his visits here.

"I have been quite pleased with the response to the office here," said Downing. "Now I'll be coming here as often as I can."

Mrs. Simiele added that she too has been pleased with the response. "I've had three speech requests, ten requests for information and five requests for support of bills in the 30 cases I've handled for Mr. Downing so far," she said proudly.

Congressman Thomas N. Downing visited his new office at Princess Anne Courthouse in Virginia Beach last weekend to talk with constituents.

Downing told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that the civil disorder in Washinton that followed the murder of Martin Luther King was "eerier than anything I've seen since World War II." He said he was disheartened to see helmeted soldiers in the streets of the nation's capital and to hear the sounds of gunfire nearby. He said he could see fires very near the Capitol building.

Concerning losses in Washington alone, Downing said property damage has been put at about $13 million, but that did not take into consideration the loss of business, particularly tourist business for the cherry blossom festival and the like. Downing praised the troops for the way they were able to restore order quickly and noted that there was some criticism that federal troops should have been called in earlier.

"Just to see those troops, however," said Downing, "was disillusioning...and comforting."

On the matter of national politics, Downing said he thought the Virginia delegation should go to the Democratic convention in August uncommitted to any candidate or committed to Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr., until it was determined who they could best support and how to use their important strength.

A few days before the Virginia Beach visit, Downing announced his intention of seeking a sixth term in Congress. He called the job "as exciting as when I first went to Congress."

He thanked the citizens of the First District for their continuing support and said he hopes he will be allowed to go on serving in this capacity.

"I believe my seniority will also help increase effectiveness, and I hope I am privileged to serve again," said Downing.

On national affairs, Downing said that the outlook for saving all federal impact funds for school children is "dismal," but that he is still continuing his efforts to keep the funds intact.

"We still believe this is high priority," said Downing.

Internationally, Downing said he was encouraged by the peace feelers and possibility of peace talks, but that he felt the United States should be ready to win a military victory if peace talks fail. He noted that his feelings on the matter had not changed over recent months.

Incidentally, Congressman Dowing almost did not have an office to meet his constituents in that morning. Mrs. Simiele drove her husband's car to the office, but in doing so, left her keys to the office with him in her car. Efforts to reach him failed after she got to the office and realized she couldn't get in. She even tried to get a jail trustee to climb in a window, but he said he didn't want to break the screen.

She left messages for her husband everywhere she thought he might possibly go, and moments before the Congressman was due to arrive, her husband showed up with keys.

This traffic bottleneck at London Bridge where Laskin Road and Virginia Beach Boulevard come together is expected to be eliminated with the completion of all work there by the end of May.

Mental Health Center Elects

New officers of the Atlantic Mental Hygiene Center of Virginia Beach were elected Tuesday at a meeting in the board room of First & Merchants National Bank.

Elected as president and chairman of the advisory board succeeding M. P. Strickler was Dr. Madge May, director of the city's Department of Health.

The new vice president is Mrs. Wescott Northern. Elected secretary was Mrs. Joseph Sadler, and the new treasurer is Elmer Tarrall. Strickler was elected assistant treasurer.

Two newcomers were also elected to the advisory board for three-year terms. They are Bruce Murphy and Maury Riganto.

The center has been operating of 22nd Street in the Beach borough for some time, but a new building is planned off First Colonial Road near the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

A meeting was held with the architects Tuesday night to discuss progress on the plans for the new facility, felt by many to be sorely needed in the city.

Dan E. Griffin chief draftsman with Glen Yates, A.I.A., Architect, said that many changes have been made in the site plans of the building, and that it will be about another ten days before the new plan will be completed by Frank D. Tarrell, Jr. & Assoc. Then the mechanical engineer have to adapt the building to fit the new plan.

Bids will be advertised shortly thereafter, according to Griffin, and actual construction should begin about July 1, 1968.

Plans for the building have been approved by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, many of whose recommendations were followed in planning.

Probable Candidates Are Mum On State Gubernatorial Race

Two men, both unannounced candidates for governor of Virginia in 1969, were in Virginia Beach within five days, but neither had anything to say publicly.

In meetings where William C. Battle spoke, the press was excluded. In a meeting where Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard spoke, the press was not invited through an oversight.

Neither Battle nor Pollard has said he will actually seek the Democratic nomination for Governor, but both are expected to run in what could be a hot primary race.

Battle was in Virginia Beach to speak to two meetings arranged by City Treas. V. A. Etheridge on his philosophy and to find out the problems on the minds of the people here.

Pollard spoke before a regular meeting of the Virginia Beach Democratic Club at the Black Angus Restaurant Monday, but politics were not discussed. Pollard discussed only the recent session of the Virginia General Assembly, although he did mention future leadership was important to the Democratic party in Virginia.

Battle pointed out after the closed-door meetings of his supporters in Virginia Beach that he planned to avoid involvement in presidential politics prior to the August convention of Democrats in Chicago. The Charlottesville attorney is a former Ambassador to Australia and was Virginia campaign manager of John F. Kennedy in 1960.

Concerning efforts to win the nomination by Sen. Robert Kennedy, Battle noted that he had a different relationship with the younger Kennedy than he had with the former President. He added that The New York Senator had not sought his support, either directly or indirectly.

In addition Battle said he did not expect to support the Democratic nominee for president.

Concerning state politics, Battle said he had not made any decisions on a ticket to run with him for office next year. He said he told the meeting at the Pine Tree Inn that the lieutenant governor's spot was highly political and that the choice was usually one that could enhance the chances of the gubernatorial candidate. He said it was also important to have a good candidate for attorney general.

As to his formal announcement of candidacy, Battle said he thought it is still too early and did not know exactly when he would announce.

Pollard said, in an interview following the meeting, that there are too many things that come between now and the gubernational race for him to make any formal announcement.

"Between now and then we have to pass an $81 million bond issue for mental health and higher education, have primaries and conventions, elect Congressmen and a President," said Pollard. "I think it's more important to put first things first."

Pollard said he told the Virginia Beach meeting that the 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly had to be regarded together with the 1966 session where progress was concerned.

Pollard

"The people had a taste of real progress in 1966, and they liked it," said Pollard. "They wanted more in 1968, and they got it."

He said that in 1966 the first new broad base tax in 125 years the general sales tax, was passed to help education and localities, that a system of community colleges were set up, and that a 10-year plan for State parks was established, among other things. This was followed, Pollard said, by the issuance of bonds for mental health and education, passage of local option liquor-by-the-drink and establishment of commissions to study and revise the entire legislative process and Constitution of Virginia in the 1968 session.

Concerning the future fiscal course of Virginia, Pollard said the bond issue passage was a "must," but that another such issue could not be passed until the Constitution is entirely changed, and until two sessions of the legislature and the voters of the state pass on the matter.

Concerning criticism that there was no provision to repay the $81 million bond issue to be voted on in November, Pollard said the budget is definitely balanced, that provisions to repay are definitely included and that the provisions were approved by qualified bond lawyers.

On the matter of national politics, Pollard chuckled, and said, "I think we better let a little more dust settle before I say anything about that."

The next governor of Virginia will be elected in November 1969, and so far Pollard and Battle are the only candidates, announced or not, in the race. That matter will undoubtedly be settled in July 1969 in the Democratic primary, before the Democratic nominee faces Republican opposition in November.

Democrats To Meet On May 1

The next meeting of the Virginia Beach City Democratic Committee is scheduled for May 1, at which time delegates will be elected for the city Democratic Convention.

During this meeting 78 delegates are to be chosen for participation in the local convention which has been scheduled for May 23. Both meetings will serve primarily to select delegates to the State Democratic convention which is planned for Salem on July 27.

Dates for the Virginia Beach meetings were set during the past week's meeting of the Democratic City Committee.

Progress Is Keynote For School Board

Progress was the keynote at the Virginia Beach School Board meeting Tuesday.

Ernest Stone, supervisor of construction, reported that the Plaza Junior High site is being cleared, an addition to Bayside High is out of the ground, Pembroke Meadows is out of the ground, Point of View has been started, an addition on to Pembroke Elementary has been started as well as to Lynnhaven and Malibu elementaries.

Low bids were officially accepted for the Malibu and Lynnhaven additions. They were W.B. Meredith at $77,330 for Malibu and M.D. Johnson at $79,650 for Lynnhaven.

Stone said bids will be opened today, April 18, for the unnamed school in the Windsor Woods area. He said the bids for Kempsville Junior High will be advertised in June, for Bayside Junior in July, for Votech (Vocational-Technical) in July and for the addition to Kempsville Elementary in May. He said a sewerage problem at Trantwood has delayed plans for an addition there.

Miss Pat King, elementary supervisor, gave a progress report on the corrective reading program. She said that students who have been post-tested so far, have shown an average of a year's reading progress in four to five months. She said post-testing of all children in the corrective reading program began this week and will take until the end of the school year to complete.

Miss King said the school system hopes to screen all first graders next fall in hopes of correcting or forestalling reading problems before they develop. She quoted one expert as saying all but one percent of all reading problems can be prevented.

She said there are 36 1/2 (one works half day) corrective reading reachers, two diagnosticians and one co-ordinator for the program.

50 Apply as Manager

The city manager of Anchorage, Alaska, has applied for the job of city manager of Virginia Beach. He noted in his application that he did not care if his application became known publicly because he had already informed the Anchorage City Council that he was leaving.

This application from the far north and 49 others like it have been received so far by the city of Virginia Beach to fill the position being vacated by veteran city manager W. Russell Hatchett.

John McCombs, chairman of a special Council committee to screen applications, said that his committee is presently examining all the applications and will present its choices for further screening at next Monday's regular Council meeting.

Interviewing will then begin at the next informal Council meeting a week later, according to McCombs. The committee hopes to select a new manager by June 1.

"It is now up to the committee to recommend the ones we think the whole Council should interview," said McCombs.

In addition Council decided at its informal meeting Monday to place another advertisement in a municiple periodical for a city manager, but this time omitting the salary. In previous ads, a salary of $18,000-$23,000 was mentioned, but several persons, both inside and outside city government were critical of the salary scale. This does not mean a higher salary will be paid, but the matter is now "open," according to McCombs.

The cutoff date for receiving applications is set at May 15 so that the committee and City Council can make an early choice. Hatchett noted in his retirement message that he would like to retire on July 1, but that he would stay on until Sept. 1 if a suitable successor is not found by the original date.

4-H Steers To Be Sold On May 4

The agriculture committee of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce is again sponsoring its annual 4-H Junior Steer Show and sale on May 4 at Aldo Farms.

The event will begin with judging of the animals at 9:30 a.m. and continue into late afternoon with the auction sale. Entertainment will be provided by a horse show during the noon hour.

The actual sale of about 35 steers begins at 1:30 p.m. Purchases may be made of beef by the quarter, half or whole. An auctioneer from Virginia's land grant college, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, will be present. Judging will also be done by livestock specialist, Arden Huff, of VPI.

After the auction arrangements have been made with local slaughterhouses to prepare the beef for the buyers.

The steers are purchased each year by local businessmen and persons interested in agriculture and given to the youngsters to raise. Hopefully when the auction is held their money is refunded, if the animal brings a good enough price. Money for feed is also provided to the Junior 4-Her's. Any amount over that invested goes to the child, for his efforts through an entire year.

No Delay Expected In Passing Budget

After a stormy four-hour plus session at its last regular meeting, City Council is expected to move swiftly through a relatively short docket Monday at 10 a.m. at Princess Anne.

Probably the most important action will be passage of the record $35.9 operating budget for the city in the coming fiscal year. The budget was passed on first reading at the previous meeting but must be voted on again before action is final. The new budget goes into effect on July 1.

The budget ordinance and another changing the tax rate throughout the city is no longer debateable on second reading and passage should come as quickly as clerk John Fentress can call the roll. The budget public hearing lasted an hour-and-a-half at the last meeting. This followed a number of closed door executive sessions of City Council.

The following evening the City Planning Commission will hold a public hearing at the Virginia Beach Civic Center at 7:30 p.m. concerning possible rezoning of 21st and 22nd streets eastward from the end of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

Council has twice deferred applications for rezoning in that area until a public hearing on the matter could be held. The Planning Department has had the matter under close scrutiny since the opening of the new road in December.

Besides a zoning change in the area, traffic problems are also being studied. There is still the possibility that the two streets will become one-way from Pacific Avenue to the expressway.

The effect of the toll road on the residents and the neighborhood has never been aired publicly, and the Tuesday meeting is expected to hear a number of area citizens, many in protest of commercial zoning.

Property on both streets is now residential, but applications have been made to rezone the property commercial, especially for gas stations near the end of the road. Council has taken no action pending the outcome of the study. The Planning Commission earlier recommended denial of zoning changes to commercial as representing spot zoning.

Innkeepers To Install

Charles Gardner, Martha Washington Hotel and Washington Club Inn owner, will be installed tonight as president of the Innkeepers of Virginia Beach

Other association officers to be installed tonight include John Smith of the Mariner Motel and Golf Ranch as vice president, with Blue Marlin owner, Mrs. John Anderson, being installed as association secretary-treasurer.

The Virginia Beach association is comprised of owners and/or managers of nearly 70 local motels, hotels and apartments. Tonight's officer installation will take place during the Innkeepers Spring Banquet at the Cavalier Hotel.

If you look closely you can see a Form 1040 in this young lady's hand. Apparently she hadn't filed her income tax either. When this picture was taken Monday she was standing in line to purchase her 1968 Virginia license tags. Monday as the deadline for the tags and the tax.

Little Island to Be Improved

Swimmers and surfers at Little Island Park this summer should find some improvements made.

A letter from the Virginia Beach Health Dept. to the Parks and Recreation Commission recommended that toilet facilities be added, since existing ones at the old Coast Guard Station there are inadequate. The 20x38 foot cinder block building will be built from money already available in the capital fund of the Parks and Recreation Dept.

The commission decided at last Thursday's meeting to the parking fee at Little Island be increased from 25 to 50 cents per day. There were approximately 86,000 visitors to Little Island last summer and 100,000 are expected this year.

A committee consisting of Harold Whitehurst, Charles Kiley and Pat Standing was appointed to investigate the feasibility of making the Coast Guard Station at Little Island into a museum.

Land has been obtained for several new neighborhood parks. John Aragona has donated an acre of land on Romney Lane in Aragona Village. Warren Mott has donated about five acres in the Groveland Park area west of Little Neck Road.

Plans are progressing on Toll Road Park to obtain clear title to all property involved. Temporary play equipment will be installed until a master plan is made.

Another neighborhood park will be developed on property to be leased from Thalia Presbyterian Church.

The commission voted to recommend to City Council that Bellamy Manor be demolished for safety. Classes held there during the winter have been stopped and warning signs have been posted. According to Charles Kiley, renovation would not be practical.

VPI Plans Math Study In Summer

Virginia Tech's department of mechanical engineering will host 30 high school seniors from across the country this summer at the Secondary Science Training Program in Engineering Science which is scheduled for June 16 to July 27. The program is being supported by a $9,655 grant from the National Science Foundation.

The students, while on campus, will attend classes as well as work in the department's laboratories. Lectures will be given during the morning and during the afternoon the students will work in a lab with one of the university's senior engineers.

Miles said that an informational brochure is being prepared and will be sent to high school couselors and principals shortly. Among the basic requirements for the attending seniors are that the students have had either physics or chemistry and three years of mathematics.

The program will enable the students to decide whether or not they would like to major in engineering in college, as well as inform them of the challenges and opportunities for careers in the field. Counselors will be responsible for the supervision of the students in the dormitories and at all times when they are not under faculty supervision.

Bank Promotes Fuller

David C. Fuller.

David C. Fuller of Virginia Beach received one of four promotions announced this week by Seaboard Citizens National Bank.

A graduate of Hampden Sydney College, Fuller was promoted to assistant manager of the bank's Pembroke office. He entered the bank's management training program in 1966, following service with Humble Oil and Refining Company as a sales representative.

Fuller is a member of the Virginia Beach Jaycees and the First Presbyterian Church of Virginia Beach.

Improvements Made At Seashore State Park

Virginia Beach's Seashore State Park is among several Virginia nature centers being readied for opening by Easter.

The park's nature center will be open Saturday and Sunday until the main park season begins Memorial Day, May 30, afterwhich the center will be open daily through Labor Day, in early September.

The center will offer exhibits interpreting the plants, animals, and other natural features in the park, as well as the surrounding region and its history and culture.

Improvements at Seashore Park include extensive renovation of the nature trails, with new interpretive signs.

The state Division of Parks' interpretive program is being aided by a $15,000 donation from the Old Dominion Foundation, announced Ben H. Bolen, commissioner of parks.

NATO Program Postponed at Va. Wesleyan

The NATO program sponsored by Virginia Wesleyan College in cooperation with area colleges and the Allied Command Atlantic, previously announced and scheduled for April 16, has been postponed.

Colorful Career Ends For Navy Chief

The final chapter in a colorful and diversified Naval career was written April 1 when Senior Chief Aviation Structural Mechanic John M. Svoboda transferred to the Fleet Reserve after 28 years of active duty.

He will take up civilian residence in Sheridan, Ill., with his wife, the former Katherine E. Johnson of Sheridan, and their children Phillis Ann, 11, and Robert John, 6.

With him he will bring memories of 21 foreign countries he has visited and more than 10 combat and training ships and stations on board which he has served in times of war and peace.

During World War II Chief Svoboda was assigned to the USS Bataan (CVL-29) which was an element of the famous fast, Group 58.

While serving on board this aircraft carrier he received five battle stars for actions engaged in.

The tour of duty which Chief Svoboda recalls as most rewarding, however, are far removed from the grueling combat of World War II. They were his assignments while training Navy recruits at Great Lakes Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., and his tour at Argentia, Newfoundland, where he worked with a crash and salvage crew.

For his work with the young men at Great Lakes he was commended by the fire commissioner of the city of Chicago for outstanding instructional abilities. His work at Argentia won him a commendation which cited his outstanding leadership abilities in dealing with discipline problems of young men in the Navy.

Petty Officer Svoboda graduated from Ottawa Township High School, Ottawa, Ill., in 1947, and he has received 21 semester hours of credit from the University of Illinois, attending night classes.

Being an ardent movie maker, Chief Svoboda has captured many of the highlights of his travels on 16 mm color film. Some of his best films, he says, include reels shot at the Acropolis in Athens, the ruins of Pompeii, and the colorful islands of Trinidad and Tobago.

Cancer: Major Killer Of Children Under 15

While the chances of any child being stricken by cancer are remote--one youngster in 7,000 develops the disease--the figure can also be misleading. Restated another way, it means that there are some 4,500 children under the age of 15 who will succumb to cancer this year.

The figure becomes even more serious when it is realized that almost half of these will die of leukemia. And that more children of school age will die of cancer than of any other disease. Thus cancer among children is an important health problem.

Dr. Alvin Q. Jarrett, president of the Virginia Beach Unit of the Society, explained that cancer of the blood-forming tissue, or leukemia, is characterized by the abnormal production of white blood cells. Acute leukemia strikes children almost exclusively and is treated today by drugs.

Drugs, or a combination of drugs, have proved capable of extending life for a few months to as long as five years--hopeful signs that medical science is on the right track.

Children's cancers are often hard to recognize, since they may masquerade as trivial disorders. A knowledge of cancer's warning signs and symptoms, if acted upon promptly, may serve to save a child's life, Dr. Jarrett emphasized.

While leukemia accounts for half of the incidence of cancer among children, and is still incurable, in many other types of cancer a stricken youngster stands an excellent chance of recovery, Dr. Jarrett added.

Among these other types of cancer found in children is neuroblastoma, or cancer of the nervous system. Surgery and drug combinations work well here. Even some brain tumors among children are quite curable, if treatment is begun in time.

Surgery or radiation, or both, supplemented by a drug. In some instances, co[illegible] arrest cancer of [illegible] nodes, technically [illegible] as lymphosarcoma. E[illegible], if detected early [illegible] are curable.

Another form of [illegible] cancer that is gra[illegible] brought under full [illegible] Wilms' Tumor, or [illegible] the kidney. Success in treating this condition via surgery, radio-therapy and a drug called Actinomycin D has been responsible for saving the lives of many youngsters. Bone cancer, another form of the disease found in childhood, is being successfully treated today by surgery and radiation.

The American Cancer Society, Dr. Jarrett emphasized, has always been in the forefront of the fight against leukemia. Last year some 70 grants totalling more than $2 million were made by the Society directly or indirectly to aid the struggle against leukemia.

"This intensive research must be continued and expanded," Dr. Jarrett continued. "And of the utmost urgency today is the need for a simple test to diagnose leukemia before it develops in the blood stream," he pointed out. "The more support we give these research specialists the quicker we will solve this pressing problem."

Jazzman Kenton Slated For April 21 At Dome

On April 21, as part of the planned program "Canadian Holiday by the Sea," the City of Virginia Beach will sponsor Stan Kenton and his 16-piece orchestra in concert at 3 p.m., at the Convention Center.

Kenton, born in Wichita, Kansas, began his career in 1933 by playing piano arrangements for Everett Hoagland, leader of California's most advanced orchestra. In 1935, as assistant musical director for Earl Carroll's theater-restaurant, Kenton arranged for Russ Plummer, Gus Arnheim, the movies and radio.

Kenton's career has included working with personalities such as Bob Hope for his coast-to-coast radio show. With his 18-piece Artistry In Rhythm Orchestra, Kenton was nominated "Band of the Year" by Look Magazine in 1946; Kenton's Orchestra was headlined by Variety as "the hottest box office attraction in the country."

European tours have included Stockholm, Milan, Copenhagen, Munich, and Dublin. His jazz concert in Berlin at the Sportpalast drew approximately 20,000 people, an attendance record never equalled.

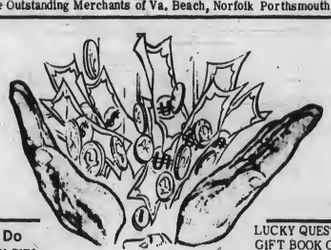

In 1954, Kenton was included in a list of three in Downbeat's Jazz Hall of Fame, along with such greats as Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington. In 1956, the Kenton orchestra was commissioned to write an original ballet commemorating the marriage of Grace Kelley and Prince Rainier.

In 1966, Kenton organized the Kenton Clinic Workshop for Teenage Musicians at Redlands University, Redlands, California; and made his Neophonic library available, free of charge, to schools and universities throughout the country.

In 1967, Kenton decided to write a new library after reviewing the melodic and rhythmic forms and lecturing extensively at major universities and colleges throughout the Southwest. A Los Angeles critic commented on Kenton's library, "Once again, Kenton emphasizes his rare gift for creating today's most exciting sound in music."

Hard Work Wins for P.A.

Hard work and plenty of practice go into making a real champion, and the Princess Anne High School varsity gymnastics team has five champions.

In their first meet, Feb. 26, the team competed in a tri-school meet with Kempsville and First Colonial.

There were three categories at the meet: beginning, intermediate and advanced. Though PA took part in only two, beginning and intermediate, team members took firsts and seconds in both categories.

Nancy Thompson took a first in Intermediate Tumbling, a second in Intermediate Uneven Bars and a second in Intermediate Vaulting; Gary Collins, first in Beginning Balance Beam; Libby Hartman, first in Intermediate Tumbling and in Free Exercise. Other winners included Carol Howell, second in Beginning Tumbling and Polly McClenny, first in Beginning All-Round (the highest cumulative score in free exercise), Uneven Bars, Vaulting and Balance Beam.)

March 8-9, five girls traveled to Huguenot High School at Richmond to participate in the state gymnastic meet sponsored by the Virginia Division of Girls' and Women's Sports.

Out of 179 entries from 30 schools, Princess Anne gymnasts received a first and second: Libby Hartman, a first for Beginning All-Round, and Polly McClenny, a second in Uneven Bars.

Other team-members at the meet were Susan Cande, Nancy Thompson and Carol Howell.

May 4 Is Day To Bowl

May 4 will be a lucky day for two Brunswick Plaza Bowl league bowlers.

Mrs. Eloise Gumm, manager of the bowling center, has announced that May 4 has been selected as the roll-off date for all of her center's monthly high game winners. A total of 24 men and 25 women bowlers will compete for the chance to win a three-day trip to Washington, D. C., May 29-31 to the national finals of Brunswick's 3rd Annual "Bowl Your Way to Europe" Tournament.

The roll-offs at Brunswick Plaza Bowl, 111 N. Plaza Trail, will begin at 7 p.m. The public is invited.

In the local roll-off, each bowler will roll three games across six lanes. The man and woman knocking down the most pins over their average in a single game will be declared champions and represent the local center in the national finals.

The two local champions will go on to compete against 360 bowlers from all over the United States and Canada in the national finals at Washington.

Cavaliers Win Fifth

In Eastern District play Tuesday, the Princess Anne Cavaliers took their fifth straight win of the season in a 7-0 win over Norview to put them in the first position of the district standings.

Granby, who had led the standings, lost their crown in yesterday's Tuesday game, a 5-3 defeat to Maury.

Kellam's southpaw Mike Futrell struck out 15 First Colonial men to lead his team to a 4-3 victory in another Tuesday District game.

Cox Takes Win at Stumpy Lake Match

Kempsville, Maury and Norview bowed to the prowess of Jimmy Ellis and his Cox High teammates at a four-sided Eastern District golf match Tuesday at Stumpy Lake.

Ellis shot a 76, for medalist honors. Cox completed the match with a lead of 18 strokes over its closest rival, Norview.

Cox, with a low 313, had individual records of Ellis, 76; Curtis Kemp, 78; Skip Wheeler, 78; and R. Burlage, 81.

Beach Teams Win, Lose in Tennis Matches

Undefeated Cox was stopped in its tracks Tuesday, when Granby took its seventh, tennis match in nine starts, 9-0.

Under similar circumstances, Bayside gave Maury its seventh win in nine, with another 9-0 score.

In other Tuesday matches, First Colonial netters took Norview 8-1, and Princess Anne defeated Kellam 9-0.

Saturday Set as Sing Out Day

April 20 has been declared "National sing-Out Day" in the United States, and Mayor Frank A. Dusch has declared Saturday Virginia Beach's own "Sing-Out Day."

Three musical performances are scheduled by the local "Sing Out" teens. Two performances will take place at Pembroke Mall. And the singers for moral re-armament will present an outdoor performance at the Norwegian Lady, at Atlantic and 25th Street, beginning at 5 p.m.

Sing Out is open to all young people 14 years old and older. The Youth chairman for Virginia Beach is Deen Entsminger; music and program director is Mrs. Sally Suter; Moral Re-Armament Advisor, Mrs. John Cole; and the adult advisor and business manager, Mrs. Dallas Entsminger.

In case of rain, the performance at the Norwegian Lady will be postponed and re-scheduled for another time, which will be announced in this paper.

Tryouts To Be Held April 22-23

The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach will hold tryouts for "Hay Fever" the final production of its 1967-68 season--on Monday and Tuesday, April 22 and 23 at 8 p.m. at the Courtyard Playhouse, 210 Virginia Beach Blvd.

"Hay Fever" is Noel Coward's earliest light comedy, and was produced on Broadway in October 1925. The Little Theatre plans to present it with the costumes and decor of that period. A cast of nine is needed: this includes three parts for women aged 30 to 45 and two for young women under 25. Two of the men should be over 40 and the other two under 25. As is true of all Coward plays these are all "good parts," though some are larger than others. The play will be directed by Penny Martin and will open Friday, May 31.

"Crew Night" is held every Monday at 8 p.m. and all those interested in set construction and backstage work of all kinds are cordially invited to attend.

Health Planning Group May Solve Area Problems

Virginia Beach political leader Sidney S. Kellam has been elected chairman of a committee working towards establishment of a Tidewater health planning agency.

The committee is composed of one representative from each of the 11 cities and/or counties which make up the "Tidewater" region, which resulted in the group being referred to as the "Committee of 11".

Basically the Committee of 11 will serve to avoid duplication of services of the various regional mental and physical health agencies. Backing for such organizations has come from the federal government through the Public Health Service's "Partnership in Health" program, and through the offer of federal grants which will offer similiar agencies financial assistance.

Immediate reaction to the "Committee's" formation is that it will be able to better serve Tidewater residents than the Health, Welfare and Recreation Planning Council formed earlier to coordinate programs of health planning agencies in the area. This Council and those concerned with its operation, has already ceased efforts to obtain support in the area.

Thus indications are the Committee of 11 will be successful in finally removing past opposition to such an organization, as well bringing an end to "implications" of any of the 11 areas involved striving to dominate the policies of agency coordinating efforts.

TAHB Meets At Bow Creek

The Tidewater Association of Home Builders will hold a dinner-meeting Tuesday, April 23, at the Bow Creek Golf and Country Club.

What About the Toll

The infant son of a Navy couple in enjoying his early days of life unaware that he holds the distinction of being the first child to be born on the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel system.

Mrs. Maureen Hickman began Easter Sunday morning by experiencing the usual signs that the time was close at hand for the birth of her son. Enlisting the aid of a neighbor for the journey from her Painter Street, Norfolk, apartment, she got underway for Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

Neither women realized they were travelling in the wrong direction until they sped past the check point on the number three island of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel crossing. As the auto made a "U" turn, tunnel patrolmen John C. Stockley and C.M. Pruitt, who took up pursuit of the car when it sped past number three island check point, intercepted the car. Completing a rapid survey of the situation Stockley entered the auto, where he assisted, five minutes later, in the delivery of Mrs. Hickman's seven pound eight ounce baby boy.

Pruitt, who had returned to the tunnel patrol car to "radio in" what was transpiring, now took up the duty of escorting the auto, and it's somewhat "dazed" occupants, to Virginia Beach General Hospital. Following emergency room treatment, Mrs. Hickman and her new born son were admitted, where both were last reported "doing just fine."

Word has not as yet been received from Mrs. Hickman's husband, Robert, who is on duty at sea, on his reaction to the unusual "round about trip" his wife took to the hospital. As for the reaction of patrolmen Stockley and Pruitt, it was summed up when Pruitt filed his report of the incident with the notation "They arrived at Virginia Beach General Hospital with one more than they had when they left number one island."

Christian Convention Closes

Professor Henry E. Webb, Milligan College, Tennessee, is scheduled to deliver tonight's closing sermon for the 20th annual Southern Christian Convention.

Rev. J. Spencer Arnold, of Kempsville Church of Christ served as president of the executive committee for the convention which opened Tuesday at the Virginia Beach Civic Center.

This year's convention theme "Good News For Modern Man" was carried throughout the convention's three days of devotional services, which featured ministers and religious leaders from many of the Atlantic and mid-western States.

It was anticipated that approximately 2,000 representatives of various churches would attend the conference prior to tonight's closing session.

Convention To Feature Discussion

A discussion and workshop session on whisky-by-the-drink will be one of the features of the Virginia Restaurant Association's Dixie Classic Hotel-Motel Restaurant Convention to be held April 16-18 at the Hotel John Marshall, in Richmond.

Approximately 1500 restaurateurs will be expected to attend the closed workshop to discuss the eventual serving of whisky-by-the-drink and the many questions it will create for the restaurant operators.

Attending from Virginia Beach will be Michael J. Savvides, member of the board of directors.

Time Remains To Register

Registration for the last series of adult classes set by the Virginia Beach Recreation Department will end today, but there is time left to register for two of the classes in the series if you have missed the other registration dates.

Names for the trimnastics class are being taken at the Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire Dept. between 10 and 12 a.m. Registrants for the bridge classes can sign up for the course between the hours of 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. at Arrowhead Elementary.

League Meets

The Woodstock Area Civic League will hold its monthly meeting April 18, 8 p.m., at Memorial Methodist Church.

Cavalier Produces Best in a Long Time

Cavalier Dinner Playhouse has taken on a giant of a play and has turned in a performance well-worth seeing and savoring. We would quarrel with the description of "Tobacco Road" as America's greatest dramatic comedy, as is noted on the program, however.

This is a drama through a through with a few funny line that are mere human natur thrown in for comedy relie This is Jack Kirkland's pole nant adaption of Erskine Call well's story of tragedy in th despair of one family, a fami symbolic of all the tragedy an despair that struck the bac country of Georgia and othe places in the depths of th Depression in the 1930's.

Fortunately these days ar gone forever, and it is difficu for modern audiences to grap the horror of the meager an simple lives these poor, an not necessarily so honest, fol had to live for mere survival Cavalier's well-paces pro duction comes near to tellin the whole story, but falls little short by playing up th comedy.

Some fine individual perfor mances are turned in also. Bar bara Lewis, as the mother o 17 children, does a magnificen job with the pathetic character Vincent Bryant, as the put upon husband of one of the dau ghters provides some nice, an very real, moments. Glad Young, as the hair-lipped dau ghter shows promise of a fin budding career. Her natura ability shines through. Deb Jeffries, as the married daugh ter, also does a nice job wit the minor role.

Hank Mauro and Georg Payne add fine characteriza tions to the production in quit minor roles.

In the lead role, Tom Stor almost comes off beautifully but misses somewhere along th line by attacking the comed lines, as he was no doubt dir ected to do by Harry Cavley Nonetheless, it is a well-don role.

Glenn Graham plays the al most idiot son with too muc intensity. Instead of a blither ing fool who is not responsible for what he is saying, Graham makes him into an angry young man type. He also has some nic moments when he lowers th intensity.

Melinda Dotson is miscas as the Bible-beating lady preacher who is supposed to b somewhat of a hag. Miss Dot son gives her role everything she has, and if one does no look at her attractiveness, sh is fine. She is too good a actress to be wasted in thi role. Her voice and carriag are wonderful to hear and see.

Ann Graham completes th cast as the grandmother wh never says a word. She walk in barefoot showing her youn feet, which should have been bound to hide her youth.

Other technical flaws, such as a sealed beam headlight from an old car and a chrome bumper of a car in the early 30's could have been avoided wit a little effort. We would also quarrel with the need for hillbilly music as an overture

This is by far the best pro duction at Cavalier in a long time, and deserves a lot o credit, regardless of a few flaws. It should be seen by everyone who has forgotten those awful days. HJL.

Inlet Has Problems

Rudee Inlet, that small inlet on the south end of Virginia Beach Borough with so many problems, was the subject in recent meetings and non-meetings again.

Most recently money has been the biggest problem in the construction of the Virginia Capes marina and dredging operations there. Since December the City has been waiting to hear from the State Outdoor Recreation Commission on a request for funds, federal and state, to help defray the cost of the project.

No meetings of the group has been held, and the possibility of a meeting this month is also out, but now a tentative meeting is set in May on the Eastern Shore.

The Virginia Beach Erosion Commission also discussed the project at its meeting Tuesday. Possibilities of sending the city dredge into the area were discussed.

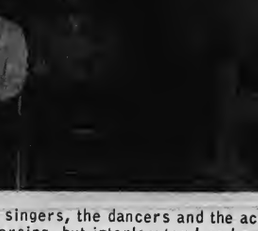

The singers, the dancers and the accompanist are hard at work rehearsing, but interlocutor Les Lam sits and just listens during a session prior to the Princess Anne Ruritan minstrel. Lam got his chance when the annual event opened at Princess Anne High School last night for its four-performance run.

Miss Roman To Be Speaker

The Virginia Beach Council of Social Agencies will meet tomorrow, Friday, April 19, at 3 p.m. at the VEPCO building on First Colonial Road to hear Miss Hazel Roman, committee chairman for the Group Home for Emotionally Disturbed Children discuss the study and progress being made.

Marr Clarifies Jail Conditions

A recent report from the State Board of Corrections criticized the operation of Virginia Beach city jail on points of unsanitary conditions, and neglect of female prisoners. In hopes of clarifying the situation, the VIRGINIA BEACHSUN questioned City Sgt. John Marr about these issues.

"Sheriff" Marr, who has held the office of city sergeant for the past 12 years (He was Sheriff of Princess Anne County before Consolidation) is assisted by a matron, Mrs. Madge Ewell, who has been working with him during his entire time in office, and eight jailers, two of whom are on duty at all times for proper supervision and care of persons confined to the jail.

Dean Polk, who holds the post of chief jailer, is a retired naval pharmacist mate and is capable of rendering medical care which may be prescribed by a doctor. Dr. Ira Hancock serves as the city jail physician and makes a daily visit to the facility each morning as well as being on call at all times.

Matron Ewell, who is on duty each day at the jail, maintains a daily observation of female prisoners to assure they have any supplies they may need and is also on "an around the clock" call to assist female prisoners. Mrs. Ewell also makes any search of female prisoners which may be required when they are confined to the jail.

While men, women, and at times juveniles, may be confined in the building at the same time they remain separated according to Marr. This is accomplished by placing women and juveniles on one floor of the building with a dividing wall separating them and blocking physical or visual contact. Male adult prisoners are confined on another floor of the building. The only crossing of these "borders" occurs when a male trustee enters the women's region to serve meals or on cleaning details, and this is under supervision of Mrs. Ewell or a jailer.

Inmates of the jail take care of cleaning of the building, preparation of daily meals and the serving of the meals to inmates in their cells, and laundering of clothing in machines provided for this purpose. Marr said it should be pointed out each of these functions is carried out under proper supervision, and none of these activities is ever assigned to any inmate as a form or punishment.

Continual efforts are being made by "Sheriff" Marr to improve conditions of the jail, by means of repainting the building and areas of confinement. Marr says new equipment is expected shortly for the kitchen, and when it arrives he "will be in good shape."

Perhaps the truest picture of conditions inside the jail have been exemplified best by a man sentenced to six months and who was expected to be transferred elsewhere. The man wrote "Sheriff Marr" requesting he be retained in the city jail for his period of confinement. The letter prompted the comment from Marr that "if conditions here are so unbearable, would such a request have been made by someone who was going to have to live here?"

This cell area is typical of regions where persons are confined when they are sentenced to time in the city jail.

This is the city jail at Princess Anne as it stands today. The structure's third floor was added to the building in 1965.

Redwing Park May Become Redwood

California and the west coast have always been thought of as redwood country. But thanks to an experiment now underway at Redwing Park, Tidewater, and more specifically Virginia Beach, may have its own stand of the forest giants in a few thousand years.

Junior and senior scouts in the Tidewater Council of Girl Scouts have taken on Redwing Park, and the planting of redwoods there in connection with earning their ranger aid bar and girl Scouting's conservation project.

Nancy Wilkin, a 15-year-old scout from Kellam High School, first contacted Harold Whitehurst of the city's parks and recreation department about the possibility of the girl's using Redwing for their conservation project.

With Whitehurst's approval, and the help of Richard Brahich, in the parks and recreation maintenance department, the scouts' next step was to contact a forestry agent at Portsmouth to check on the redwood's chances of survival on the east coast.

The forester's favorable report was sent to the California Redwood Association at San Francisco, a lobby group concerned with the preservation of the redwood. Further correspondence with an Association forester, John Keane followed, and the San Francisco group responded by sending an initial shipment of 24 redwood seedlings of two varieties: Coastal and Sierra.

The two varieties of redwoods were planted two weeks ago at Redwing, with each plant tagged according to whether it is Sierra or Coastal. Mrs. William P. McKinney of Virginia Beach, advisor to senior troop 590, explained that the limited number of trees were sent to test their survival rate. If the first 24 continue living, the Association has promised more. Another aspect of the experiment, tagging the two varieties, will help determine which redwood--Coastal or Sierra--can best survive on the Atlantic coast.

Aside from planting the redwood grove, the scouts have undertaken a more general project of revamping Redwing during the spring and coming summer.

Under the direction of Mrs. Michael D. Bender, Tidewater Council chairman of the conservation committee, girls from all over Tidewater will be taking part in clearing underbrush and disposing of litter at the park this summer. They will concentrate most of their girl-power on the park's nature trails, said Mrs. Bender, and plan to eventually plant wild flowers in the cleared areas.

P.A. Lists Honor Grads

Ten rising seniors will represent Princess Anne High School in this year's sessions of Virginia Girls' and Boys' State.

Those girls selected by their classmates to represent the school at the annual gathering are Linda Wilkins, Ellen Spence, Cindy Tyson, Anita Boaher and Katy Mayse.

The girls will attend the convention June 16-22 at Radford College.

Boy staters are Skeeter Whitlow, Louis McGinty, Dicky Page, Bob Gerloff and Richard Byrd. Boys' State will be held at the College of William and Mary.

At both conventions, students from all over Virginia will set up their own mock city and state governments.

The purpose of the "experiment in democracy" is to help the students understand their state government.

Shrine Dance Is Saturday

Saturday, April 20, is the night things will be swinging at the Dome, when the members of the Khedive Temple and their invited guests will get together for the Shriners' annual spring dance.

Chuck Laskin and his 15-piece dance band will keep the tempo moving from 9 p.m. to 1 p.m. Laskin is well-known around Tidewater for adapting both the new and the old standards to "danceable" rhythms. According to Noble Bill Rice, Laskin is being booked for the dance "by popular request."

Reservations are priced at $10 per couple, and are available through the Temple at Freemason Street, Norfolk. Dress for the dance is optional.

Clifford Herzer Plans Concert In Palm Beach

Clifford Herzer, well known concert pianist from Virginia Beach, will appear with the Palm Beach, Fla., Symphony Orchestra on April 27 in Florida.

Herzer, who will be making his fourth appearance with the orchestra, will play Chopin's "Concerto in F Minor."

Teachers' Minimum Salary Increases Through State

Next fall over half (54 per cent) of Virginia's teachers in approximately 30 localities, including Virginia Beach, are expected to begin receiving a minimum $6,000 base pay. Nearly one in five teachers will be located in areas where the minimum is $6,200 or more.

Currently there are only two localities--both in Northern Virginia, Alexandria and Prince William--in which the minimum salary for holders of bachelor degrees is $6,000. The two localities represent only 4 per cent of the state's teachers.

Already established at $6,000 for the coming school year are Virginia Beach, Colonial Heights, Chesapeake, Hopewell, Lexington, Lynchburg, Petersburg, Portsmouth and the counties of King George, Loudoun and Prince George.

The top starting salary in the state is expected to be $6,400 at Fairfax. Alexandria will run a close second with a proposed $6,300 for first year teachers.

Already established above the $6,000 minimum are Falls Church at $6,230, and Arlington, Radford and Prince William at $6,200.

The state department of education's minimum schedule for the next year is $4,700; the lowest established to date is $5,300 in Northampton County.

Support or Non-Support

Democrats for the most part have adopted a "wait and see" attitude statewide concerning their party's nomination for president. Except for some of the relatively small "McCarthy for President" groups and former State Sen. Armistead Boothe's "Kennedy for President" group, all is quiet.

Privately it seems as though Vice President Humphrey is the leading contender in Virginia, but nobody wants to say so publicly or be caught up in a tangled web later on. The lack of support for the candidacy of Bobby Kennedy is rather obvious throughout most of the state, and it is almost certain he would never be fully acceptable to Virginia Democrats.

This has caused the changing of plans of lots of people, no doubt. William Battle, unannounced, but still running hard for the 1969 gubernatorial nomination, has been closely aligned with the Kennedys. He was John F. Kennedy's campaign manager in Virginia in 1960 and a close friend of the former President. Kennedy appointed him Ambassador to Australia. He worked closely with Bobby Kennedy in 1960, when Bobby was his brother's national campaign manager.

Now Battle says he is staying out of the Presidential nomination race altogether and is not supporting anyone. Furthermore, he says he will not support the Democratic nominee after the convention, as most other Democrats across Virginia will. It seems that Battle wants to stick to state issues only to keep any of the past relationships from affecting his chances.

Battle, speaking in Virginia Beach last week, noted that he had not been contacted by Bobby Kennedy either indirectly or directly for support. This seems rather strange, particularly since Kennedy woke Gov. Godwin up in the middle of the night to seek support; he has contacted each Congressman and Senator; he has called members of the national committee; and he has contacted numerous other allies in Virginia.

It is also interesting that Kennedy kicked off his campaign in Charlottesville, Battle's home, yet has never sought support from Battle. Could it be that Battle has been out...perhaps on purpose...when Kennedy called?

Build the Stadium . . . Now

The merger between the Tides and the Neptunes is probably a fine thing, but only time and at least one season for both will show us for sure. We are pleased that the Neptunes have been given a new lease on life through this action, which will probably also increase the popularity of the Tides.

But neither has a good enough place to play now. One of the arrangements of the merger is to work with the recently set up four-city stadium authority hopefully to bring about construction of a new, accessible two-sport stadium for the entire Tidewater area.

This is fine, unless things begin to move faster than they have, the Neps and the Tides will have long grey beards by the time the first game of either sport can be played in the new stadium.

We hope that red tape can now be cut and that the four cities will work closely with all governmental agencies and private interests to build a central stadium as soon as possible.

Certainly somewhere in Virginia Beach or Chesapeake near the major arterial roads seems a logical site, and we hope something can be found there without politics or other delaying tactics keeping us from having a fine new stadium for professional sports.....one, two, three, or more.

Our Praiseworthy School System

Nearly one of every five Virginia public school teachers this fall will be in localities with starting salaries of at least $6,000, as against one out of 25 this school year.

Virginia Beach and all other Tidewater cities, with the exception of Norfolk, will have this minimum, putting Tidewater generally among the leaders of the state. Finally teacher salaries are beginning to catch up with other professions, but they still fall far below others when the amount of training required is concerned.

Although even some skilled laborers make more than teachers, times have improved. Lest anyone forget, the starting salary in Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County just 15 years ago was $2,500.

The cost of educating our children is high, and the taxpayers must foot the bill. We, in Virginia Beach, can be grateful for the quality education given our children in the finest facilities, instead of condemning our municipal government for the low amount spent on each pupil, critics should change their tune, and praise our city officials for being able to provide such an excellent education at such low cost.

The new schools to be built here within the next year or so will also add greatly to the quality of education. Virginia Beach can be proud of its entire school system, including the salary of teachers.

VERY TAXING

Guest Editorial

The State School Budget

The following editorial appeared recently in the VIRGINIA JOURNAL OF EDUCATION, written by Dr. Robert F. Williams. With the cost of education on both the state and local level continuing to rise at such a rapid pace, the editorial is reprinted here for the information of the public.

The 1968-69 State School budget for the public schools as compared with the previous biennium was skimpier in new money made available. The removal of the 50 per cent federal impact funds as a deduction in the formula added about $10 million to the basic fund appropriation for 1968-69, making total basic fund gains $19,599,715 for 1968-69 over the school year 1967-68. The $10 million went to only 51 counties and cities. The increase for 1966-67 over 1965-66 in this category was $21,613,840. The basic appropriation is the appropriation which is mainly used for teachers' salaries.

Twenty-one localities will receive no additional money during 1968-69 from the basic appropriation. Therefore, the additional Basic Funds will provide from no increase per teacher in twenty-one counties and cities to $1,452 per teacher in Prince George County.

Thus, the effect of the budget varies vastly from locality to locality. Since, however, the support of public education is both a State and local function, the majority of Virginia's school divisions could make great additional contributions to the total cost of education out of local funds without unreasonably burdening themselves.

To graphically show the extent to which public education was less well favored than previously in the 1968-70 budget, let us look at the following figures. After all of the stuffing is taken out of the 1968-70 budget (the one percent earmarked sales tax, up until this session regarded as local funds, amounting to $126,648,800) and (the federal funds for 1968-70 amounting to $53,121,620, neither item of which was included in the 1966-68 budget) the net increase in the school budget for the 1968-70 biennium over 1967-68 is $87 million. The 1966-68 biennial increase over 1965-66 was $94 million.

Plus

1. $87 million is a lot of new money, even if it is not as much new money as the localities received during the last biennium.

2. In addition to this, for the first year of the biennium, 1967-68, they will have an estimated $14,459,250 additional funds in the way of estimated earmarked one percent sales tax receipts.

3. The basic salary of school superintendents was increased by $300 per year.

4. The minimum teachers' salary schedule, which can only be considered as a part of a distribution formula since it bears no resemblance to the actual salary situation in Virginia, will provide $300 more per assigned teacher position for the first year of the biennium and $300 the second year of the biennium.

5. The contingent appropriation of $2 per child for textbooks, which will materialize only if there is surplus in the General Fund Treasury and the budgeted School Funds, could amount to $2 million.

6. $15 million has been made available for the establishment of kindergartens.

7. Compulsory attendance, after a lapse of 10 years, has been made statewide again, with the law improved in that the compulsory age has been lowered from 7 to 6 and increased from 16 to 17.

8. Senate Bill No. 426, provides a 10% increase in retirement allowances for those retired prior to March 1, 1952, effective with check received about August 1 in payment for July. An increase will also be payable to some retired since March 1, 1952 who were retired for service and credited thirty or more years service and who have attained age sixty-five, and to some retired for disability who were credited twenty or more years service, since each is guaranteed an allowance from social security and the Virginia Supplemental Retirement System combined no less than the minimum amount payable to those retired prior to March 1, 1952 under similar conditions.

9. After a long battle, our continuing contract bill, rewritten twice by the Senate Education Committee, was enacted.

10. No longer can governing bodies cut school budgets line by line, the passage of H.B. 915 insured.

11. State Board was given authority to accredit elementary schools.

Minus

1. We were disappointed that neither the State Board of Education, nor the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, after presenting a good minimum budget to the Governor, when it was drastically slashed, made no protests, in public at least, before the Legislature as did the heads and boards of other State agencies.

2. We were disappointed that the State Board threw up barriers in the way of the establishment of kindergartens (a) by requiring a devisor of .30 to secure State aid for one assigned kindergarten position and (b) at the same time, setting up space regulations which would limit class size to around 25 pupils. Localities found themselves in the position, in order to have kindergartens, of having to employ two teachers but receiving State funds toward the salary of only one.

3. The Tuition Grant Program was not killed, but happily, the opposition to this program is mounting.

4. We were not successful in securing professional agreement legislation, but a resolution was adopted urging school boards to review their working relationships with administrators and teachers, "with the objective of establishing sound working relationships which will tend to improve the local program of education."

5. All of our retirement bills, except for the one providing for a 10 percent increase in the annuities of retired teachers, failed to pass.

6. No funds were provided for elementary summer schools.

Governor Godwin has been an outstanding Governor in every respect and particularly in his emphasis on the improvement of public education. He called a statewide Governor's Conference which emphasized the importance of education and urged its more adequate financing.

His regional conferences, every one of which he attended, were occasions when he attempted to awaken the electorate to the need of education and the necessity for more adequate support.

While we, in all candor, are disappointed in the relative increase in the size of his education budget for 1968-70, as compared with 1966-68, in all fairness, we must remember that education is both a State and local function.

And what have the localities done to increase their support?

1. Eighteen localities in 1966-67 did not use all of the earmarked one percent sales tax for education, even after the Governor had exhorted them to use all of the money. Fifteen are not using all of this money this year.

2. Instead of putting as much of the earmarked money into salaries for 1967-68 as the State Department of Education had estimated they would, they used nearly $12 million of these funds for debt services and capital outlay and other school operating expenses.

3. Fifteen localities in 1966-67 were not up to the formula requirement of 60 cents local tax effort. Thirty-one were not up to the State Board's proposal of 65 cents, and 97 were not up to the State average of 85 cents.

The disappointing aspect of this whole picture is that, in the main, the areas in which education needs to be upgraded most are exerting themselves least.

During the next two years the Superintendent of Public Instruction, the State Board of Education, and its staff must be brought closer to the every-day problems, hopes, aspirations, and frustrations of the classroom teacher.

A Pox Upon Us

"Do you really mean to tell me you've never had chicken pox?" he asked.

"Well, I don't think so," she said. "At least I don't remember having it, and I seem to remember Mother saying that I had somehow escaped at least one childhood disease."

"You know, that's pretty funny," he said. "Wait until I tell my friends my wife has chicken pox."

"I don't see anything funny about it. They itch" she said.

"Take one of the anti-itch pills the doctor gave the kids," he said, "and don't scratch that one on the end of your nose. That's a heckuva place to have a scar the rest of your life."

"This is ridiculous, you know," she said. "Imagine a grown woman with two children with chicken pox. I just didn't think I'd get it."

"Why not?" he laughed. "Both the kids had it, one right after the other, and they didn't scratch them, so stop."

"They itch."

"I felt real sorry for the little one there for awhile when her sister got it. She was so upset that she didn't have any little marks all over her," he mused. "She examined herself daily in the mirror looking for signs of them."

"Well, it didn't help when the older one kept pulling up her dress to show her the ones surrounding her belly button," she threw in.

"That little one really scared me silly the other morning," he said, "when she came into our room at the crack of dawn screaming. I thought she was at least mortally wounded."

"It must have scared you," she laughed. "You jumped out of bed and grabbed her and tried to console her."

"Well, that early in the morning how was I to know they were screams of joy that she had two 'chicken pops' on her tummy," he said. "Incidentally, she was right, they were 'chicken pops.'"

"These things on my legs are too," she said, as she cried a little. "And I'm contagious, you know for the next four or five days. Come to think of it I was contagious at that circus the other day. Maybe I've infected a whole circus tent full of people."

"Maybe you infected the elephants too," he said. "Boy, what a case of chicken pox that would be."

"I heard the other day that you can get chicken pox more than once," she said.

"There you go, reading again," he said disgustedly. "I'm sure you can't get it but once."

"No, I'm sure of it. You can get it any number of times."

".....That's very interesting," he said.

"Where are you going?" she asked.

"To look in the mirror," he said. He was gone about two minutes. When he came back he had a rather dejected look on his face. "Care to join me in an anti-itch pill?"

"You're kidding," she laughed (a lot) "Not you too?"

"Well, it's either that or I've got a serious case of hives," he said.

"Now remember, don't scratch them," she chided.

He began to roar with laughter. When she was finally able to get him calmed down enough to ask what was the matter, he said, "I was just thinking about that meeting I went to the other day. Suppose everyone there gets the chicken pox? Then I talked with the Lieutenant Governor for a long time. Suppose he gets it? With all the hands he shakes this could cause an epidemic."

Try Rosemary with Chicken

It's the aroma of rosemary which gives an Italian accent to this flavorful chicken braised in red wine.

Chicken is probably the most versatile and adaptable of all foods. Since it is raised practically everywhere on the globe, it is universally cooked, eaten and enjoyed immensely.

It is largely spicing which distinguished an Austrian Paprikahuhn from Spanish Arroz con Pollo from Chinese Boo Loo Gai. Cooked alla Italiana (as is the Chicken Genoese Style for which the recipe is given) there's almost certainly the drifting aroma of rosemary.

This esteemed herb, native to the shores of the Mediterranean, bears its fragrance in leaves which look like half-inch-long pine needles. Rosemary not only enhances chicken, but is a delightful seasoning for lamb, pork, and beef stews; vegetables such as eggplant, green beans, summer squash and turnips as well. It's great in fruit cups or in sugar syrup for sweetening lemonade or fruit punches. Heat a half teaspoon rosemary with the milk to be used in making a loaf of yeast bread. Spoon bread, too, is made more delicious with the use of a half or whole teaspoon of rosemary; again, heat it in the milk. Unlike most herbs, rosemary requires at least 10 minutes cooking time to release the flavor.

Rosemary is compatible with many other spices and herbs. It goes especially well with garlic, onion and sweet pepper flakes, most other herbs and such true spices as black, white or red pepper, ginger and allspice.

Rosemary is sold nationally in whole form only. Cursh it as much as possible if it is to be added to a dough or batter.

France, Spain, Portugal and Yugoslavia grow the rosemary we import and additional fine rosemary comes from California.

As an easy lesson in seasoning with rosemary, do try these recipes from the test kitchens of the American Spice Trade Association.

Military Wives' Club Notes

By Mary Wright

The officers' wives of the command communications ship USS WRIGHT (CC-2) have a busy social calendar for the month of May.

The premier event of the month is Norfolk's annual Cruiser-Destroyer Force formal ball. The ball is scheduled for Friday, May 10 at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel, Norfolk.

On May 11, all WRIGHT wives are invited to the 1968 Dependents Cruise. The cruise will also feature the fifth anniversary of the ship since recommissioning.

Finally on the last of the month, a Hail and Farewell party will be given in honor of three departing husbands and to welcome new members of the WRIGHT family. The party will be held at Breezy Point Officer's Club, NAS, Norfolk.

Many people have been analyzed in many different ways. But one of the most interesting and fascinating types of personality analysis is Grapho-Analysis which is the study of a person's handwriting. This was the topic at the monthly meeting of the Officers' Wives Club, held at the Shore Drive Inn. Mrs. Kay MacDonald a WRIGHT wife herself, has a master of arts degree from the International Grapho-Analysis Institute and has done extensive research in this field. She gave a brief lecture and also analyzed each woman's handwriting.

The WRIGHT is commanded by Capt. F.M. Romanick and is home ported in Norfolk.

The USS WRIGHT (CC-2) Enlisted Wives Club will have a new set of officers at its meeting in May.

Capt. Romanick will officially install the newly elected officers at the May 22 meeting of the club, to be held at the Chief Petty Officers' Club, Naval Station, Norfolk. The installation ceremony is scheduled for 10 a.m. and will be followed by a luncheon. For further information concerning this meeting contact Mrs. Lewis Bryant at 423-3590.

At Little Creek

Wednesday, April 24, is the day for Norfolk Symphony Orchestra Conductor Russell Stanger's lecture to the Amphibious Force Officers' Wives lecture series at Little Creek.

Stanger's lecture will be preceded by an informal coffee, beginning at 10 p.m. in the Lynnhaven Room of the base officers' Club.

Ft. Story

Lettuce, artichoke hearts and tomatoes are a few of the items on Ft. Story Officers' Wives Club agenda for their next social meeting, scheduled for May 2 at the post officers' club.

Each wife will bring her favorite salad and the accompanying recipe for a group sharing-session. Prizes will be awarded for the best dishes.

At Oceana

The Liberty Bell Ball, hostessed by the Officers' Wives Club of the USS Independence (CVA-62) and the wives of Carrier Air Wing 7 will be held at the Oceana Officers' Club, Saturday, April 20.

The formal dinner-dance will begin with cocktails, served from 7 p.m. Dinner will be served at eight. Chairman of the gala is Mrs. Louis Kriser, wife of Cdr. Louis Kriser, air officer of the independence.

Committee members for the ball are Mrs. James Austin, Mrs. Charles Braley, Jr., Mrs. Jerome Gehrig, Mrs. Thomas Golder, Mrs. Carl Martin, Mrs. Thomas Overdorf and Mrs. Robert Thompson.

According to Mrs. Bradley, the decorations for the ball are "classified information," but rumor has it they will be centered around the aircraft carrier's name: Independence.

Weather Attracts Easter Crowds at Beach

There hasn't been a more beautiful Easter Sunday in Virginia Beach in many years. Even at 6 a.m. there wasn't a cloud in the sky over Cape Henry for the sunrise service at the commerative cross there. There was a little wind, but the temperature had already climbed to the 50 degree mark, and nearly 5,000 people lined the sandy hillsides to witness the latest renewal of the annual event.

This is the judges' choice for Best Dressed Family, that of Lcdr. DeLong.

Other sunrise services were held elsewhere too, including one at a drive-in theatre with the service was connected to the in-car speakers.

Business was excellent in Virginia Beach during the Easter weekend. Motels and hotels in the resort area reported almost total capacity, and the restaurants did a fine business. According to the Chamber of Commerce, it was the best Easter weekend for businesses on record in the memory of anyone there.

By Sunday afternoon temperatures had climbed near the 80 degree mark. Colorful Easter clothes were visible everywhere. There was just no doubt about it. Spring had come in all its glory to Virginia Beach with a promise of a wonderful fun-filled summer season to come.

The lovely weather brought out crowds to both parade and watch on the Boardwalk. John Griffin was master of ceremonies and Mrs. Barbara Leitman was chairman of the event. Special guests included Judge and Mrs. P.B. White (he was the first winner), Mr. and Mrs. Lee Paige (he was behind the revival of the Parade, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kellam, Mr. and Mrs. Al Mailhes, Mayor Frank Dusch, Mr. and Mrs. Brad Pulley, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Scott and officers from the NATO Standing Atlantic Fleet.

Winners of the Easter Parade were Denise Katsias of Cooper Road, Best Dressed Toddler Girl; Eddie McLaughlin of 64th Street, Best Dressed Toddler Boy; Andrea Cahill of Chesapeake, Best Dressed Girl 5-12; Thomas Larry Grant of Chesapeake, Best Dressed Boy 5-12; Janet Litchfield of Virginia Beach Boulevard, Best Dressed Teen Girl; Patrick Maginley of Great Neck Road, Best Dressed Teen Boy; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Arellano of Wolf Street, Best Dressed Couple; Lt. Cdr. and Mrs. Edward DeLong of Plantation Road and their family, Best Dressed Family for the second straight year; David Casteel of 79th Street, Best Dressed Man, and Mrs. Robert B. Kendall of Sherwood Lane, Best Dressed Woman.

And the band played on ...the Navy School of Music band, that is, providing the paraders with music to parade by.

McAllen's ALLEY

By Carolyn McAllen

Tell the Bunny To Leave Us Alone

We got to sleep until 3 a.m. Easter morning before the five-year-old came in to announce that the Easter bunny had arrived.

After shooing her back to bed, all was quiet until 3:30 when she came in again and waved a chocolate rabbit under my nose. She doesn't like chocolate, she said, so she wanted to give it to me.

After chasing her to bed again, the house was quiet for another 15 minutes until she decided to wake up her brother and sister for company. By the time we got up at seven, the five-year-old had finished off three eggs, oodles of jelly beans and no telling how many candy Easter eggs-plus whatever she could snitch from her brother's basket.

Breakfast was a fiasco. Nobody wanted anything to eat. But halfway to church (at 9:45), the five-year-old inquired, "What are we having for lunch, Monny?"

When I left for work Monday morning, she had just finished her last Easter egg and was watching Captain Kangaroo while munching on a chocolate rabbit she hadn't liked theday before.

The Boardwalk Easter Parade had some funny moments. There was one little girl (barely old enough to walk) who was dragged bodily along by her older sister and brother who must have been all of two and three.

Another little girl burst into tears as soon as her mother told her to "smile for the judges."

One toddler boy uttered a determined, "No, no, no," as his mother tried to shove him toward the judges.

But my hat is off to the family with eight kids all dressed alike. Any parents who can keep that many children together in a crowd without losing at least one deserves a special bouquet.

There were ten look-alikes in this large family who paraded along the boardwalk. Just the family alone was almost enough for a parade.

Nearly 5,000 people attended sunrise services at the Cape Henry Cross at Fort Story. Most had to stand on the sandy, but picturesque hillsides.

Another 300 preferred to remain in their cars and listen to a sunrise service on the speakers at the Virginia Beach Drive-In Theatre. A portable platform was brought in for the minister.

When Emily Louise Lucas was christened recently, it was in a 100-year-old handmade gown earlier worn by her great-great grandmother--also her father, William Lucas.

However, the gown has already gone to New Jersey for another christening. Emily Louise is the first child in the fourth generation to wear the gown.

Mrs. Lucas, the former Patricia McGarvey, taught speech and drama at Princess Anne High School before her marriage.

Emily Louise models the dress.

'Kick-Off' Coffee Held

A special Cancer Crusade "Kick-off" Coffee was held recently at the Bow Creek Golf & Country Club.

The ladies of the board of directors brought their silver services and poured. Mrs. Sidney S. Kellam and Mrs. Herman Bonney made the flower arrangements of spring flowers and camellias. Amid this spring gaiety, a very serious group assembled to hear the following guest speakers:

Dr. Susan Mellette, Assistant Professor of Internal Medicine, specializing in Medical Oncology at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond. She joined the faculty of MCV as a Research Associate in 1955. In 1962 she became Director of the Tumor Clinic with special interest in the treatment of patients with widely disseminated cancers. The title of her talk was "Crusade 1968-Report from a Battle Station-Progress and Problems in Cancer Treatment". Her talk was encouraging and also pointed up the great need for more money in cancer research.

Another guest speaker was Dr. Madge May, director of Public Health for the City of Virginia Beach. Dr. May spoke on the cooperation between the Public Health Department and the Cancer Unit in assisting cancer patients in Virginia Beach.

Horace A. Cistola, Crusade chairman for the Virginia Beach Unit, thanked those present for their interest and for giving their time to help with the residential drive which started April 5th and will continue all this month. Cistola stated, "I sincerely hope each home will welcome the crusade worker and listen to her story".

Lawrence A. Sancilio, vice president of the Unit, introduced Mrs. Anne Ellis who told of her valiant and courageous battle with cancer, a heart warming true story of one woman's fight.

Mrs. Paul Dolgins, Residential Crusade Chairman, conducted the meeting and encouraged her crusade workers to make sure each home received the booklet on Cancer's "Seven Warning Signals" and told about what the local unit does, the services it performs.

Dr. Alvin Q. Jarrett, president of the Virginia Beach Unit, commented, "It was indeed gratifying to see so many workers for the Cancer Society present and I know from the comments after the meeting that everyone attending felt they had learned a great deal.

Hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. Herman Bonney, Mrs. Leo Bilney, Mrs. Joseph LaGiglia, Mrs. A. F. Nicholson, Jr., Mrs. Sidney S. Kellam, Mrs. William P. Kellam, Mrs. Marguerite Roberts and Mrs. Robert S. Wahab, Jr.

Businessmen To Sponsor Evangelist

A new dimension in evangelism for the local area was instituted on Tuesday evening, April 2 when a group of Christian businessmen and ministers met at Carrow Baptist Church and formed the "Danny Marrow Evangelistic Association."

Recognizing the great need for personal evangelism in the Beach area, the association will place the Rev. Danny Marrow as an evangelist in this area during the spring and summer. His mission will be to carry the gospel message into the resort areas along the beaches. Preaching stations will be established when and where ever the need arises by means of a mobile pulpit.

The Rev. Marrow is an ordained Southern Baptist Minister and is a former paster of the Knotts Island Baptist Church, but feels that his calling is to full time evangelistic work. In the past five years he has preached in churches of various denominations and also in rest homes, skidrow missions, and for the past 16 months in the area jail. Wherever the Rev. Marrow goes bearing his testimony and witness many people come to know Christ as Lord and Savior.

Temporary headquarters of the Association is located at the First Colonial Baptist Church, First Colonial Road, Telephone 428-3700.

Indications are officer Fred Wilson is making satisfactory recovery from a recent illness and hospitalization, and should soon be back on the job in the police division's radio room.

Members of the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Fire Dept. Ladies Auxiliary are holding their first spaghetti dinner this Saturday. Meals will be served from 5 to 8 p.m. at the firehouse on Rosemont Road, with take-out service available. Tickets may be obtained at the door.

This week saw the addition of three new officers to the Virginia Beach police division. William V. Brew has been assigned to the radio room in headquarters at Princess Anne Courthouse, while L.T. Semones and Leo J. Lister, Sr. were both assigned to the Bayside Precinct. Incidentally Lister's son has been a member of the Bayside Precinct for some time.

M.T. Holland, chief fire inspector for the city of Virginia Beach, and fire inspector James Jessup, have just returned from a seminar in Columbus, Ohio. The five-day seminar, sponsored by the International Arson Investigators Association, consisted of procedures in prevention and investigation of arson, and included trial procedures for individuals who may be charged with arson.

Men of the Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire Dept. will be "welcomed with open arms" when they arrive in Winchester for participation in the Apple Blossom Festival "Firemen's Parade." Our recent mention of the men planning to attend the affair even though they had not received the customary invitation resulted in a prompt reply from the Festival Committee, and an "official" invitation to take part in the annual event.

VIRGINIA BEACH LAWNS & GARDENS

Exclusive in the Sun — Edited by four turf and garden authorities living in Virginia Beach.

Trees Add Beauty, Value

If you plant a tree with care, it can add greatly to the beauty and value of your property, without causing problems in the future years.

Careful thought and planning should be given to the purpose of the tree and then to the kind of tree that is best suited to that purpose. No one tree is perfect for all locations and purposes.

The location of the tree and what its future effect may be on your house, sidewalk, sewers, lawn, flower beds or play areas is just as important as its size, shape, rate of growth and coloration.

Your shade tree plan should consider how your home is situated on the lot and how you live. Shade trees should be located to protect your home from morning and afternoon sun. They can be used as screens to provide patio privacy and to shield your home from traffic.

Many homeowners have the mistaken ideas that shade trees are different from other plants in their yards in that it is not necessary to fertilize them. Shade trees, as do all other plants, need fertilizer to maintain good growth. Most shade trees are deeper rooted than shrubs and flowers, which necessitates placing the fertilizer in the vicinity of the feeding roots.

The majority of feeding roots are within a circular area beginning just outside the spread of the branches and extending about 2/3's of the distance back to the trunk. A rule of thumb, is the spread of the roots is about equal to twice the diameter of the trunk in inches, one foot above the ground. A tree with a diameter of 10 inches would have a root spread of about 20 feet.

Trees need food. It is necessary for the homeowner to add a complete fertilizer. A deficiency of certain elements contained in these tree foods will cause reduced flowering and fruiting, reduced overall growth, decreased disease resistance, dieback, reduced winter hardiness- and off-colored, unsightly foliage.

A good tree food to use would have an analysis of 30-5-8 and should be in a pellet form. This should be applied in early spring, and again in June at the following rates:

Newly planted trees: 2 cups, which is about (1/2-3/4 lb.) per inch of trunk diameter.

For trees over six inches in diameter, 7 cups (about 2 lbs. per inch of trunk diameter. (1 standard measuring cup equal 5.1 oz. of 30-5-8)

This 30-5-8 tree food is available at most garden supply stores in the Tidewater area.

On certain shade tree species chlorosis, which is a yellowing between the veins of leaves, may occur. This is due to lack of available iron in the soil. Severe cases, left untreated, can result in complete dieback of the branches. Use a supplemental application of iron chelate which is iron in a readily available form. It can be found at most garden supple stores. Follow the directions on the package. This deficiency occurs in pin oak, but can be found on sweet gum rhododendrons, azaleas, and others.

The best method to fertilize trees is called the punch bar method. It is more effective with larger trees, since it gets the tree food distributed into the root zone area. Make holes 12-15 inches deep, spaced 18 inches apart-using a crow bar, pipe or augur over the area of the feeding roots. Stay about 2 feet away from the trunk. The tree food moves downward, so many holes should be made. Distribute the tree food evenly in the holes, and then fill the holes with water to soak the tree food into the soil and thus make it available to the feeding roots. The holes can be filled with sand, peat moss or loose soil. Or, if they are to be left open, they will facilitate water absorption during rains, aerate the soil, promote development of feeding roots, and provide effective means of supplying water during droughts.

Tree feeding can be done at various times, but April, May and June are particularly good months, when the soil contains ample water.

Well fed trees will give you the pleasure that you anticipate. Take care of the natural "air conditioners" of your home.

QUESTION BOX

Q. The last several times, after mowing my grass, I've noticed the ends are a little brown, but the grass remains green beneath. Is this a disease? P.L., Virginia Beach.

A. More than likely this has been caused by a mower blade that is dull. A dull blade only shreds and rips off the end of the grass blade. The discoloration is due to the tearing.

This does enhance the possibility of disease getting started. Make sure where you have a reel or rotary type mower, that the blade is always sharp in order to provide a nice, even, clean cut. The mower should also be adjusted properly for height, to avoid scalping.

Q. When setting out annuals and perennials, what is the best fertilizer to use when planting? D.N., Alanton.

A. When planting, a fertilizer which contain low nitrogen, high phosphorus and medium potash is a good basic one. A 6-22-16 analysis with micronutrients incorporated with the soil will provide excellent results.

Q. Can we use the same sprayer to spray weeds as we do our roses and other plants? S.S., Lynnhaven.

A. It is recommended that you keep two different sprayers. One to spray desirable tree plants and shrubs, and the other to spray weed killers and all vegetation killers. The residue left by these herbicides is not easily removed. The sprayers that attach to the end of the hose and proportion the spray are satisfactory and inexpensive. Don't take chances.

Q. My azaleas had holes in their leaves last summer. Some even had all the leaves stripped off. I thought it was slugs or snails and put out bait but that did not help. What do you suggest? Mrs. TYM, Little Neck Road

A. It sounds like you have the Japanese weevil--a hard-shelled, pointed-nosed creature that comes out at night and strips the leaves from azaleas and camellias. They are extremely difficult to control. Experiment stations recommend spraying the plants and entire bed area at once with Chlordane spray. Spray again in 30 days. This kills the larvae grub in the ground before it hatches. Continue to spray monthly throughout the summer with a broad control spray that contains chlordane.

NOW IS THE TIME TO...

Use Pruning paint to seal the ends of twigs and branches following pruning. This prevents the entrance of insects, particularly stem borers. Pruning paint is available in a handy aerosol container, for quick and easy application.

One application of fertilizer with insect control will keep these pests out of your lawn soil for 2 to 3 years.

Check your fertilizer spreader again to see that it is working properly. It is important for you to get accurate coverage of fertilizers, insecticides, and weed and feed products you apply. Clean it thoroughly after using. Rinse it off with water, and dry it.

Consider using a brick mowing edge between the lawn and other areas such as flower beds and curbing. Bricks will provide a smooth surface for the lawn mower wheels, while the blades cut the grass to the edge which eliminates time-consuming trimming and edging. This also adds a flair of design. Bricks can be set evenly in a 3 inch bed of sand.

Clean up the garden. A good thorough garden clean-up will aid in insect and disease control. Garden refuse often harbors insects and insect eggs, as well as disease spores.

Garden Personals

This week, one of the most beautiful areas in Virginia Beach will reach its peak in springtime beauty. We're talking about the Alanton area, where the dogwoods line the streets and in many places completely cover the roadway with a bower of white. If you haven't driven through Alanton in the spring, we recommend it.

District Garden Clubs Meet at Beach

Fred Huette thanks the ladies for his award at the Tidewater District of the Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs meeting.

The Tidewater District of the Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs Inc. had its spring meeting Tuesday at the Commodore Country Club. A total of 275 women in the district attended.

Plans for the Fall Fashion Show, sponsored annually by the District, were announced by Mrs. C. E. McGinn of Norfolk, chairman. The show will again be at the Golden Traingle with fashions from Miller & Rhoads.

Co-chairman of the show will be Mrs. B. W. Baker. Other chairmen are Mrs. Q. M. Sheipe, tickets; Mrs. J. W. Phipps of Virginia Beach, publicity; Mrs. Richard C. Dunaja of Virginia Beach, hostesses; Mrs. J. W. Schmidt, decorations.

There will be no tickets sold at the door. Advance tickets will be $1. The show will be held at 8 p.m. Sept. 24 and at 1 a.m. Sept. 25.

The District will sponsor Mrs. John W. Knight of Cayuga Falls, Ohio for a Christmas program on Nov. 5 entitled, "The Night Before Christmas."

The state convention will be held May in Staunton. A special bus will leave Norfolk at 6 a.m. May 6.

It was announced that the state convention will be held at the Golden Triangle in Norfolk on May 26-28, 1969.

The District voted to present prizes of $10 and $5 to the clubs selling the most flower calendars next year.

Mrs. Dunaja announced that a prize will be given to the club planting the most lilies next year.

Lake Smith Terrace Garden Club was welcomed to the District.

Although a number of awards were made at the meeting, none were presented to Virginia Beach clubs.

There were also a number of life memberships announced in both the Tidewater District and in the National Federation of Garden Clubs. From Virginia Beach, Mrs. David Stormont Sr. was honored by her club, Birdneck Point Garden Club, with a life membership in the National Federation. Mrs. James E. Johnson of Hunt Country Garden Club was given a life membership in the District.

Guests at the luncheon included Mrs. and Mrs. George Baker, curator of the Norfolk Botanical Gardens, Robert Matthews of the Botanical Gardens, Mrs. and Mrs. Fred Huette and George Bonney. Mrs. Frank Lukanich, president of the District, announced that Huette will be presented with a silver seal award at the state convention. Only three are given per year nationally.

Mrs. W. N. Austin of Arrowhead Garden Club was on the planning committee for the meeting.

Pruning is an important aspect of training our ornamental plants. The time of pruning is an important factor to remember. Pruning at the wrong time will drastically reduce the amount of blooms on many flowering plants.

Plants such as camellia, azalea, forsythia and Japanese quince should be pruned immediately after they bloom if any pruning is desired for that year.

Camellia and azalea will usually only need to be shaped.

When pruning forsythia, be sure to leave free flowing, arching branches. Cut out older canes. It is not the nature of this plant to be pruned in a formal ball.

Almost a half billion ears of sweet corn are grown in Florida fields each fall, winter and spring.

Historic Homes Are on Tour

Eight historic homes on Dillingham Boulevard at the Norfolk Naval Station, will be opened to the public for a tour on Wednesday, April 24th, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and from 6:30 p.m. until 9:30 p.m.

The evening tour, a candlelight tour, will be the special feature this year. The interiors of the homes will glow with candlelight and music. This should be of special interest to family groups and working people, who are unable to attend the tour during the day.

All eight homes were built in 1907 to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the landing of the colonists at Jamestown. They were presented by individual states and are representative of the architecture of each state. The houses are now occupied as official quarters by admirals and generals of the Navy and Marine Corps. The furnishings are almost entirely those of each resident, and there are many antiques and art objects from the foreign countries in which these officers and their families have been stationed.

At Missouri House, the residence of Adm. and Mrs. Ephraim P. Holmes, is a 2000 year old Amphora which was recovered by Spanish divers in 1959 from a Roman galley sunk off Palma, Majorca, about the first century, B.C.

In Michigan House is a beautifully carved rosewood "petite armoire" (small clothes closet) which Lt. Gen. and Mrs. R.G. Weede purchased in Vietnam.

Mrs. F.L. Finney Jr., wife of R. Adm. Finney of Ohio House, stands in front of a portrait of her husband's great-grandmother, painted in the early 1800's by Vanderlyn, a student of Gilbert Stuart.

The donation for the tour is $2. Tickets may be purchased at the tour homes or, in advance, at the Norfolk Museum, the Golden Triangle Hotel, or the Norfolk Historical Society. The tour is sponsored by the Navy, Marine, Coast Guard Wives of Hampton Roads area to benefit the Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences, the Navy, Marine, Coast Guard Foundation and the Navy Wives' Club of America Tidewater Council's Emergency Fund. The Azalea Queen will be present at both the daytime and the candlelight tour.

VBEA Plans To Discuss Councils

Establishment of public school Teachers Councils will be discussed during next Wednesday's meeting of the Virginia Beach Education Association. Such groups have been proposed by the Classroom Teachers Association, which is affiliated with the VBEA.

The primary purpose of the Councils would be exchange of "teacher ideas and experience" thus resulting in benefits to students from the elementary level through high school. The program would also result in possible improvements in planning of public school curriculums.

The affiliation of the CTA with the VBEA resulted in placing responsibility of improving classroom instruction with the CTA, thus leaving the VBEA free to devote more of it's efforts to the field of teacher welfare.

While the plan calls for each Council to function independently in its chosen field of interest, each teacher in any given course of instruction would be permitted to participate in activities of the Council concerned with the particular area of interest and it's related programs.

Girl Scouts Set Arts Festival

The culmination of a year's concentration on broadening Girl Scouts' horizons by the Greater Tidewater Council of Girl Scouts of America including Virginia Beach, will be seen April 20, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., when the first Council-wide Arts Festival is presented at Virginia Wesleyan College.

Mrs. Raymond W. Morgan, Arts Festival Chairman, of Chesapeake has announced that both visual and performing arts will be on display to the public during the Saturday Festival, including 10 examples of the performing arts and roughly 300 static displays of Girl Scout artistry in a variety of media.

Beach Girl to Teach In Hong Kong

Mary Fran Hughes, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Hughes of Virginia Beach, is one of 73 Southern Baptist young people who have volunteered for two years service abroad as missionary journeymen, in conjunction woth the Southern Baptist Foreign Missionary Board.

Miss Hughes, a 21-year-old strawberry blond, will undergo an intensive training program this summer at Virginia Intermont College at Bristol in preparation for her missionary assignment; teaching conversational English at the Pooi Girls' Middle School, Hong Kong. The School is all Chinese-speaking, and, as of this publication date, Miss Hughes speaks no Chinese.

According to her father, minister of the London Bridge Baptist Church, for the past 16 years, she is "a product of Virginia Beach and the London Bridge Baptist Church missionary program."

The Missionary Journeyman program is now entering its fourth year. Director of the journeymen's training is Dr. James D. Belote, missionary president of the Hong Kong Baptist Theological Seminary and the Asia Baptist Theological Seminary.

Summer training for the missionary recruits will include the language, history and culture of the countries to which they will be sent, as well as Christian doctrine, evangelism, special training for health and personal development, and physical education.

The journeymen will arrive at Richmond for a commissioning service Aug. 8, soon after which they leave for their overseas assignments.

Miss Hughes

Miss Hughes was valedictorian of her Princess Anne High School 1964 graduating class, a member of the national honor society, on the school's scholastic achievement team for four years and co-copy editor of the annual. She is currently a senior at Wake Forest College.

During her college career, she has served as an instructor at camp for mentally retarded children in Pennsylvania, has been a member of the Wake Forest Baptist Church choir and is an officer in Phi Alpha Theta, national history honorary.

Engineers Elect

Mort Dagenkolb of Virginia Beach has been elected as one of the new officers of the Southeastern Virginia Chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers, it was announced at the Chapter's monthly meeting, April 9.

Two other Virginia Beach residents, R. Runyan and F. Flood, have been named to the chapter's board of directors.

'The Purple Haze' Disappears Weekly

The Purple Haze, Kempsville's only disappearing coffee house, has a split personality.

The Haze opened last Saturday night to the electrically-amplified vibrations of Chris and Ron. At 11:30, the coffee-house crowd went home, and up came the purple-flowered table cloths and floating candles: the Haze was returned to its real identity, the Kempsville Ruritan meeting hall, a white-frame, one-story house behind the Kempsville Volunteer Fire Dept. on Princess Anne Road.

On Sunday morning, still another transformation, and the Purple Haze-Ruritan hall became the meeting room for the congregation of Pentecostal Holiness Church members. And next Friday night, there will be the Purple Haze, born again.

If it sounds confusing on paper, the Purple Haze people-a group of more-than-dedicated Virginia Beach teens who wanted "a place to come and talk, discuss crucial things without being hooted down"--can tell you that the work involved outweighs the confusion.

Kathy Sjogren chairman of the Purple Haze, explained that the decorations, including tables, chairs and stage, must be set up every Friday afternoon and taken down again every Saturday night until the coffee house can find a permanent home.

Designed to fill a void left in teen night spots during the winter months, The Haze is entirely under the supervision of the teens themselves. There are two adult advisors, the Rev. Leonard R. Graves of Emmanuel Episcopal Church and Mrs. Dorothy Woolf. But the young people have set their own ground rules, and according to the Rev. Mrs. Graves, "All the decisions are theirs. What they set up stands."

One of the rules is that no alcoholic beverages will be allowed on the premises, "but aside from that, the rules are pretty loose," said Kathy. "We don't want to be so stringent that we drive people away."

The Purple Haze is asking for a $.25 donation from patrons, as well as all the helping hands they can get.

"We'll have a list near the door where anyone who wants to help us can leave his name and where we can get in touch with him," said Kathy. "This place isn't operated by a clique. We want it to belong to everybody."

The Haze will run on an informal basis, with Friday nights on stage open to anyone in the house who feels the urge to entertain. Saturday night will be set aside for planned performances. The hours for both nights are tentatively set for 8 p.m. through midnight.

Dick Baldwin and Mike Layne struggle with setting up the mike at Kempsville's only floating coffee house, The Purple Haze, while Steve Lederman and Kathy Sjogren set a pychedelically-inclined table.

Whether or not the Purple Haze continues into the summer depends on "whether or not it goes, catches on," explained Kathy.

And it depends, at least in part, on the help that the Haze gets from the Kempsville community and Virginia Beach in general.

The Ruritans, headed by E. Lesley Cox, have donated their building and $100 to the coffee house. But it would, of course, make things easier if the Haze could find a permanent home, if the floating coffee house could anchor somewhere.

Until that time, Kathy and her crew seem content to weekly set up and take down their coffee house, in the interest of "having our own place to go."

TB Officers Named at Dinner

Carroll Clough, purchasing agent for the city of Virginia Beach, was one of seven new officers announced for the Southeastern Virginia Tuberculosis and Health Assn. at its annual dinner-meeting Tuesday night at the Lake Wright Motor Hotel.

Clough will serve during the coming 1968-69 fiscal year as third vice president. The remainder of the new slate includes James. E. Douglas, Sr., president; Mrs. Earl Hoggard, first vice president; Thomas A. Sully, second vice president; Mrs. Margaret Gordon, secretary; George Gowan, treasurer; and Robert Kock, assistant treasurer.

In his executive director's report, Richard T. Bowman pointed out that the Southeastern Assn., including Virginia Beach, Chesapeake, Norfolk and the counties of Accomack and Northampton, raised a total of $80, 873 during its 1967 Christmas Seal campaign. This was an increase of 14 per cent over last year's drive, and was "the best record of any group in the state," according to Bowman.

A sizeable amount of the campaign funds have been channeled into the Association's Emphysema-Bronchitis Clinic at Norfolk, which went into operation in October, 1967. A companion orientation program is being held along with the clinic and is open free of charge to anyone with breathing problems related to emphysema and/or chronic bronchitis. The clinic is available to Virginia Beach residents. More information can be obtained by contacting the Association at P.O. Box 12111, Norfolk, Va., 23502, or by calling 855-3059.

Mrs. E. A. Hoffmeister of Virginia Beach, who was responsible for planning the dinner, also introduced the guest speaker, Robert Porter of Dale Carnegie Associates.

Porter equated "leadership qualities" with an individual's ability to establish close interpersonal relationships. He went on to specifics, saying that the ability to know people and let one's self be known must be cultivated, just as a doctor learns his profession and that the ability was based on a knowledge of self.

About 60 property owners and other interested parties attended the public hearing on possible rezoning of 21st and 22nd Streets.

Official Turns Thumbs Down On Municipal Airport Here

Hopes for a Virginia Beach municipal airport were dulled and hopes for a general aviation air terminal for the city raised Tuesday afternoon when Col. Willard G. Plenti, director of the Division of Aeronautics for the Commonwealth of Virginia, gave his "unbiased opinions" on the city's air transportation needs--present and future--to the Virginia Beach Development Council.

Because of questions raised as to whether the now-over crowded Norfolk Municipal Airport can satisfactorily service Virginia Beach's air traffic, even after proposed improvements at that airport are made, the Council had appointed a special committee to study the feasibility of Virginia Beach constructing its own carrier airport.

Plenti, described by Council president E.R. Cockrell as the top man in air traffic planning in Virginia, was called in as a special advisor by the committee.

According to Plenti, Virginia Beach's role in Tidewater air travel, in the present and near future, should be that of "contributing financially to the support and improvement of Norfolk Municipal Airport," and "thinking in terms of two general aviation airports for the city of Virginia Beach."

In elaborating on his first recommendation, Plenti explained that Norfolk Municipal could be operated on much the same basis as Newport News' Patrick Henry Field, which is run by a port authority including representatives from the surrounding communities/ counties which are serviced by and financially support the airport.

Plenti strongly advised that financial support from Virginia Beach to Norfolk Municipal should be accompanied by the city's having a voice in the airport's operation.

Plenti explained that improvements at Norfolk Municipal costing "less than $25 million" could render that airport sufficient to support Tidewater air traffic, with Patrick Henry, through 1985.

A third carrier airport for the South East Virginia region could be ideally located at Craney Island, (off northeast Portsmouth, in the southwest corner of Hampton Roads, the present location of a Navy refueling depot) according to Plenti. Plenti quoted an approximate $200 million as the total cost for the Craney Island facility: $100 million for land acquisition and construction of the airport, another $100 million for the construction of a bridge-tunnel access to the Island.

The hypothetical Craney Island airport, he added, would be adequate without improvement until 1990, according to projections from the current 20 per cent annual increase in air travel and transport at the two existing regional air carrier ports.

In continuing his discussion of two general aviation airports for Virginia Beach, Plenti pointed out that approximately two years ago both state and federal aviation agencies had as much as assured Virginia Beach aid-to the amount of $450 thousand ($300 thousand in federal aid and $150 in state moneys) toward building a general aviation airport.

"Both state and federal aviation agencies realize "a general aviation airport in eastern Virginia Beach--to handle the overflow from Norfolk--is imminent," said Plenti. He added that the embryo plans of two years ago never matured because of "lack of local interest."

Council president Cockrell, when contacted yesterday, said that there are four interested groups in Virginia Beach concerned either wholly or in part with general aviation airports for the city, including the Council committee and a Chamber of Commerce group.

"The Council committee's efforts to date have been trying to determine the need for a municipal airport," said Cockrell, "rather than with general aviation."

Col. Plenti

But Cockrell said he was "very optimistic about receiving federal funds for a general aviation airport on the basis of what Plenti said."

According to Plenti, the state Division of Aeronautics has no funds available at this time to match the City's required $150 thousand for a general aviation terminal. But the state could easily earmark the $150 thousand to be paid to the city when available, he added, so there would be no delay involved in going ahead with the airport.

Plenti's two suggested locations for Virginia Beach's general aviation airports were 1.) convenient to the Ocean front area of Beach Borough, to be used by tourists and conventioneers 2.) in the southern part of the city--former Princess Anne County--to attract industry to that section.

Two specific locations that have been mentioned as possible sites for a general aviation airport are at Virginia Beach, Ft. Story and Oceana, the latter suggested at Tuesday's meeting by Plenti. A naval spokesman from Oceana immediately explained that Oceana is already using Norfolk for most of its transport flights because of the heavy traffic at the Naval Air Station.

The Ft. Story plan, as advanced by some city officials, has been frowned upon by the Federal government.

'Dynamic Entrance' Proposed Downtown

Homeowners in the 21st and 22nd Street areas of Virginia Beach Borough are apparently united or almost united behind efforts of the City Planning Commission.

About 60 persons attended a public hearing Tuesday night at the Virginia Beach Civic Center called by the planning body to discuss the future of the two streets from Pacific Avenue westward to the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

The Commission unveiled a plan that would call for rezoning the entire area for high-rise apartments, motels and commercial development. But Planning Director Pat Standing made it clear that there would never be any spot zoning in the area regardless of the future developments. He said the entire area would be zoned at one time, not piecemeal.

The plan also calls for the strip of land between 21st and 22nd Streets to be re-zoned and reserved for the larger general commercial business and high-rise apartments, with the smaller, service stores and gas stations along the opposite sides of the streets. Gas stations were mentioned specifically when homeowners questioned how many would be there.

Standing said, "I can envision one or two on each street, but hardly any more than that."

Except for a handful who remained seated when a stand-up vote was called for on the plan or a similar one, most of those present stood quickly. No one stood in complete opposition, but a few reserved the right to wait and see.

The Commission agreed and noted that nothing will be done until after "all of us have lived through one summer with the Expressway," according to Standing. He added that no one is certain of just what will happen.

Some of the older residents of the area, a few of whom have lived there for nearly a half century, noted that they did not wish to sell and relocate. It was pointed out to them that just because rezoning may occur, they could resist opportunities to sell to commercial investors and remain there as long as they wished.

The concern of most was whether they would get enough money out of their property to relocate. Several speakers pointed out that in such cases homeowners usually get enough money to relocate well, and more besides.

Standing told the audience that the Commission would work with the homeowners and potential investors in any way they wished, but that the city was not getting into the real estate business. He said there was always the possibility that one large developer could come in and negotiate with the property owners to build the entire area according to the Commission's present ideas.

There was so little opposition that Commission spokesmen were apparently surprised and pleased.

Standing told the group that after additional thoughts are discussed, additional public hearings will be held by the Commission and City Council before anything is done, so that everyone will have an opportunity to be heard.

"We are proposing this plan as a dynamic entrance to a dynamic city," said Standing. "We don't want this to be another 17th Street or E. Ocean View Avenue."

Change Clocks Saturday

The blessing for the resort businessmen and the scourge of mothers of young children comes again this weekend.

At precisely 2 a.m. Sunday morning, Daylight Saving Time begins nationally. Clocks are pushed ahead one hour giving an extra hour of daylight in the evening.

Although it is looked upon with great favor by sports enthusiasts, resort business operators, and harried husbands who must mow the lawn in the evening, it is not looked upon as favorably by farmers who can't get their milk cows on DST, mothers who can't get the little ones to bed while it's still daylight and young lovers.

Well, you can't please everybody. Just don't forget to push the clocks ahead one hour before you go to bed Saturday night. Sorry about that hour of sleep you'll lose. You'll get it back the end of October when we return to standard time.

Council Passes Budget

As expected, the record $35.9 million operating budget for the city of Virginia Beach was passed at City Council meeting Monday. It had already been approved on first reading by Council two weeks ago. The vote was again 9 to 2, with Councilmen Kenneth Whitehurst and Earl Tebault, who represent rural areas, dissenting.

The new budget goes into effect on July 1, and calls for sharp increases in real estate taxes which go into effect on the same date. Ordinances for the tax increases are being readied, according to sources.

Some mortgage companies have already notified homeowners in Virginia Beach that they can expect a jump in payments for the tax increase and some have even suggested that the homeowner begin sending in a little additional each month now to cover the new taxes.

An amendment was added to the budget message before passage, at the request of City Manager W. Russell Hatchett. He had recommended a one-step pay increase for all City employees and a two-step increase for policemen and others. The amendment calls for waiting on the one-step across the board increase until a study, expected to be finished in the near future, is completed.

(See 'Budget', p. 2)

Licenses, Buses, Signs Keep City Council Busy

"We were going to burn the Draft Board, but we got a little criticism on that," said City Councilman Curtis Payne. This evoked considerable laughter among the city officials and spectators at City Council meeting Monday.

Payne was not being disrespectful to the Draft Board, however. He was merely commenting on permission to move the old Draft Board house on Courthouse Drive and other buildings into Blackwater Borough until they could be disposed of. The old frame houses have been put out for auction and must be moved immediately to make room for municipal construction along the road.

Plans to use the old Draft Board building for practice for volunteer firemen were forgotten when it was brought out that someone might get the wrong idea.

In other action Council approved the permanent extension of bus service by Chesapeake and Northern Transportation Co., for operation in the southwestern areas of the city. Joseph New, of Beach Taxi Co., questioned the extension and additional ones in the future. He said he did not want to see so many private bus systems like the "jitneys" growing like an "octopus." Councilmen assured him that all requests would be fully investigated, but that they could not fight progress.

Over objections, mostly by architects and those interested in beautification, Council approved a new City Building Code, which allows commercial signs to be built to a height of 50-feet. Norfolk has held steadfast to its 24-foot height, Portsmouth has no limit. This was the only objection raised to the new building code in public hearing.

(See 'Council', p.2)

City Manager Is About Month Away

Selection of a new City Manager for Virginia Beach is about a month away, according to Councilman John McCombs, chairman of a special Council committee that is screening applicants.

More than 50 applications were received up to the time another advertisement was placed in a municipal periodical. Additional applications are beginning to come in from that ad.

In the original ad, a salary of between $18,000 and $23,000 was offered, but that item was left "open" in the more recent ad.

The special committee met in executive session with City Council following the regular meeting Monday to present the names of four of those it felt Council should interview. Interviewing is scheduled to begin next Monday in an informal session of City Council, not open to the public.

The names of the applicants are being kept confidential, with the exception of Virginia Beach Asst. City Manager Roger Scott and Richard Webbon, coordinator of Urban Affairs, both of whom will be interviewed next week. The City Manager of Anchorage, Alaska, has also applied.

McCombs has said he hopes a new manager can be chosen by June 1, since W. Russell Hatchett hopes to retire on July 1.

Dickerson to Be On State Board

Frank E. Dickerson, of Virginia Beach, has been named to the State Board of Conservation and Economic Development to fill the unexpired term of another Virginia Beach man, L. Stanley Hodges.

Virginia Governor Mills E. Godwin, Jr., announced the appointment of Dickerson for the remainder of Hodges' term, which runs until June 27, 1970.

Dickerson is president of Lambert Point Docks Inc. of Norfolk but lives in Virginia Beach. Hodges resigned recently because of the press of private business. He had held the post since 1966, after he did not seek re-election to City Council.

"I think it is important to this area to have a representative on the commission," said Dickerson. "I consider it a most important body and I hope I can be of some service to the State and Tidewater, as well as the City of Virginia Beach.

Buffington Heads New Bank

James W. Buffington, chairman of the Virginia Beach School Board, has been named president of the First Colonial Bank, scheduled to begin operations about the middle of May in Malibu Towers on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Buffington takes up his new duties with a full background in banking procedures obtained in his former post as vice president and trust officer with the Bank of Virginia located in Norfolk.

When the new bank, which obtained it's charter last August, goes into operation, it will have a capitalization of $500,000, according to Buffington, First Colonial Bank's operations will be expanded about July 1, with the opening of an office in Pembroke West Shopping Center. First Colonial thus is unique in the Virginia Banking community, since it is one of the few Virginia banks to open for business with a second location already approved by banking authorities and under construction.

J.W. Buffington

Frederick Deane, Jr., of Richmond has been named chairman of First Colonial's board of directors. Others on the board in addition to Buffington, include Frank W. Keilam, Austin Owens, Lawrence A. Sancillio and James J. Gara.

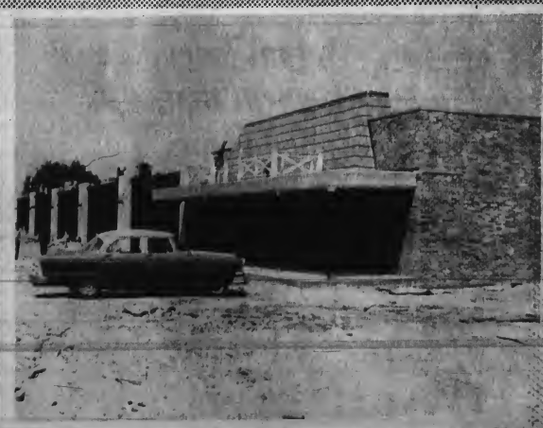

Commenting on the future of the area's newest bank, First Colonial president J. W. Buffington said, "Virginia Beach has long needed a local bank geared to the needs of Virginia Beach citizens. The First Colonial Bank plans to begin business as a progressive banking organization offering the highest level of service and most modern of banking methods. We will place heavy emphasis on personalized banking service.

Cavaliers Win 7th Straight

Eastern District leader Princess Anne took its seventh straight baseball win Saturday, with a 5-8 victory over Kellam, following Friday's 2-1 win against Granby, third-place holder in the district standings.

With a 7-6 victory over Cox Tuesday, PA's next scheduled game is Friday when the Cavaliers face Maury, which stands second in the district. Maury took its seventh straight win Tuesday, 10-2 over Bayside, to lift its record to 6-3, against PA's 7-1 record for the season to date.

Other Friday games saw First Colonial ending a two-game losing streak defeating Norview 7-2, its sixth consecutive loss. Kellam, fourth in the district, took sixth-ranked Bayside 3-1. Maury took Cox 11-3.

In Monday's Eastern District games, First Colonial won over Bayside, 6-2, and Union Kempsville took Northampton County 5-0 in VIA competition.

Tuesday saw Kellam take Norview 5-1.

Tomorrow's schedule finds Bayside at Norview, Cox at First Colonial, Granby at Kellam, in addition to the Maury-PA showdown.

Canadians Win Trips For Golf

Yesterday was the day for the Canadian Golf Tournament at the Cavalier Hotel, in connection with the city's Canadian Festival Week. And despite rain and somewhat cooler-than-balmy temperatures, Virginia Beach's visitors from the north played their rounds of golf.

Ladies low-scorer for the day was Mrs. Anne Babb, wife of Dr. J.W. Babb of London, Ontario, one of the two men tieing for the men's low score.

Mrs. Babb won four free days' vacation time at the Aeolus Motel. The other low scorer with Dr. Babb, Fred Heintzman of Toronto, Ontario, was awarded four days at the Washington Club Inn. Both prize vacations must be taken before May 24, 1969.

Dr. Babb decided to forego his prize vacation at the Washington Club in favor of spending four days with his wife at the Aeolus.

Beach Netters Win

Tuesday tennis matches saw two wins and one loss, racked up for Virginia Beach high school netters, with Bayside taking Kellam, 8-0; Princess Anne over Norview, 7-2 and First Colonial losing to Granby, 9-0.

Tomorrow's games put Norview at Bayside, Cox at Princess Anne and Kellam at First Colonial.

Chesapeake Bay Restricted Zone Made Smaller

Col. C.E. Adams, District Engineer, Army Corps of Engineers, has announced the reduction in size of a temporary prohibited zone in Chesapeake Bay.

As of Dec. 7, 1967, the restricted zone has extended 1,000 feet on either side of the center line of the bay bridge between South Island (the tunnel island nearest the Virginia Beach shore) and the Virginia Beach shore itself.

Effective as of April 16, the restricted zone has been reduced in size to that area of Chesapeake Bay extending 200 feet on each side of the center line of the bridge (trestle A) and between points approximately 150 years and 1,800 yards, respectively, south of South Island. These two points, are conspicuously marked with large red flags.

No vessel of any description, except those of the United States government and the contractor engaged in the repair work, shall enter this prohibited area during the hours between sunrise and sunset.

This prohibition will remain effective until sunset, May 15, 1968, after which the restrictions are cancelled.

Track Meet Is Saturday

First Colonial's Les Whitehorne will be one of the major threats to the 100 yard dash 10.0 record, (set in 1955 by Wilson's Robert Sher) at this Saturday's Eastern Invitational Relays at Foreman Field.

Whitehorne ran the 100 in 9.9 for the qualifying trials at last weekends 44th Annual Tidewater Invitational High School Track Meet at William and Mary, the same qualifying time as Wilson's Varon Rollins.

Rollins went on to take the event, with a closely contested time of 10.1 to Whitehorne's 10.2.

Later in the day, Whitehorne pushed Rollins out in the 220 with a winning time of 22.3.

Virginia Beach track men in Saturday's relays will be, Brad McCanna Mike Vaughn, and Mike Gleason, First Colonial; Ray Emerson, Bayside: Shot. Bob German, Princess Anne; Steve Williams and Rick Diess, First Colonial: High Jump. Ronnie Haxter, Princess Anne; Mike Ruggles, Phil Green, and Ricky Abbott, First Colonial; Bob Carson, Kellam: Pole Vault. Les Whitehorne and Tommy Martin, First Colonial: 100. Tom Bingley, First Colonial; Bob Germau, Princess Anne; Randy Friel, Bayside: High Hurdles. Dennis Castello, Kellam; Chris Beebe, First Colonial; Pete Levitt, Bayside: Two-Mile.

Capt. Caton accepts the commissioning order by Secretary of the Navy Paul Ignatius for Princess Anne's newly-formed NJROTC program from R. Adm. Hogle, Commandant, Fifth Naval District.

P.A. Navy ROTC Is Formally Activated

The first operational Naval Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps unit (NJROTC) in Tidewater high schools was formally activated in ceremonies at Princess Anne High School on Tues., April 23.

The new unit of 100 students passed in review before R. Adm. Reynold D. Hogle, Commandant, Fifth Naval District, and Virginia Beach Mayor Frank A. Dusch. Adm. Hogle presented the Secretary of the Navy Activitation Schroll to School Supt. E.E. Brickell.

Top Virginia Beach school officals were present along with the entire student body of Princess Anne High School and parents of NJROTC members.

The NJROTC unit is the first one in local high schools in a new Navy program which extends the reserve officer training program to the high schools. The program will emphasize naval application of mathematics and science and be patterned after the college NROTC. It will prepare students to enter the Naval Academy or participate in the college program with advanced standing.

The first group of 100 participants from Princess Anne High School is expected to expand to more than 300 by next school year and be included in other Virginia Beach schools. Capt. Clifford E. Caton, USN (Ret) is Director of the NJROTC Program in Virginia Beach.

Veterans of the Cold War and Viet-Nam are eligible for GI aid.

Moratorium Declared For Library Fines

During the week of May 5-11, the public libraries in Chesapeake, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach are accepting overdue library books, free of charge. It is hoped that bookshelves and cupboards will be thoroughly checked for long-forgotten library books. Missing volumes, many of them now out-of-print, are needed to complete collections. In fact, libraries are always happy to receive gift books which are in good condition, because often this is the only method they have of acquiring out-of-print classics.

This fine-free campaign will be the first in which the Norfolk Public Library system has participated since its establishment in 1870. The other libraries have various times.

Just this one week, then library patrons may select a convenient branch for returning overdue books at no cost to the borrower. Many libraries have book-drop containers for the benefit of patrons who are in a hurry. If borrowers wish to put their names in each book pocket, it will serve as a double-check in clearing their record; however, this is not absolutely necessary.

Residents, who have changed from one city to another in the area surrounding Norfolk, may take advantage of fine-free week, by depositing books in the branch closest to their present home. Non-owned books will be exchanged by the cooperating libraries.

It will be interesting to note which of the libraries will receive the longest missing book. In St. Louis, Mo., for example, one fine-free day produced 4,500 books, one being 44 years late! Some books, came from distant states.

With the large Navy personnel in and around Norfolk, it is possible that many of our library books might be retrieved from all over the world.

Several months ago when the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN contacted the Virginia Beach libraries with an offer to promote such an undertaking in the newspaper, we were told that the number of overdue books did not warrent this, and that other such attempts had produced few books.

Scouts Plan Camporee

An estimated 1,000 Boy Scouts are expected to gather at Camp Pendleton tomorrow for the opening of the annual Spring Camporee of the Princess Anne-Virginia Beach District Boy Scouts.

This year's Camporee, which will continue through Sunday, is centered around the theme of "Re-Up for Scouting." Various awards will be given troop patrols in various competitions, as well as judging of campsites.

Veterans with less than one year of college can get work-study positions.

Taken under Advisement

Circuit Court Judge Paul W. Ackiss has taken under advisement a motion to set aside a verdict awarding $50,000 to Virginia Beach Traffic Patrolman Ernest E. Marrow. The jury awarded Marrow, 26, the sum, from the estate of Edward R. Scott, as compensation for leg injuries received last March when his patrol car was involved in a collision on Great Neck Road. The accident claimed the life of Scott, who formerly served as fiscal director of the Virginia State Ports Authority.

Bid Below Estimate

Haycox Construction Company of Virginia Beach has submitted the low bid for construction of a new elementary school in the Windsor Woods section of the city. The bid of $748,748 was below four competing bids submitted for the school, which was estimated to cost $800,000. This is the third new school scheduled to be in operation by next September, with a total of 14 such projects to be financed over the next two years in the recently approved city bond issue totalling $14.5 million.

Undergoes Observation

A 25-year-old Raintree Road resident has been ordered to undergo observation at Central State Hospital in connection with the investigation of the trafficing of drugs through Virginia Beach. The observation of Parrick ivan Maynard was ordered when he appeared in court on charges of dispensing drugs to juveniles. The charges arose out of complaints from three juveniles who reportedly told police a man attempted to sell them a capsule containing an unidentified drug at the Plaza Bowling Alley earlier this month.

Charged with Possession

Court appearance is scheduled next Wednesday for John Ace White charged with possession of narcotics. Police officials said 23-year-old White, attached to the Norfolk Naval Air Station, was arrested during investigation of an alleged "pot party" on the beach at the end of Kendall Street. According to investigators cigarettes, a pipe and material believed to be marijuana was confiscated at the scene. Three other men were also taken into custody during the investigation, with two of them charged with disorderly conduct, and the third charged with being drunk in public.

Woman Bound Over

A 47-year-old Virginia Beach woman has been bound over to a Circuit Court grand jury on attempted murder charges. Police officials quoted C.M. (Whitey) Howard with saying he awoke, in the bedroom of the couple's Windy Road home, to find his wife Myrtle standing over him with a gun. During a struggle between the couple a number of shots reportedly were fired, however neither Howard nor his wife were injured.

Bay Bridge Tunnel To Pare Down Costs

Members of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel Commission have announced plans to lower cost of operation of the bay crossing to offset a decrease in toll revenues.

Present projections indicate revenues for the fiscal year ending June 30 will total some $300,000 less than the 1967-68 fiscal year, while operating expenses will be increased by some $90,000.

Among the proposed steps to be taken to absorb some of the loss from toll revenues are plans to discontinue use of the "travel bonus plan", and to allocate less funds for the Commission's advertising programs during the coming fiscal year.

One of factors which played a large role in the decrease in toll revenues was a necessary curtailment of traffic over the span when it was damaged last December when the barge Mohawk collided with the span's southern trestle. Indications are repairs should be completed about May 20. This should permit normal traffic flow over the crossing by the Memorial Day Weekend.

While statistics present a bleak financial picture in the operation of the 18.2 mile crossing, there is a bright side to this picture. Traffic over the span last month showed an increase over totals for the same period of last year. Traffic was also up 24% last week over the same period of last year, and indications are that the month of April will show an increase of at least 20% above the totals for April of last year.

Combined VBEA Meets

The Virginia Beach Education Association held its first professional "teacher council" meetings yesterday afternoon at Princess Anne High School.

The newly combined educational association and Classroom Teachers Association first held an assembly in the auditorium for all teachers before splitting into discussion or council groups. Councils were held on the subjects of discipline, grouping, remedial education, curriculum translation, and special education. The PTA council also held a meeting.

Mrs. Frances Sachon, president of the association, said she hopes several councils can be held during the school year in the future.

"Since the VBEA combined with the Classroom Teachers there is less duplication of effort," she said. "And now each group can direct efforts more strongly in one given direction."

She pointed out that the CTA division will deal more with curriculum problems, while the VBEA division will deal more with the business end of the profession.

On May 15 at 4 p.m. the general meeting of the VBEA will be held at Princess Anne High School. At that time new officers of the association will also be installed for the coming year.

The new president will be George Anderson, of Kellam High School; the new president-elect will be Norman Fields of First Colonial High School; the new recording secretary will be Miss Pat Carson of King's Grant Elementary School; and the new treasurer will be Pete Peterson, also of Kellam High School.

The guest speaker for the occasion will be Virginia Beach's new superintendent of schools, E. E. Brickell.

First prize of $5, second prize of $3 and third prize of $2 will be the incentives for these young people to help their school carnival.

Mrs. Inez Wilson, art coordinator for Thalia and several other schools in the Virginia Beach City School System, will serve as chairman of three judges of the contest. The judging will take place May 6, and prizes will be awarded at the May 9 P.T.A. meeting.

Drinking Marathon Theatre Comedy Hit

Wedgewood Theatre, now in its fifth production year, opened its doors in Toano with a happy, farcical comedy called "Drink to Me Only! It is so much fun, that they are doing it again through May11.

This highly improbable play is good clean comedy for the entire family, that is if one doesn't mind seeing one of the characters consume the contents of two liquor bottles through the course of action.

It is the story of a young lawyer with a tremendous alcoholic capacity who sets out to prove himself to himself and to his girlfriend. As part of the defense of his oft-married client he attempts to prove that a person with two bottles under his belt in 12 hours is still able to think straight. His client claims as much after shooting his wife in the derriere. From that point on the action is as zany as any audience can take in one evening.

Paul Iddings, who has done the role of the lawyer twice before, is at his best as the drinker, staggerer and deep thinker. He works extremely hard in this role, and it pays off with magnificence.

Larger than life characterizations are the keynote of this production, and Ty Stephens, as the obviously guilty client, portrays the oily character beautifully. His seventh wife, not terribly bright, is ably played by Claudine Iddings. The wife was once an "artist" in the theatre, and the way Mrs. Iddings plays it, there is no doubt as to what kind. Jeffryn Stephens does a very nice job as the young lawyers down-to-earth girlfriend. Hers is the only stabilizing influence in the show.

Outstanding performances are turned in by Roby Brown, Ron Reid and Leroy McFarland, the old-line lawyers and rich partners in the firm. Their facial expressions and beautiful timing in the pratfall scenes are a credit to the fine direction of Clauding Iddings. Special accolades must go to Ron Reid for his hilarious performance.

Sherri Reid, as the friendly belly-dancer, overdoes it slightly, but in this one, it really doesn't hurt. The same hold true for Bob Hutchinson as the doctor who gives expert testimony. He could have toned his testimony down a bit.

Carolee Slick is pleasing as the expectant mother who is brought in to be the impartial judge of the lawyer's actually consuming the contents of two bottles. Mike Cline, Billie Jene lager, Gary Ball and Robert Anderson round out this very funny production in minor roles.

This show is an experience to the audience, and if one doesn't come away as tired as the actors from the fast pace, there is something wrong. HJL

Rudee Inlet to Open To Boats on May 15

The city-owned temporary marina at Rudee Inlet will be open to boat traffic by May 15. The Rudee Inlet project director L. Dean Curtis has been given the word to go ahead and lease space to both charter, head and sightseeing boats beginning on that date.

City Council Monday set the fees for charter boats at $250 and at $350 for head and sightseeing boats in the 13-slip marina now under construction. All contracts that are now signed, however will expire on Dec. 31, 1968, as the plans for the permanent marina there move ahead, pending state and federal fund approval.

Council did not wish to get into the matter of dredging, although the matter was discussed in executive session Monday. A resolution calling on Council to expand dredging operations in the channel so that the new area would be ready in time was not brought to open Council. The resolution was passes last week at a meeting of the Rudee Inlet Authority.

There has been some difficulty experienced by the dredge operation of the Erosion Commission, which brought up the possibility of bringing the city dredge into operation on the project also. But this was discounted when it was found that the moving of the city dredge to that area would not be feasible.

Privately a spokesman for the City told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that one of the reasons that Council took no action was that things were not as bad in Rudee Inlet as the general public had been led to believe by "over-zealous" reporting in stories that had appeared in newspapers published in Norfolk.

The spokesman added that Council suggested to Frank Kellam, Rudee Inlet Authority chairman, Curtis, the Erosion Commission and others that they try to work out a solution among themselves.

To test the channel a 42-foot boat was taken into the inlet last weekend, and had no difficulty whatsoever, according to the spokesman. He added that he did not wish to minimize the problems surrounding the completion of the dredging, but that the problems "could be worked out in plenty of time."

Atkinson Expected In Court

Lawyer Samuel Goldblatt tells the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN he is "reasonably certain" Edgar P. Atkinson will be found before next Friday.

Municipal Court Judge P.B. White gave Goldblatt two weeks to locate 26-year-old Atkinson of Chesapeake after he failed to appear in court on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Virginia Beach police have also named Atkinson as a suspect in the alleged attempted rape of a housewife on March 27 at her home on Plaza Trail.

According to Goldblatt the search for Atkinson covers territory from Maryland to Florida, and is being conducted with the aid of Atkinson's wife and family. In the event Atkinson is not located before the deadline of next Friday his $5,000 bond would be forfeited, for which money reportedly was furnished by his parents through the use of their home.

Broom Sale By Lions Helps Blind

Tuesday through Friday, April 30-May 3, are the dates for the 17th annual district 24-D Lions Project Sale, usually known as the Lions' Broom Sale.

On those days, Lions Clubbers will go from door to door selling brooms, door mats, dry mops and other items. Almost all of which have been made by blind workers in workshops for the blind at Richmond and Charlottesville.

The sale, which will be carried on between the hours of 5:30 and 9 p.m. Each evening, will serve two immediate purposes; to help blind workers in the Virginia shops make a living and to enable the Lions Clubs to continue their work in sight conservation.

Budget

Hatchett said he had hoped the study would be ready before the budget had to be passed, but since it was not, suggested the amendment. He added that some employees may be found to be at the top of their salary scale, and others may get more, depending on the study, but that there was enough money in the budget to handle any changes recommended.

Council also took quick action on an ordinance giving the Director of Public Safety additional powers in the event of riot or civil disturbance in the city.

The city has no actual director of public safety as such, but Hatchett doubles in that job. In the event of his absence the police chief will have the same powers.

The ordinance sets up machinery for the establishment of a curfew and procedures to be followed in the event of such a disturbance.

Penalties for misdemeanors specified were also included. The ordinance is similar to one passed recently by the city of Norfolk and other cities throughout the country.

City Manager Hatchett smiles broadly as his last budget received final approval by Council.

May Is Fund Time

The month of May has been designated for the "Fund Raising Drive" conducted annually to obtain financial support for the various volunteer fire departments of the city of Virginia Beach. This annual drive is the primary "support" of the departments in order that they may continue operation. In next week's issue of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN the "fund drive" will be discussed in detail.

Council

City Attorney Harry Marshall briefly pointed out that Council had decided to take no further action on the matter of city license decals for active duty, non-resident military personnel. Under law now, those who qualify may purchase a $1 tag to avoid inconvenience if stopped by a police officer. The decal, however, is not mandatory. This practice has been criticised by many, and the non-action by Council came as somewhat of a surprise.

Council also appropriated $13,772 to purchase three new trucks for the Dept. of Public Works, for a second time. Three trucks of the wrong type were erroneously ordered when a breakdown in communications between Charles Kiley, department director, and Purchasing Agent Caroll Clough occurred. Wrong specifications were used to order the new trucks.

A spokesman for Council said later that the wrong trucks can be disposed of without losing any money, but added that it should not have happened in the first place.

In zoning matters Council denied an application which originated in Council itself to eliminate re-subdivision of lots in the Linkhorn Park area. The Planning Commission recommendation, which was adopted, noted that present zoning requiring specific lot sizes shall be adhered to and further subdivisions of lots will be permitted only where all lot size requirements are met.

Another Council application for an ordinance to require procedures to be set up for all persons seeking use permits of gas stations and garages and the like was again deferred for 90 days, until a thorough study by consultants can be completed.

While approving an application for a use permit for a sewage pumping station on Virginia Beach Boulevard near Rosemont Rd., Councilman Dewey Simmons asked that City Manager W. Russell Hatchett present to Council at the next meeting the exact status of water and sewer lines in the city, who owns them and what the future holds for them.

"I don't believe there is a man on this Council that thoroughly understands this matter," said Simmons. Hatchett said he would comply.

Attorney Joe Canada appeared before Council seeking a deferral and study of property on Laskin Road near the entrance to Birdneck Point where rezoning for commercial use is concerned. Council listened but took no action on the request.

George W. Cobb was retained by Council to submit preliminary plans for an 18-hole championship golf course on recently acquired property on Camp Pendleton. Council also appropriated funds for lightning arrestors in the communications building and for the relocation of a train signal on Ocean Boulevard that is knocked down by traffic with regularity.

Acceptance of the bid of Conrad Bros. in the amount of $84,894 for construction of the new communications building was accepted. The specifications meet Civil Defense requirements, and half of the cost will be paid by the federal government. The rest is already allocated in bond issue money.

Council also appropriated funds to remodel the old Municipal Court into a courtroom for the third Circuit Court. An application for operation of ice-cream vending machines on the boardwalk by the blind was denied with the comment that the city has turned down thousands of similar applications over the years in efforts to keep the boardwalk non-commercial.

Back Bay Is Sportsmen's Paradise

Every year sportsmen along the Eastern Seaboard flock to the Back Bay area of Virginia Beach to enjoy fishing, hunting or camping in a veritable "sportsmen's paradise."

Each Winter hunters move into Back Bay in quest of Waterfowl which abound in wide varieties. Ample numbers of mallards and ducks are sought from blinds during each duck hunting season which is set by the federal government and normally runs from November to January. The most prevalent types of duck available each year include Widgeon, Pintail, Black ducks, Ring-Necked, sometimes referred to as Blue-Bill, Red-Head, and Canvas-Backs. However hunters have reported the Red-Head and Canvas-Back varieties becoming "scarce" in recent years.

Other waterfowl which attract many hunters is an abundance of geese native to the region. A large number of Snow Geese and Canadian Geese migrate into the region every year. While Canadian Geese can be taken by hunters, laws prohibit the killing of Snow Geese.

The fishing season never closes in waters of Back Bay, and the most particular angler will find the sport to his liking. Large-Mouth Bass, Crappie, and Brim offer the greatest attractions to fishermen. While Crappie appeared to be dwindling in number for some time, they now appear to be on the increase as a result of continual rise of the salination content of the water. The angler who knows his way around Back Bay will also find several locations which yield "catches" of occassional Pike, Catfish, and White Perch.

Although sportsmen have been returning to the Back Bay area year after year, the region has remained very much in its natural state with many sections appearing untouched by man. Many years ago the Bay was connected to the Atlantic Ocean by an inlet, however an isthmus of sand "build-up" in time created what has commonly become known as "the false capes". Today the capes as well as several of the numerous islands of Back Bay are dotted with private summer homes and hunting lodges. Two such islands are Cedar Island and Little Cedar Island which are privately owned.

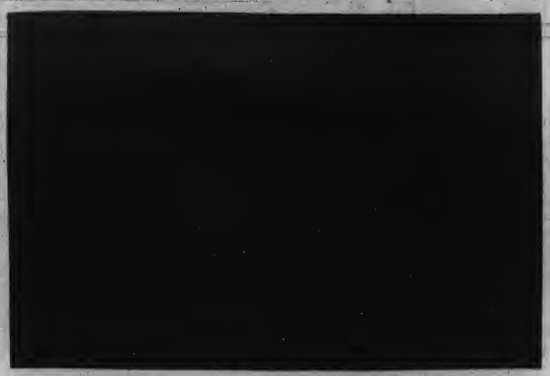

Virginia's Game & Inland Fisheries Commission owns several islands and other land areas in the Back Bay region and has created game refuges of these regions to protect wildlife. Hunting is permitted through use of approved permits from the Game Commission in two of these protected areas known as the Trojan and Pocahontas waterfowl management areas. The two largest game refuges, the Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge, and Mackay Island National Wildlife Refuge, are owned by the federal government.

Mackay Island contains a large region of marshland, which is separated by a narrow causeway which connects the Virginia Beach mainland with Knotts Island, which is divided by the Virginia-North Carolina border. This border line at times creates problems for sportsmen in violating game laws which differ under the regulations set up by each state. Many sportsmen who frequent Back Bay have raised the question of the Virginia and North Carolina legislatures creating laws standardizing fishing and hunting regulation.

Knotts Island is another region which has "a story to tell", and the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN will cover this story in a future edition.

Cedar Island, surrounded by waters of Back Bay with a glimpse of the false capes in the background, is a popular location for hunting lodges, and blinds for duck hunters.

This flock of Canadian geese soaring over waters of Back Bay was photographed from the seaplane maintained by officers at the Back Bay Game Warden Station.

Door Bell May Be For Census

There are 35 extremely nosy folks loose in the city of Virginia Beach, but the information they seek could be beneficial to all citizens.

The nosy 35 are school census takers who will be visiting every home in the city between now and June 1, according to J. J. Owens, administrative assistant of Virginia Beach public schools.

In addition to questions about school-age children, they will also be asking a number of personal questions, which will, of course, remain confidential. The census was expanded, at the request of City Council, to get an accurate count of the number of people living in Virginia Beach. The school census is required by law at regular intervals.

The last general census was in 1960, before the consolidation of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County and before the rapid growth of the combined city. There has been no complete census since that time. Estimates are made at the University of Virginia yearly, and on the basis of those figures state school aid and the amount returned to localities from sales taxes are paid.

City officials feel that the University figures may be as much as $15 to $30 thousand too low. They also hope that the state will use the figures gained from the current census for the next appropriations to Virginia Beach.

The City Planning Commission has also compiled a number of questions regarding cost and condition of homes, salary, where families came from in moving to Virginia Beach and the like.

No one is absolutely required to answer all questions, but Ownes said he hopes everyone will offer as much help as possible so that an accurate picture can be achieved.

City officials will examine the compiled figures this summer, and much of the future course of the city will depend upon the survey.

Census takers attended a briefing Tuesday afternoon, then hit the streets yesterday, prepared to smile a lot and ask a lot of questions.

Local Marine Receives Medal

More than two years of exceptionally meritorious service with the Defense Intelligence Agency earned Marine Lt. Col. Eugene P. Millette, of Cardinal Road, the Joint Service Commendation Medal presented at Fleet Marine Force Atlantic (FMFLant) Headquarters here.

The formal presentation ceremonies were held in the office of Lt. Gen. R. G. Weede, Commanding General, FMFLant.

Lt. Col. Millette, now assigned to FMFLant Headquarters as Logistics Operations Officer, distinguished himself with his outstanding professional competence and sound knowledge while with the Defense Intelligence Agency in Washington, D. C. from June 1965 to August 1967.

Law Day Features Mock Trial

Special ceremonies have been planned for next Wednesday in Virginia Beach as the city joins in the national celebration of "Law Day USA".

May 1 has been designated by President Johnson and Congress for the American people to reaffirm their loyalty to the United States and to rededicate themselves to "the ideals of equality and justice under law". Mayor Frank A. Disch, by official proclamation, has called upon Virginia Beach residents, organizations, churches and schools "to recognize this special day through appropriate programs and ceremonies".

Members of the Virginia Beach Bar Association are sponsoring the local celebration and have appointed Lawyer Winston G. Snider as chairman of the program which will be carried out in regional organizations.

Snider told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that local ministers have been requested to deliver at least one sermon based on the national Law Day theme of "Only Lawful Society Can Build a Better Society".

The significance of Law Day will be carried to the young people of the city in the staging of a mock trial at First Colonial High School. The "trial" will center around a man facing mock murder charges in the hypothetical fatal shooting of a bystander during an argument between the accused and a second man.

Members of the Virginia Beach Bar Association will serve as principals during the trial with former Commonwealth Attorney Robert L. Simpson portraying the judge, former Asst. Commonwealth Attorney Gerald Rubinger as the prosecutor, and Winston Snider as defense counsel. Constantine (Gus) Spanouis will serve as moderator during the enactment of the trial and will from time to time interrupt the proceedings to explain points of law and trial procedures to the audience.

In discussing plans of future Law Day programs in Virginia Beach, Snider told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN it is hoped similar programs will be staged next year in the Virginia Beach Civic Center and enable members of the senior classes of all Virginia Beach high schools to attend the program.

Schools Get New Program

A unique driver education program should be implemented next year in the Virginia Beach public schools. The program will consist of four phases; classroom instruction, driving simulators, instruction in auto's on specially constructed driving ranges, and finally on street instruction.

The "uniqueness" of the program is the use of "driving simulators" prior to a student getting behind the wheel of an auto. Indications are the program will be the first of it's kind in this region.

A grant of $62,389 from the U.S. Dept. of Transportation for the first years operation of the program has been announced by Sen. William B. Spong, Jr. W. Elmer Barbour, Virginia Beach Public School Driver Education Coordinator, indicates the city will be eligible to reapply for federal funds to support the program on a year to year basis.

Barbour indicates the program will be designed to more students than the current two phase program, classroom and on street driving instruction, and that some 2,600 students could possibly be taking part in the first year of instruction in the new program.

Servicemen have 120 days after discharge to convert their Servicemen's Group Life Insurance through any of the participating private companies.

Program to Aid Breathing Ills

A three-day emphysema-bronchitis orientation program will be sponsored by the Christmas Seal Agency May 6,8 and 9, at the Tidewater Rehabilitation Institute.

Anyone from Virginia Beach with breathing problems related to emphysema and/or. chronic bronchitis is invited to visit the Institute at 855 W. Brambleton, Norfolk, 1-3 p.m., May 6; 1-2 p.m., May 8 and 3-4 p.m., May 9. Referral by a physician is not required and there is no charge.

The program is planned to be repeated the first week of each month. For further information contact the Southeastern Virginia Tuberculosis Health Association, 855-3059.

The City Decal Problem-Again

Ignoring a recurring problem will never make it go away, but City Council has chosen to maintain the status quo, where license decals for non-resident, active duty military personnel are concerned.

That is to say, after investigating the matter, Council has elected to allow those who fall into this category and can prove it the choice of buying a one dollar tag or not. The tag is merely a convenience to keep them from being stopped by policemen carefully checking for the city decal after the deadline. If they do not have the dollar decal they are leaving themselves open to proving their statue, perhaps in court.

Now that May has almost rolled around and the close check by police has ended, the problem goes away for another year, but only for another year.

Council should decide this mess once and for all. It should either make all who fit this category buy the dollar tag or issue something similar free of charge upon proof of status and without regard to problems of setting the operation up by the City. Active duty base stickers could possibly serve the same purpose, as an alternative.

Regardless of the cost of the free tags or the cost of maintaining records, this would seem to be the best method, and should be set as policy by the beginning of 1969 to avoid this all over again. We have a large military population here whose interests must be served correctly, and it is up to Council to decide just how to do that. Ignoring the problem is definitely not the answer.

More Trial Balloons

Norfolk Mayor Roy Martin has sent up more trial balloons that have met with windy resistance. About a year ago his trial balloon which sought the consolidation of Norfolk and Virginia Beach was quickly deflated.

Now he suggests that the two cities should be in a single Congressional District, instead of Norfolk and Portsmouth in the Second and Virginia Beach in the First along with Peninsula cities.

The interests of Norfolk and Virginia Beach, although the closest of neighbors, are not at all alike. Virginia Beach continues to grow and expand, while Norfolk cannot grow and expand. Within a very few years Virginia Beach will usurp Norfolk's place as Virginia's most populous city, yet still have great growing room.

Whether the two cities should be thrown together in the same District will be up to the wisdom of the Virginia General Assembly when it meets for redistricting after the 1970 census. It is far too soon to speculate on the outcome or to promote any plans.

Martin has also indicated that Norfolk will go ahead unilaterally with a site for a new stadium, regardless of what the other interested cities do, and that recently-announced site near the airport would really only serve Norfolk best.

It seems that Martin is losing sight of the revenue that will come into a new stadium from his neighboring cities. Virginia Beach is deeply interested in the building of a new stadium very soon, but one that suits everyone, not just Norfolk. And the city officials of Virginia Beach are interested in cooperating with all area cities.

Hopefully this trial balloon of Martin's will meet the same fate as others.

Toward Traffic Safety

The nation's first habitual offender law dealing with repeat traffic violators was signed recently by Virginia's Governor, Mills E. Godwin, Jr. Viewed as a landmark law in traffic safety, the new measure is designed to deter effectively the often fatal driving habits of long-time violators.

Under terms of the new law, a person convicted of being an habitual offender will be deprived of his driving license for life, and a mandatory jail term of from one to five years will be imposed if he then continues to drive after revocation. Mitigating circumstances, however, will be taken into consideration, and there is some relief under the law, but it is generally intentionally strict.

To be convicted as an habitual offender, a person must be found guilty and convicted of three serious offenses in ten years or 12 lesser offenses for which a court is now authorized to require suspension for 30 days.

Serious offenses include manslaughter, drunk driving, hit and run, driving on a revoked permit and the like, while lesser offenses include reckless driving and the second speeding conviction in a year.

As a highway safety measure, the law is a new concept being watched with interest in other states, yet it fills a need traffic officials feel is important. Studies show that habitual offenders are more often involved in fatal accidents. And the need for such a law in Virginia is pointed up by the ten percent increase in traffic fatalities in the state last year, while the rest of the nation showed at least a slight decline.

Lawmakers in Virginia have taken an important first step in the highway safety dilemma.

Correction

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:

In your issue of April 18, 1968, you carried a story concerning the recent visit to this city of Mr. William C. Battle. The news story erroneously indicated that Mr. Battle would not support the Democratic Party's nominee in this year's presidential elections. An editorial on this same subject, and in the same issue, also conveyed the same wrong impression.

I attended the luncheon at which Mr. Battle spoke. He very positively stated that, although he was not involved in the pre-convention campaigning of any of the candidates, he would support the nominee chosen by the Democratic Party as its presidential candidate in this year's elections.

Why Pay Taxes?

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

With the present day conditions in our cities where firebombing and looting are daily occurances and police and civil authorities make little or no effort to arrest looters and arsonists, I think the law abiding citizen should consider whether its worth paying taxes for protection which no longer exist.

Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago is the only one of the many politicans who had had the courage and conviction to instruct the Chicago police to shoot arsonists and arrest looters. The other local and national political figures have almost praised the law breakers finding all sorts of reasons and excuses for their conduct.

Law and order may be the main issue of the elections of 1968, not only in the presidential election but also in the Congressional elections, which will determine the balance of political power for at least two years. Law abiding citizens should vote for candidates who stand for law and order and have the courage and conviction to demand that it be enforced regardless of the liberal bleeding hearts in the United States who make allowances for the lawbreakers in order to get their votes by saying they have rights.

The law abiding citizen will have to pay higher insurance premiums thanks to the arsonist and looter. Merchants will go in other lines of work causing higher taxes and the law abiding citizen will live in constant fear unless law and order is enforced, so why should taxes be paid for protection that is not received in these days of arsonists, looters, bleeding heart politicans and riot commission reports.

Once I Had a Secret Room

"Guess where I've been?" he asked her, with a triumphant look on his face.

"I don't have the slightest idea," she said. "But now that you mention it, I haven't seen you in about a half hour. Where have you been?"

"I won't tell you," he said, still teasing her. "Besides, you'd just get angry about it."

"Well, you couldn't have gone far. I didn't hear you leave or come in," she said. "And the car is still in the garage."

"Ok, I'll tell you. I've been where no one would ever find me," he said, still enjoying the fun. "You would never think to look for me there, so I hate to tell you and give up a good hiding place when you want me to mow the grass."

"All right, I give up, and you've made me curious now," she said. "Where have you been? You were so quiet."

"I've been in that secret part of the house where I'm not really allowed," he said quickly. "But please don't hit me. I was just curious about what was in there and I couldn't stand it any longer, so I took off my shoes and socks and walked in there."

"What?," she exclaimed, horrified. "You went into the living room? Whatever possessed you?"

"I just lost my head, I guess. But I couldn't help myself. I wanted to walk on that expensive carpet on the floor and feel it between my toes. And I wanted to look at that beautiful expensive furniture in there," he said with a tear in his eye. "But I promise you I didn't sit on it. I sat carefully on the floor."

"I wondered what that fuzz was on your pants," she said dryly.

"Fuzz was," he said. "That's pretty good."

"Don't try to change the subject," she said. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself. A grown man, sneaking into the living room when you know we never use it."

"I didn't understand it really," he apologized. "It had been so long since I was in there I had forgotten what it looked like. Besides I wanted to be near my money."

"I hope you smoothed out any footprints you made in that plush carpet," she admonished him.

"I did, of course," he said. "I haven't completely taken leave of my senses. I smoothed out everything including the seat-print before I backed out reverently."

"Well, I hope that satisfied you for awhile and you won't let it happen again," she added. "Besides we're going to use that room the first week in October when my mother comes."

"NO!" he exclaimed.

"Well, of course," she said. "After all, it's silly to have a beautiful room like that and never use it."

"Yeah," he said rather acidly. "You know I don't think the children have ever been in there. Wouldn't it be nice to take them on a guided tour once a year so they'll know where I put my money."

"Don't be facetious," she said.

"Sorry, I lost my head again," he added quickly. "Say, I've got a grand idea. Why don't we have dinner in the dining room tonight. I've almost forgotten about that room too."

She screamed and staggered backward slightly.

"Forget I asked," he said.

Guest Editorial

Unprecedented Session

The 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly which ended in March has come under close scrutiny from numerous sources. Most critiques of the session are almost entirely favorable. Most have praised the lawmakers for the unprecedented progress. The following is an editorial that appeared in VIRGINIA TOWN AND CITY, the official publication of the Virginia Municipal League and affiliated organizations recently.

The 1968 Virginia General Assembly, which has just come to a close, was unprecedented in many ways.

In the first place, approximately 2000 bills and resolutions were introduced--the greatest number ever. At times it seemed almost impossible that the members of the two branches could process this great volume of proposed legislation. Obviously, time did not permit detailed analysis of every bill and resolution by every member of the House and Senate. Nevertheless, legislative proposals were processed and the session has gone down in history. This was the hardest working session which the writer has witnessed in over 30 years in contact with the General Assembly.

The House and Senate were made up, for the most part, of sober, intelligent and industrious members. The tone, as a whole, was constructive and there seemed to be a good comprehension of state and local problems of government, even though adequate remedies were certainly not forthcoming in every instance. This was a younger General Assembly than in most sessions and most of the members exhibited a progressive attitude designed to move Virginia forward.

Many good bills were passed and a large number of bills harmful in some respect to local government were defeated or, in some instances, amended so as to be more acceptable. A detailed report on the outcome of the entire session will be submitted in a later issue of Virginia Town & City.

Many bills which should be helpful to the cities, towns and urban counties were passed and some additional financial assistance was voted. However, while attention was directed by the General Assembly to the financial problems of the localities and several bills to give financial aid to the localities were accorded good public hearings, no really major financial assistance was voted. Greatly increased appropriations for various programs were made in the State Budget but most of these have to be matched by appropriations from local revenue sources. The feeling seemed to be that major assistance is needed but will have to be delayed at least another session.

This continues to leave Washington as the remaining best hope for significant aid to the localities--so don't burn your bridges to Washington, yet!

More on the Assembly comes from Hiram M. Smith, Jr., editor of VIRGINIA TRAFFIC SAFETY NEWS, published monthly by the Governor's Highway Safety Committee. This editorial appeared in the April 1968 edition.

Despite recommendation by the Virginia Traffic Safety Study Committee, the 1968 General Assembly did not lower the presumptive level for driving while intoxicated from .15 to .1. At least eight other states now have the lower presumption, with Utah setting the level at .08. Incidentally, Great Britain, Switzerland and Austria also use .08. Poland, Norway and Sweden use .05. The German Democratic Republic, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia use .03.

To reach .15, a 160-lb. person must have the equivalent of seven ounces of 100-proof whisky in his system at the time of testing. If, say, there was a 2-hour time lapse between the time he began drinking and the time he was tested, his level would have dropped about .03 percent and he would be well beneath .15.

Virginia does have a law defining "impaired driving" as operating with a concentration as high as .1 but below .15, which calls for a lesser penalty than for operating with a concentration as high as .15. Virginia law further directs that when the concentration is in excess of .05 but lower than .15, no presumption is raised and the test result is to be considered along with other evidence.

Before "impaired driving" was enacted in 1966, it was very seldom indeed that anyone was convicted of drunk driving if his concentration was a hair below .15. Now, many drivers who are dangerously affected receive some punishment instead of going scot free.

A person with a .15, or even a .1, level simply cannot drive properly. He might appear fairly stable and perform the mechanical motions of driving but faced with an emergency or when performing an unusual motion his deterioration becomes apparent.

A recent and exhaustive survey and study by the Department of Police Administration of Indiana University indicated that a driver with a concentration of .1 is more than seven times as likely to cause a crash than a driver who has not been drinking. When the concentration reaches .15 the risk percentage climbs to 26.

French Cooking Comes to Beach

Mrs. Bartan Connett lost her recipes in a revolution.

Mrs. Connett, who will be starting a series of French cooking lessons at the Civic Center next Tuesday, was in the Dominican Republic with her husband, William Connett, now a foreign service officer at the Staff College, when the revolution broke out there. Her cook, to whom she had entrusted her valued French recipes (Mrs. Connett had translated them into Spanish for her), turned out to be a rebel and took the recipes with her when she joined the revolution.

Mrs. Connett studied cooking at the famous Cordon Bleu school while her husband was serving in Paris. Since then she has taught classes wherever they have been stationed.

Her classes (10 in the series) she said, each consists of the preparation of an entire meal. Afterwards the students get to eat their masterpieces. "That's the moment of truth which they really enjoy," laughed Mrs. Connett.

Mrs. Connett in her kitchen.

This will be the first classes she has taught in Virginia Beach, although she has been teaching at the Norfolk Museum for the past year.

"I have one student who drives over from the Eastern Shore weekly," she said, "and three come from Hampton."

She said a lot of her students are brides or brides-to-be. And classes are not limited to women. "I had one retired Navy captain in a class of 30 women."

Classes will be held each Tuesday from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. [illegible] be limited to 35 stu[illegible] for further information [illegible]-9143.

Spring Means Salads to Many

Although Americans are year-around salad buffs, come spring, the yen for a new and different salad blooms. Inspiration may spring from the first crop of asparagus or any good buy in lettuce, fruits or vegetables. The bright idea could come from a new cook booklet called "The French Have A Word For It-Mayonnaise," a collection of salads as well as other dishes made with real mayonnaise.

The salads range from a really great Asparagus Salad to the all American Green Goddess Salad. In between are many basic salads but new ones too, and a collection of dressings for every type salad.

The full color photographs, new and fascinating, are keyed to recipes contributed by famous New York restaurant chefs. One particularly attractive dish is "Crevettes a l'Indienne" or Shrimps with a Curry Sauce. Although planned as an appetizer it easily could be turned into a main dish shrimp salad.

While asparagus is plentiful, serve it often in a variety of ways.

For a copy of "The French Have A Word For It-Mayonnaise," send your name and address and 25 cents plus a label from a jar of Hellmann's or Best Foods real mayonnaise (or 50 cents without a label) to: Mayonnaise Cookbook, Box 166-F, Brooklyn, New York, 11202.

Then, there's that once a month when a girl could use a good old-fashioned medicine.

Maybe you feel just plain bad then. Or maybe a little lonely and sad, like you could use a pair of arms around you.

Well, we have just the thing for this once a month time. Lydia E. Pinkham Tablets. They're made with gentle, natural ingredients, including one that works to help relax tightened muscles that give you cramps. Plus a little iron that a girl could use at a time like this. And, you don't run any chance of the kind of unpleasant side effects you could get from some of the newer drugs.

With an old-fashioned problem like this, couldn't you take an old-fashioned medicine.

Dinner party coming up? Pocketbook flat? You can stretch a pound and a half of shrimp to serve eight people with a lovely golden SHRIMP AND MACARONI CASSEROLE.

1 8-oz. pkg. elbow macaroni
2 tbls. butter
2 tbls. flour
2 cups milk
1 tbls. curry powder
¾ tsp. salt
1 cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese
1½ lbs. cooked and cleaned shrimp
½ cup buttered crumbs

Cook and drain macaroni. Pour boiling water over it; drain again. Melt butter, stir in flour, then add milk gradually, stirring constantly over moderate heat. When sauce is smooth and thickened, add onion, curry powder, salt. Mix sauce with drained macaroni, then with grated cheese and prepared shrimp. Put the mixture into a 2-qt. buttered casserole, top with buttered crumbs, and bake at 350° for ½ hour.

You'll pay about $4.50 for this thrifty dish, and the cost of electricity is less than 2c. Quite a bargain, electricity.

THE WOMEN

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Enjoying the Khedive Temple Shrine Dance Saturday night at the Dome were Gilbert J. Taylor (He's personal side to the potentate.) Mrs. Meyer H. Legum, Dr. Legum, the potentate, and Mrs. Taylor.

Festival to Revive Old Timers

Mrs. Howard Kahn at her Oriole Drive home.

Like Tiffany lamps, Aubrey Beardsley's art nouveau and calf-length skirts a la Bonnie Parker, a few antiquities have swung full-circle and are now the objects of almost-cult followings.

Charlie Chaplin, W. C. Fields and Laurel and Hardy cannot be excluded from those things now-revered-again.

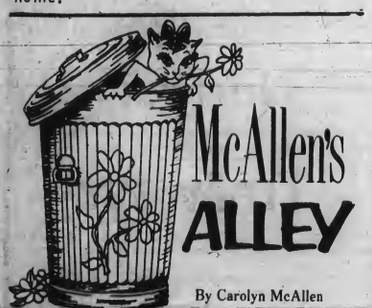

Dot Kahn is chairman of the special events committee for the Virginia Beach unit of the American Cancer Society that will host a showing of classics, including all of the pre-talkie stars mentioned above, May 5 at the Virginia Beach Convention Center.

"The old movies should definitely appeal to at least two groups," said Mrs. Kahn, "those people who can remember the films, and the young people who have never had a chance to see Chaplin or Laurel and Hardy before."

All of the Cancer Society committees must work within very limited budgets, Mrs. Kahn explained.

"But I know," said Mrs. Kahn, "that if the rule applies to me, it applies to every Cancer Society committee chairman in the country--that none of the money donated for research is going to be wasted. As a citizen, I like that. As a committee chairman, it makes it rough."

A $5 donation per couple is being asked for the Classic Film Festival. The doors for the showing will open at 7:30 p.m., and tickets can be purchased at the door as well as at the Dome, Webster's at Virginia Beach and the Virginia Beach Book Store.

This and That, Here and There

The weather was lovely, the people were numerous and the show started on time, but the Virginia Beach Horse Show Saturday and Sunday had one problem--at least as far as my seven-year-old was concerned--His and Hers was Ours of the outdoor variety.

First she said she didn't want to go in. Then after she did she complained there was no handle to flush. We finally wound up driving home.

Sunday we drove through Hampton Roads Bridge Tunnel to Newport News. Halfway through the tunnel the five-year-old wanted to know what would happen if it sprung a leak. The seven-year-old looked down her nose at her younger sister and replied in a superior voice that "they'd call a plumber, of course."

The Shriners had quite a party Saturday night at the Dome. My compliments to City Sgt. and Mrs. John Marr who hardly sat out a dance all evening. Chuck Laskin proved to be quite popular as nearly 1,500 persons crowded the dance floor.

Perhaps the shortest invocation in history was given by Rev. John Jordan at the innkeepers banquet last week. This is a verbatim quote, "Dear Lord, bless George Davis for inviting us here tonight. We were going to have stew. Amen."

If the preview of the Civic Chorus production of "Kiss Me Kate" is any indication of the finished musical, it should prove to be a sell out. Chuck Oliver presented selections by Marie Philips and Scott Kunkel, principals in the production at the banquet. Kunkel, incidentally, was the winner of a recent All Navy Ballad Contest.

AAUW Meeting Opens

The 43rd Annual Convention of the American Association of University Women, Virginia Division, opens today at The Cavalier Hotel and will run through Saturday.

The theme of the convention is "In Pursuit of Understanding." At the opening session Mrs. Joseph B. Sadler of Virginia Beach will welcome delegates. Mrs. Cecil L. Gilliatt, vice president of the South Atlantic Region, will give the keynote address.

At the Friday luncheon the speaker will be Dr. Frederica Tandell of the Office of Education, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, who will speak on "The International Education Act and International Understanding."

Dr. Martin J. Forman, Director Nutrition and Child Feeding Service, AID, Department of State, will speak on "War on Hunger--international Understanding," at the banquet Friday night.

The speaker for the Saturday luncheon will be Dr. R. Jean Brownlee, dean, the College of Liberal Arts for Women University of Pennsylvania, whose topic will be "Understanding the International Federation of University Women."

Mrs. James G. Kellam of Virginia Beach is chairman of convention arrangements.

New Zealander In Recital at Eastern Shore

The ministry of music of Eastern Shore Chapel will present an organ recital Sunday, April 28 at 4 p.m. The guest artist will be Miss Ellen Armitage of Christ Church, New Zealand.

Miss Armitage attended Canterbury University, at Christ Church, and has been studying in this country for two years. She is a Fellow of Trinity College, London, and an Associate with the American Guild of Organists. In May, she will receive the Master of Sacred Music from the School of Sacred Music of Union Theological Seminary, New York City. She plans to return to New Zealand in June.

Her program will include works by Bach, Scarlatti, Mozart, Cesar Frank, Kenneth Leighton, Leo Sowerby and Maurice Duruflé.

Horse Show Is Crowd Pleaser

Beautiful weather and an abundance of enthusiasm combined for another successful Virginia Beach Horse Show, staged yearly for the benefit of the Auxiliary to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

In conjunction with the two-day show, held at Great Neck Stables, was a variety of booths and games in a Country Store where everything from painting to home-baked goodies were avilable to shoppers.

Bayside Juniors Will Swing

The Bayside Jr. Women's Club will swing into spring Saturday night, with bunny girls and azaleas at their annual charity ball at the Cavalier Hotel.

Proceeds from the semi-formal "Swing into Spring" ball will go to the Bayside library. Last year the club donated money toward the purchase of children's books and paintings for the library.

Co-chairman of the ball, Mrs. Robert Cromwell, Jr., explained that Bayside library, the newest in the city, is located in a heavily populated residential section "and is badly in need of books." This year's donation also will be used primarily to purchase children's books, "though we leave the specific items to be bought up to the library," said Mrs. Cromwell.

Chairman of decorations for the 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. ball is Mrs. Guerner, who filled the Cavalier ballroom with multi-hued azalea cuttings. Co-chairman with Mrs. Cromwell was Mrs. John Beasley.

Dates Given For Story Hour

There will be a story hour for children from three to five years old at Bayside Library, 936 Independence Boulevard, on the following dates: May 2, 9, 16, 23, and 30.

There are two story hour sessions scheduled for each day, with the first from 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m., and the second running from 10:30 to 11 a.m.

Becky Beasley fishes with a magnet in the fishing pond which was part of the Country Fair.

Mrs. Hershberger Wins National Award

One would think being president of the Virginia Beach Council of 54 Garden Clubs would be enough to occupy ones time, but not so with Mrs. C. L. Hershberger.

She is a charter member of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church where she organized the Ruth Circle, is secretary of the Tidewater Lost Chord Club Woman's Auxiliary and organized the Lynnhaven African Violet Society of which she is past president and honorary member.

She serves on the Board of Directors of the Virginia Beach Friends of Music and the Beautification Commission.

Mrs. Hershberger at the National African Violet Society of America Convention in Saint Louis, Mo. April 19, was given one of the most coveted awards, "The Ruth Carey Award" for affiliated chapter leadership. This silver award to be given to an individual member of an affiliated chapter for outstanding leadership in promoting all phases of the chapters activities in accordance with the objectives of the African Violet Society of America, Inc.

The National African Violet Society of America, Inc. has members in every State in the Union, plus Canada and many foreign countries.

Mrs. Hershberger has been a member of this organization for about 16 years. She has grown African Violets for almost 25 years. Mrs. Hershberger grows all sizes of violets from the wee ones, minatures and large size.

She won a silver trophy at the recent Virginia Beach flower Show for "White Sprite," which are so small, they grow under glass, mostly in sniffer glasses with saran covering the top. The tiny plants only reach one and one-half to two inches across. They must have high humidity and bloom profusely.

When asked how many violets she has, Mrs. Hershberger laughing said, "Oh, several hundred," and added, "It takes about two and one-half hours to water them." It is the best therapy in the world."

Commander Gets Bronze Star

Vice Adm. Lloyd M. Mustin, Amphibious Force Commander, talks with one of the five daughters of Lt. Cdr. and Mrs. Gerald Saucier following a ceremony in which Lt. Cdr. Saucier received the Bronze Star.

Lt. Cdr. Gerald Saucier, of Virginia Beach, was presented the Bronze Star Medal recently in a ceremony held at Commander Amphibious Force headquarters at Little Creek.

He received the recognition for his service as commanding officer of the self-propelled barracks ship Benewah on station in the Meking Delta region of Vietnam.

Vice Adm. L. M. Mustin, Force Commander, presented the award in a ceremony attended by Mrs. Saucier and the Saucier's five daughters.

In the citation, signed by Adm. John J. Hyland, Commander in Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet for the President, Lt. Cdr. Saucier was given credit for placing the ship in commission and ready for Vietnam duty where she became flagship for River Flotilla One.

Under Lt. Cdr. Saucier's command, the Benewah took part in 11 "Coronado" operations against the Viet Cong. This often involved moving the ship up hostile enemy rivers in the Meking Delta for close support of the river squadrons and troops.

Lt. Cdr. Saucier was further cited for the "resourceful and enthusiastic manner in which he applied himself to insure the complete fulfillment of his ship's assigned combat mission and his performance in the face of long, tense hours in restricted enemy waters."

Lt. Cdr. Saucier is now serving as meteorologist on Adm. Mustin's staff.

Seniors Excited by Graduation

With only four weeks left of school until Seniors take their exams, an air of excitement can be felt throughout Bayside. The wheels started into action last Friday when the Senior class received their graduation announcements. Soon relatives and friends will be receiving invitations to the ceremonies to be held June 6 in the partially completed stadium. The number of guests will be limited to seven per senior, however, because of the small seating capacity of the bleachers.

The Seniors missed out on their class trip to Washington recently, but it has been rescheduled for Mid-May, when hotel space will again be available.

This weekend Bayside will send their first representatives to the Virginia All-State Chorus. To be accompanied by Mrs. Faye MacKinnon, Lois Ann Lilly, Larry Tice and Michael Moore will leave Friday for the trip to Charlottesville. The concert will be held Saturday on the campus of the University of Virginia. Several hundred high school students from all of Virginia will practice together and perform the finished product before a numerous audience.

Woodstock Book Wins at PTA District Convention

Holding their prize-winning scrapbook are Mrs. Jackie Gregory, president of the Woodstock PTA; Mrs. Sena Martin, co-historian; Mrs. Florence Brewer, historian and William K. Jenkins, principal of Woodstock.

The only award to a Virginia Beach school at the recent Tidewater District PTA Association convention in Nansemond County went to Woodstock Elementary for its handsome, wood-backed scrapbook, that chronicled the school's past year in pictures, newspaper copy, and even original poetry, written especially for the book.

Responsible for compiling the book were Mrs. Florence Brewer, PTA historian-publicity chairman, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Sena Martin.

The Woodstock chronicle, which placed second, is the only Virginia Beach scrapbook to have ever won an award at the district competition.

Tidewater district includes Norfolk, Virginia Beach, Portsmouth, Chesapeake, Suffolk, and the counties of Isle of Wight and Nansemond.

Phone Booths Gain Style

The square plone booth is rapidly disappearing; the brown and glass wood box that was set off in the corner of the durgstore is taking on a new look, according to L. Floyd Patrick, local manager of The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia.

To keep pace with the increasing mobility of Americans and the heightened awareness of architectural beauty, the telephone companies throughout the Nation are taking a streamlined approach to providing phone service away from home.

Here in Virginia, C&P has some 24,000 coin telephones readily available for public use. Most of them are in booths or enclosures of some type. However, there are a number still mounted on walls due to space limitations and requests by the establishment owners.

There are many variations of the phone booth, according to the C&P. Many of them are especially designed to fit the space and design of their surroundings.

For special events, such as fairs, festivals, emergency situations, or any other occasion where large crowds may gather for a short period of time, a mobile trailer with eight public phones is used here in Virginia by C&P.

This year the public will make more than seven billion telephone calls on public coin telephones in the BellSystem. Here in the C&P, more than 130 million calls are expected to be placed by coin phones in 1968. This includes both local and long distance calls.

It's Time to Prune Shrubs

Early spring is the time to prune flowering shrubs which bloom in the summer.

A few examples of summer blooming shrubs are butterfly bush, abelia, crape myrtle, vitex, and summer blooming spireas. Do not prune spring blooming shrubs until after they bloom. When pruning, do not cut off all the branches at the same height. Thin the plant by removing some of the older stems at the base. New stems will be produced from the base so the plant will remain young and vigorous and its ability to produce flowers will be enhanced.

If it is necessary to prune shrubs each year to control their height, the planting design was in error. Insufficient space was provided. Locate such plants so it will not be necessary to keep the plants suppressed. Now is a good time to transplant shrubs that are poorly located.

A mass of shrubs allowed to grow to their full height will be more colorful in flower and fruit than the same shrubs when it is necessary to keep the height of the plants down.

Over-grown evergreens like the arborvitae or chamaecyparis may now be cut back several feet because new growth will soon cover up some of the scars of drastic pruning. Evergreens such as the spruce or cedrus and most pines do not look well if they are topped. These plants are best located where there is sufficient space for them to grow into specimen plants with no pruning necessary.

Light pruning of needled evergreens and broadleaf evergreens may be done now to keep the plant from getting any larger.

Boxwoods often need to be thinned. This thinning may be done at this season or any other. Pruning boxwood is important in order to: (1) keep the plant at the desired size; (2) improve the appearance and condition of a plant which is thin at the top; (3) develop strong framework against damage from snow and wind.

QUESTION BOX

Q. We have a rambling, low ranch house which covers much of the lot. There are no trees, and we're anxious to get some planted. Please suggest trees that will fit our home.-Mrs. JTW, Larkspur.

A. You're wise to consider the size of a tree in relation to the size of the house. Select small-size trees such as dogwood, crabapple, mimosa, linden, redbud, sassafras, shadwood, sweetgum, smoke tree or silver bell. Remember that it is difficult to get a dogwood to grow in full sun-and that mimosa trees often live only 5-10 years and then die.

Q. When is the time to put out annual plants such as petunias, marigolds, etc? BAH, Birdneck Drive.

A. The first of May is plenty early. Many people get in a hurry. The evenings are still too cool and the wind too strong for annuals to do very well-and a late frost may kill them. We're having an early spring this year, but the first of May is a good date to go by, year after year.

Q. My house plants look sick this time of year. What can I do about it? Mrs. TRW, Atlantic Ave.

A. Houseplants that have overwintered as interior decorations will benefit from being moved outdoors. They thrive in humid, outdoor air and summer rains. Barring a drouth, rainfall will care for their mosture needs. Many people, however prefer this time of year to throw them out and buy new ones this fall. This is especially true of philodendron, which often gets stringy and ugly after a year in the house.

Proper soil preparation is essential for good growth of annual and perennial flowers. However, since many yards are graded off, the top soil where these plants are to be grown is often scarce. Trying to grow good flowers on such plots is usually a waste of time.

Where good soil is scarce, an artificial soil mixture is needed to obtain desirable plant growth. If the soil is composed of heavy clay, the addition of both sand and organic matter will be beneficial. To sandy soils, you should add some form of organic matter such as well-rotted manure, peat moss, or leaf mold.

Well-rotted manures are excellent soil conditioners for flower beds; however, they often contain a wide variety of weed seed. This can be minimized by putting a mulch over the beds.

When preparing soils for annuals and perennials, incorporate approximately 1 to 2 lbs. of a complete fertilizer such as 5-10-5 or 10-10-10 in the soil per 100 square feet of bed area.

Plant Annuals After Frosts

Annual flowers should not be planted outdoors until after the last frost of the season. Normally, we think of April 15 as being the average last date, although for the last several years, frost has come as late as early May. If plants are put outside before the last frost, a hot cap will often protect them from damage.

There are many annuals that can be used to give color to an otherwise dull lawn area.

Petunias, portulaca, zinnias, marigolds, asters, cockscomb, and scarlet sage are all annuals that grow well and add color to landscapes here. These should be grown in full sun.

For partially shady spots, coleus, begonia, and impatiens are often used.

NOW IS THE TIME TO...

Get rid of the weeds in your lawn by using one of the new combination fertilizer-weed killers. Most are called weed and feed. There are more dandelions blooming in Virginia Beach this year than I can ever remember. One of these new products will fertilize your lawn and thicken up the grass while it kills the weeds.

Select your new roses and make plans to set them out. Most garden centers are just now getting their potted roses. If you plan to use bare root roses, better get them planted fast.

Prune all your spring flowering shrubs. See complete details elsewhere on this page.

Spray your trees and shrubs. Warm weather is just around the corner-and that's when insects strike en masse. Use an all purpose broad control spray. Ask your garden center for a good one.

Check your jonquils and mark those that didn't bloom. Chances are they need to be dug up and divided. Mark them now; dig them up after the tops die.

Fertilize all your summer blooming bulbs, such as lillies, dahlias, peonies, etc. Use a good bulb food in a 5-10-5 analysis.

Hospital To Benefit From Party

Proceeds will go to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. Tickets are $3 and are available from members of the Cavalier Circle.

General chairmen are Mrs. Spencer L. Lott, Mrs. J. R. Braun and Mrs. T. Lewis Johnson.

Use Basil

Basil, whole or ground, is an excellent seasoning for buttered snap beans. Add about 1/2 teaspoon per pound of beans.

Dandelions?

NOW IS THE TIME TO KILL THEM WITH Nutro WEED & FEED

Use NUTRO WEED & FEED as if you were simply fertilizing your lawn. The first day after using it, your weeds will still be there. But in a little while, they'll start to curl up and wither. Then one day you'll notice that your grass is greener and thicker than ever before. And your ugly weeds will be gone.

Veterans' Week Proclaimed

Taking note that "Our nation is drifting apart on various grounds; but at the same time.. thousands of men and women who have served in the armed forces are doing something about it," Mayor Frank A. Dusch has proclaimed April 29-May 4 as Tidewater Veterans Loyalty Week at Virginia Beach.

Having an active role in the week's activities will be two prominent retired Army officers, Col. George L. Oliver and Col. Jerome K. Hostetler, who have scheduled speeches at the city's six high schools during the first four days of Loyalty Week.

Col. Hostetler, who will speak at First Colonial, April 29, and at Kellam, May 2, is a past commanding officer at Ft. Story. Commissioned in 1942, Col. Hostetler was the recipient of the Bronze Star for his performance of duty in World War II, during which he served four and a half years in Africa and Italy. Among his many assignments were three years as associate professor of military science and tactics at the University of Minnesota and three years as Chief of Ground and Air Movement.

Col. Oliver, commissioned in 1940, will address the students at Princess Anne, Kempsville and Union Kempsville at 9:15 a.m., 10:20 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., respectively, on May 1. On May 2, he will speak to an assembly at Bayside, Col. Oliver served four years in the European Theater (England and France) during World War II. Among his several tours of duty were three years with the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Washington, D. C., and three years with the Army Material Command, also at Washington. For his performance at Washington, he received both the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star.

Weather to Be Broadcast Constantly from Norfolk

Continuous weather forecasts and warnings for the Hampton Roads area will be broadcast directly from a radio station at the Norfolk Weather Bureau starting Friday, May 3, at 1:30 p.m.

The weather program, with strong emphasis on marine conditions, will be broadcast 24 hours a day over the Very High Frequency/FM band at 162.55 megahertz (megacycles).

Since this frequency is above the standard FM band, which terminates at 108 megahertz, special receivers are necessary to pick up the weather transmissions. The public will find these receivers available at radio equipment outlets in all price ranges.

Boat owners with a FM radiotelephone may need only to insert a 162.55 megahertz crystal in a clear channel to receive the forecasts and warnings.

The Hampton Roads area will be the 17th location in the United States to have continuous weather transmissions of this type, according to the Department of Commerce's Environmental Science Services Administration, parent organization of the Weather Bureau. Additional stations at coastal locations are expected to be added during 1968. VHF installations will be extended to key cities throughout the country as additional resources permit, with emphasis upon the ocean and Gulf coasts, the Great Lakes, and the midwest "tornado belt."

Heart Assn. To Have Annual Meet

The Tidewater Heart Association 16th Annual Meeting and Awards Presentations will be held Friday evening, 6:30 p.m., April 26, at the Bow Creek Golf and Country Club in Virginia Beach.

Officers for the year 1968-69, and new members of the Association's board of directors will be elected.

Albert M. Baer of New York City will be the guest speaker. Baer is secretary of the American Heart Association, and chairman of the International Cardiology Foundation. He will speak on Heart Associations in other countries.

One of the goals of the International Cardiology Foundation is the establishment of heart foundations in all of the developed countries.

School Plans Camp Classes

The school will operate a six weeks day camp from July 1 through Aug. 9 in Ivor, Virginia. Those needing summer school classes in reading, and math if there is enough demand, may take these classes at the camp. Ponies from the Clark Pony Farm will be available for the campers to ride. Campers not needing summer school may attend from one to six weeks.

Buses leave the Tidewater area in the morning, and return in the afternoon. For full details, contact the King's Grant Christian Day School at 499-1243.

P.A. Grads Set Reunion Plans

The 1958 graduating class of Princess Anne High School will hold its ten-year reunion June 29, beginning at 7 p.m., at the Ft. Story Officers' Club.

Reservations for the reunion, at $12 a couple, are now being accepted by Mrs. Diane C. Wiles, 924 Richland Dr., Virginia Beach, and Mrs. Linda Spence Widgeon, 1717 Wildwood Dr., Virginia Beach. Reservations should be made before May 15.

Of the 230 1958 grads, the reunion committee has contacted 200. Special guests at the dance will be J. Warren Littleton, principal of Princess Anne, and Mrs. Littleton. Master of ceremonies for the evening will be Bobby Lockwood.

Safety Council Plans

Dr. Robert Waddell, president of the Virginia Beach Safety Council, noted that special attention by area citizens be given to the growing need for an active and enthusiastic safety council in Virginia Beach.

"We have the active and enthusiastic members and long-range plans for carrying out the programs effectively; now we need the people of Virginia Beach to become aware of our activities," Dr. Waddell said.

The April meeting was held Thursday, April 18, at the Bow Creek Country Club at noon. The guest speaker was Paul Jackson, assistant director of the Red Cross and Director of Safety Services and Disaster, who brought a film, "Boots, Motors and People." In our area, the Red Cross will furnish instructors on small boat safety for a group age 18 and over who have completed a Red Cross Senior Lifesaving course.

Richard Gormley, chairman of the Projects Committee, said that the location for a traffic signal board was being considered. This would be similar to the signal board in Norfolk near the fire station on the corner of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Monticello Avenue, which flashes a red light when a fatality has occurred. Sketches for the approval of the Council and businesses in the area of the proposed board are being made now.

Another suggestion for immediate action was that a seat belt safety poster campaign be organized. One sign might be placed at the emergency entrance of the Virginia Beach General Hospital directly on First Colonial Road. Another poster could be located at the toll booth of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway. Dr. Waddell reminded the board that "only 33% of the drivers and passengers in the United States use their seat belts."

With 40 schools in Virginia Beach soon to dismiss their students for the summer, the board decided more emphasis should be placed on motor bike and bicycle safety. A program with films and instruction would be planned for the schools and recreational areas.

School Plans Open House

Virginia Beach Junior High will host an open house tonight, 7:30-9 p.m., during which parents are invited to tour the school.

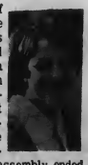

Special areas will include the school's science and audio visual equipment, science club laboratory exhibits, library and art materials, educational television and other projects. Refreshments will be served.
